Senate Gets Bill to Ban Wire Taps In District

Measure Offered By Neely and Darby Provides for Legal Uses of Technique

By Thomas Winship and Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporters

A specifically worded bill to outlaw wire tapping in the District except to run down criminals and subversives, and then only on special order of a District Court judge, was filed in the Senate late yesterday.

It was authorized by Senators Neely (D., W. Va.) and Darby (R., Kan.), both members of a subcommittee currently investigating the admitted wire-tapping activities of Police Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon.

The measure would make unauthorized wire tapping a felony with penalties up to $10,000 or 10 years in jail, or both.

Possession of wire-tap equipment with an intent to use it unlawfully would also be a felony, punishable by not more than $5000 or five years' imprisonment, or both.

Under the bill, only law enforcement officers of the District or Federal Government could engage in wire-tapping in specific cases.

Five Witnesses Heard

Meanwhile, in a day-long session, the District grand jury heard five witnesses in its probe of possible wire tapping involving the Macy subcommittee investigation last year of used-car operations.

The Neely-Darby bill specifically states that the court may clear enforcement officers to wiretap upon a showing that:

1. "There are reasonable grounds to believe that a crime has been committed or is about to be committed."

2. "There are reasonable grounds to believe that such interception will provide information which will lead to the discovery of evidence essential" to solving or preventing a crime, and

3. "There are no other means readily available for obtaining such information."

In a last-minute move, the sponsors inserted language covering subversives.

It authorizes communications interception in instances where there are reasonable grounds to believe that "acts detrimental to the security of the United States" have been performed or are about to be performed, and where interception will provide information which will "lead to the dis-

Tree-Felling Plant Produces 31-Pound Beans, Meal for 25

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Every time Otto Sheu, a suburban Pittsburgh gardener, takes a look at the beanstalk growing in his backyard, he's ready to believe the fairy tale about Jack and the Beanstalk.

Sheu described the stalk as more than 50 feet high with beans 4 feet long and weighing up to 31 pounds each. He said he invited 25 friends to dinner and one bean served them all.

It's all a bit mysterious to the gardener.

Sheu said a friend in the Middle East sent him a seed about the size of a lima bean and told him it was found in the tomb of an ancient Egyptian king.

"I didn't have any idea what was going to happen when I planted it last spring," said Sheu.

The vines pulled down two 6-foot peach trees and started climbing 50 feet up a poplar tree and still are climbing.

Part of the bean Sheu served for dinner was stuffed with meat and eggs and baked for 90 minutes. Another part was French fried and some raw slices of the bean went into a garden salad.

Sheu said the bean had a "mushroom" flavor, but some guests said it tasted like oysters. The raw bean had a cucumber flavor.

Sheu said the identity of the plant is uncertain but he thinks it is an herbaceous vine of the colocynth family growing in the Mediterranean area and related to the watermelon.

House Votes For 'Early' Profits Levy

Action Not Expected To Prolong Session; Pending Tax Bill Not to Be Affected

By John B. Owen
Associated Press Reporter

The House yesterday voted to hasten preparation of a bill to tax excess profits of corporations, with the tax effective either October 1 or July 1, 1950.

The Senate already has voted in favor of taking up such legislation next January. A House-Senate conference committee now must agree on the timing.

The Senate voted not to agree to the House resolution on timing of action. Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) moved to reconsider this Senate action, but was beaten on a narrow 36-to-34 Senate vote last night.

The House approved 331 to 2 a resolution directing taxwriting committees in both chambers to produce the super-tax legislation as "early as practicable" during the present session. Beyond specifying an effective date for the tax, no other terms were laid down.

Members said the effect of the resolution would be to get the proposal ready to give them a chance to vote on it before the Eighty-first Congress goes out not later than January 3.

May Vote After Election

Obviously this would not stand in the way of Congress taking a recess soon. Leaders want to close up shop Saturday. The lawmakers could return after the November election to act on the big profits levy.

The resolution was written into legislation raising corporation and individual income taxes. This $4,508,000,000 revenue measure was requested by President Truman as a "first installment" on the costs of war preparedness.

The House then sent the tax-boosting legislation to a Senate-House conference committee to work out differences. The bill finally agreed upon by the conferees will be subject to final action in each chamber.

Tax authorities were confident that the measure can be approved and signed by President Truman in time for higher levies on individual incomes to be made effective on October 1.

Representative Eberharter (D., Pa.), author of the House resolution, told a reporter that the 331-to-2 vote "morally binds the House to vote an excess profits tax before January 1."

Other Members Disagree

Other members privately termed it only an expression of a hope that Congress will act this year.

In the Senate, Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the Finance Committee told newsmen that the Eberharter resolution "doesn't matter." Senator Millikin (R., Colo.), ranking minority member of the com-

Senate Bans Aid for Any Helping Reds

Restriction Voted Into $17 Billions Defense Measure; Bill Then Passes

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The Senate last night passed the 17 billion dollar arms expansion bill with a provision to halt economic aid to countries selling munitions behind the Iron Curtain.

Both the bill itself and the prohibition against financial help to countries shipping strategic materials to Russia and its satellites were adopted without a record vote. The Senate version of the emergency measure carries $17,196,530,669, which is $425,174,592 more than the companion bill already passed by the House.

It now goes to the House for agreement to Senate amendments. There it will be sent to conference to iron out differences between the two versions.

River Project is Inserted

Chief among these differences are the Senate prohibition against aid to countries selling munitions behind the Iron Curtain and a four-million-dollar item for starting work on a hydroelectric project at Ice Harbor on the Snake River in Washington. The House rejected the Ice Harbor project during consideration of the measure.

[While there have been numerous complaints of recipients of Marshall Plan aid sending war-useful materials to Soviet-controlled countries, main recent cases have involved such shipments from Britain to Russia. One British manufacturer revealed that British industries were having to wait for supplies from his plants until a Government-approved contract with Russia was filled. Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill has called on the Labor Government to stop such exports.—Editor's note]

Principal items in the Senate bill are $11,736,000,000 to strengthen the Nation's military forces and four billion dollars for increased arms aid to friendly powers. The balance of the funds provided are to build up agencies of the Government outside the Defense Department, such as the Atomic Energy Commission, for defense purposes.

The Senate bill provides $3,166,403,000 for the Army as compared with $3,148,499,000 in the House measure. The $17,904,000 difference covers an item for hospitals and medical service.

Navy Fund Also Boosted

The Navy would receive $3,734,291,000 in the Senate bill as against $3,684,007,000 in the House bill. The difference of $50,284,000 includes 40 million for construction of vessels and $10,284,000 for medical care.

For the Air Force, the Senate voted $4,560,400,000, as compared

Taft Opposes, Morse Favors Gen. Marshall for Defense Post

By The Associated Press

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) and Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.) spoke out yesterday against the appointment of Gen. George C. Marshall as secretary of defense on the ground of alleged past favoritism to the Chinese Communists.

But Senator Morse (R., Ore.) called for the return of both Marshall and his victory-winning teammate of World War II, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, to help America re-arm "in this hour of crisis."

Morse did not say what post he thought Eisenhower should have.

Taft and Hoffman both said they would vote against special legislation to install Marshall as the Nation's defense chief. But there was still no sign of heavy opposition, either in the Senate or the House, against the 69-year-old general who has served his country as a lifelong soldier, as wartime Army Chief of Staff, and as post-war secretary of state.

The Senate last night adjourned until today without acting on the Marshall issue.

The House Armed Services committee is scheduled to vote today on a request by President Truman for a special act of Congress to let Marshall take over the traditionally civilian post in the Pentagon.

Under the unification act of 1947, a military man who has been on active duty within the last 10 years is ineligible to become secretary of defense.

The Senate Armed Services committee has already voted 10 to 2 to approve the legislation, with the explicit understanding that it applies only to Marshall and does not open the way for the future

Planes, Ships Cover Force Invading at Seoul's Port

Troops Put Ashore Also at Pohang and Kunsan in Allies' First Offensive

TOKYO (Friday), Sept. 15 (AP).—United Nations invasion forces landed today at Inchon, the port city for Seoul on Korea's west coast—150 miles behind the 10,000-man Red army at the fighting front.

Covered by planes and warships, United States troops stormed ashore on the island of Wolmi, linked to Inchon by a causeway.

South Korean marines landed at Inchon.

In a simultaneous operation, South Korean forces landed immediately behind the Communist lines on the east coast. They made two landings—one 2 miles northeast of Red-held Pohang, the other at Yongdok, more than 25 miles north of Pohang.

The West Coast invasion, preceded by cruiser and destroyer bombardments and sweeping carrier plane strikes, swung the United Nations to the offensive for the first time since the Reds began the war last June 25.

The invasion at Inchon, putting U. N. forces close to the 38th Parallel which the Reds crossed on June 25, was announced by the South Korean Commander in Chief, Maj. Gen. Chung Il Kwon.

Kimpo Airfield is Goal

He said that heavy pressure was quickly exerted by the invasion forces on the Communists near Kimpo airfield, Seoul's big air base. Kimpo is 12 miles northwest of Seoul and 10 miles north of Inchon.

Associated Press Correspondent William Shinn also heard a report that other invading forces went ashore at Kunsan, a west coast city 100 miles south of Seoul.

The report came from South Korean National Assemblyman Chino Soo, who said a warship bombardment supported it.

One thousand South Korean Commandos went ashore on the east coast near Pohang, striking at a coastal road which would bar the way to any retreat by Red forces defending the port. The Commandos quickly called for air support.

Followed Naval, Air Blasts

Earlier, United States Superforts rained air blows on South Korea's western coast, after a naval bombardment that raised North Korean's fears of an invasion.

An air communique said B-29s bombed rail lines for 100 miles

Truman Calls For Treaty With Japan

Acheson Will Remain As Secretary of State, President Declares

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday called for a new effort to bring about a peace treaty with Japan, and said the United States had long felt that the Japanese people ought to be brought back into the family of nations.

Mr. Truman announced at a news conference that he had authorized the State Department to initiate informal discussions with the nations that fought Japan in World War II. This would include Russia, which for three years has blocked efforts to negotiate a Japanese peace treaty.

The Chief Executive also said that the United States was "exploring the possibility of ending the state of war with Germany."

In the question-and-answer phase of the news conference, there was some confusion about Germany. Later, after the White House had been bombarded with inquiries, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman's statement had no reference to an ultimate peace treaty with Germany, which is not under consideration, but to the legal state of war which still exists in Germany. He said this was now being discussed in New York by the Foreign Ministers, who represent powers occupying western Germany.

He thinks the gains made by the Democrats in Maine on Monday portend the election of a Democratic Congress in November.

Britain Ready To Take Over Steel Firms

Labor Rulers Set Jan. 1 As Date, Bringing On Parliamentary Crisis

LONDON, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Labor Government moved today to take over Britain's steel industry next January 1 and thus brought on a parliamentary crisis which could end in Labor's downfall and new elections.

Quick to take up the challenge, Conservative Leader Winston Churchill denounced the move as a "wanton and partisan act." He announced he would ask the House of Commons to censure the Government for taking the step "at this most critical period in our national safety and affairs abroad."

Prime Minister Attlee replied that Labor was merely "carrying out what was passed by Parliament."

Vote Set For Tuesday

A vote on Churchill's motion will be held after debate next Tuesday. Attlee might choose to regard defeat as a mandate for new national elections. The parliamentary expert of the British Press Association, who writes often with official guidance, said flatly Attlee would take this risky stand despite Labor's majority of only five in Commons.

The stage was set for a showdown. The government named Steven James Lindsay Hardie, 65-year-old Scottish accountant and industrialist, to head the seven-man national board which will run the iron and steel industry. George Strauss, minister of supply, added that the industry would be taken over next January 1 "or as soon as practicable thereafter."

Churchill said Labor's action would bring about the "fiercest party controversy at home." Clement Davies, Liberal Party leader, agreed.

"It is absolutely essential at this present time, in view of the international situation, to maintain as much unity as possible," Davies declared.

Date a Compromise

The Steel Nationalization Bill, in its original form approved last year, fixed May 1, 1950, as the takeover date. The House of Lords, strongly Conservative, wanted the date pushed to July 1, 1951. The Lords had hoped that this year's national election would throw Labor out of power. Attlee compromised, fixing January 1, 1951, as the earliest date for actual nationalization. Labor went on to win the national election last February, with enough seats to form a new government, but a shakily slim margin in the House.

Street Route Cuts Catholic Stadium Site

The District Commissioners yesterday approved a route for extending North Capitol st. through Soldiers Home that would cut across the stadium site of the new Catholic Carroll High School.

Deputy District Highway Director Samuel R. Harrison said the mile-long cut-through will not be constructed immediately, but will probably be completed within three years. It will involve extending the street from Michigan ave. north to Fort dr., he said. The stadium site is just southeast of the point where North Capitol st. would cross Fort dr.

Routing of the extension has been complicated by the presence of Soldiers Home buildings, a national cemetery and the stadium site. Since the Soldiers Home and the Department of the Army objected to tearing down the buildings or disturbing the graves, the District had no alternative but to go over a corner of the stadium land, Whitesell said.

William B. Jones, attorney for the Catholic Archdiocese of Washington, said the archdiocese did not oppose the approved route, but wanted protection against financial loss in relocating its stadium.

Dispersal Plan Council Urged For D. C. Area

A council of Washington area planning groups was proposed yesterday by Maryland planners to cope with proposals to disperse part of the Federal Government into neighboring States.

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission approved a resolution calling for the council. It said such a group should "organize a joint offer of cooperation and assistance to the United States Government in connection with existing and proposed plans for dispersal of Federal buildings so that such plan may be executed with proper relation to local government services and with a minimum dislocation of existing land use patterns."

The commission named Vice Chairman Blair Lee 3d and Planning Chief Fred W. Tuemmler to attend an area-wide planning meeting on Sunday at the Corcoran Art Gallery. This meeting was called by the Upper Montgomery County Planning Commission to consider dispersal plans.

Despite the fact that Congress has turned down President Truman's $139,800,000 dispersal program, the planning groups are assuming that the idea will be brought up again at the next session and they want to be prepared.

Democrats Tongue-Lash Bow In Doubting Chapman Loyalty

By the United Press

Irate Democratic Senators yesterday berated Frank T. Bow, Republican candidate for Congress in Ohio, for raising disloyalty charges against Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman.

They accused him of using "innuendo" and "smear" for political effect and Senator James E. Murray (D., Mont.) told Bow that "it's an outrage that men like you are allowed to be at large."

Bow, now administrative assistant to Senator Andrew F. Schoeppel (R., Kan.), testified before the Senate Interior Committee that he provided the material for a Senate speech in which the Kansan last week demanded an investigation of Chapman's loyalty.

He also told the committee he will accept Chapman's challenge and repeat the accusations in a forum where he can be sued for libel.

He denied any intent to reflect on Chapman's loyalty in the charges that the Interior Secretary associated with Communist-front organizations and that the loyalty section of his oath of office was crossed out.

Bow said his only intent was to show Chapman is guilty of "grossly bad judgment."

He underwent a torrid tongue-lashing from the Democrats in the tumultuous session that followed.

Murray recalled that a group of New York psychiatrists recently decided the American people are being pulled in so many directions that the country may be turned into a gigantic "lunatic asylum."

Shaw Tells Doctor There's No Fame In His Recovery

LUTON, Eng., Sept. 14 (U.P.).—George Bernard Shaw had some advice today for the bone specialist who mended his broken thigh.

"It will do you no good if I get over this," Shaw told Dr. Laurence R. Plewses. "A doctor's reputation is made by the number of eminent men who die under his care."

Shaw, recovering rapidly from surgery, now is able to stand briefly on his injured left leg. Today he received a cable from a Dublin radio station asking whether he would like to request a number. He asked to hear an old country tune, "The Old Cow Died Off."

Big 3 Put German Troop Issue Up to Atlantic Pact Council

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Big Three Foreign Ministers again sidestepped a decision today to use German troops in a western army, but they kept the question open for future action.

After disagreeing for the past three days over this issue, the most controversial that has faced them here, they decided to raise it before the 12-nation North Atlantic Council which meets Friday.

This was a concession by the French and the British, who had opposed a decision at this time to use German troops, and it brought some satisfaction to the Americans, who had favored it.

It suggested that the real disagreement among the ministers on the German issue was more a matter of timing than of substance. Nobody likes the idea of putting Germans into uniform to help defend western Europe, but privately French and British officials concede that it may be unavoidable in the long run.

Secretary Acheson's view, which he argued before the three Ministers and which he will repeat to the 12-nation Council, is that he would not favor the use of Commons Hears MacArthur Hit as U. N. Commander

London, Sept. 14 (AP).—A Laborite member of Parliament questioned tonight whether Gen. Douglas MacArthur is the right man to command United Nations forces in Korea.

His statement stirred a hornet's nest in the House of Commons. Other members got to their feet to defend MacArthur against the attack.

The fuss was caused by Laborite Woodrow L. Wyatt during a debate on the government's defense program. He told the House that if the Conservatives were in power in Britain they would have supported "MacArthurism" in the Far East.

House Overrides Truman Veto Of Oriental Citizenship Bill

By The Associated Press

The House yesterday overrode President Truman's veto of a bill to permit an estimated 85,000 Japanese, Samoans and Koreans living in the United States or Hawaii to become citizens.

It was the second veto rejected by the House during the day. Earlier it overrode the President's veto of a bill to give out-patient (clinic) medical treatment to all Spanish-American War veterans, regardless of the cause of their ailment. The Senate has yet to act on the vetoes.

The House vote on the citizenship bill was 307 for the bill and 14 against it, or 93 more than the two-thirds required to override a veto.

As it first passed the House, the bill was intended only to remove barriers which have prevented Orientals living in the United States or Hawaii from becoming citizens. Most of the aliens involved are Japanese; a few are Koreans.

The Senate wrote in a provision, which the House accepted, to exclude from citizenship privileges any alien who belonged to an organization listed as subversive by the Attorney General during the last 10 years. It would also withdraw citizenship from any alien who joins such an organization within five years from the date he obtains citizenship.

Three District Men Killed In Korea

Three Washington men have been killed in action in Korea.

They are Lieut. Frederic N. Eaton, 24, son of Mrs. Frederic N. Eaton, 2002 P st. nw.; Sergt. T. Broaddus, 32, husband of Mrs. Ida Corrine Broaddus, 5430 Bass pl. se., and Corpl. John P. Johnson, 20, husband of Mrs. Beatrice Johnson, 1210 S st. nw.

Lieutenant Eaton was killed on September 2, according to a telegram sent his mother. He was serving with the Seventh Cavalry Regiment.

On August 22, Eaton sent his mother a letter stating he would be in Pusan in 14 hours: "I don't know what to write," he said, "There are only so many different ways to say don't worry."

"A Thousand Shall Fail"

He enclosed a page from the Bible which he had found lying on a seat in the Tacoma, Wash., airfield. He asked her to keep the page, containing the Ninety-first Psalm, until his return.

The Ninety-first Psalm includes the passage:

"I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress; my God; in Him will I trust . . .

"A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee."

Former Post Carrier

Born in Buffalo, N. Y., Eaton attended Fork Union and St. Christophers boy's schools in Virginia, Western High School here for two years and was graduated from Bullis Preparatory School in Silver Spring in June, 1944. While at Western he was a carrier for The Washington Post.

After graduation from the military academy he served at Fort Riley, Kan., and at Fort Benning, Ga., where he won his paratrooper and gliderman wings in June, 1950.

Sergeant Broaddus was killed on August 30 the Defense Department informed his wife. He wrote a letter, postmarked August 31, in which he said, "I am on the front line. I am praying each day that I return home. Pray for me."

The father of two small children, Cathrine, 7, and Walter T., jr., 3, Broaddus has been in the Army since 1941. He served with the Ninety-fourth Engineer Battalion in Europe and the South Pacific and was stationed in Korea before his return to the United States in 1945.

13 Killed Thus Far

Corporal Johnson was killed August 11 while fighting with the Second Calvary Division. He had been in combat about 13 days.

His wife received a letter from him on August 13 in which he stated that people at home don't know "how hard it really is in Korea."

A native of Richmond, Va., Johnson had lived his entire life in Washington. He graduated from Shaw Junior High here and attended Phelps Vocational School.

He entered the Army about 2½ years ago and, after training at Fort Dix, N. J., he was sent to Fort Lewis, Wash.

Besides his wife, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Earline Brown, of Richmond.

This brings to 13 the number of Washington area men killed in Korea. Thirty-four have been wounded, two injured and 16 are missing in action.

Only 7 of 1414 D. C. Draftees Rejected as Psychoneurotics

The No. 1 cause of rejection of local draftees during World War II has virtually disappeared during the Korean war draft call, it was disclosed yesterday.

Frank D. Norton, deputy director of the District Selective Service, said that only seven out of 1414 draftees undergoing the current pre-induction examinations have been rejected for psychoneurotic reasons, that is, for mental or nervous diseases or emotional instability.

Neuropsychiatric rejections led all the others during the World War II draft, according to Norton. He said he could find no immediate explanation for the phenomenal drop in this type of rejection.

At national Selective Service headquarters, a spokesman said that specific figures were not yet available, but that reports from the State draft centers indicated that the three most important causes of rejection across the country were failure to pass the mental qualification test, inability to meet the psychiatric standards, and dental defects.

In Washington, a breakdown of the 848 rejections out of 1414 draftees examined shows the mental qualification test to be the leading cause, followed in order by faulty vision, illiteracy, high blood pressure, dental defects, hernia, and heart trouble.

The Army's induction center at Arlington Farms yesterday gave pre-induction examinations to 50 draftees from nearby Virginia, and 38 from nearby Maryland. Nineteen Maryland men were inducted into the Army.

Asian Economic Aid Plan Taking Shape

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

A major new program of economic aid for the Middle East and South Asia, directed at fighting communism through raising poverty-level living standards, is taking shape in the State Department, it was disclosed yesterday.

The program, which might involve from 250 to 300 million dollars of assistance a year, is still at the so-called "working level" in the department, and has not yet been given topside approval.

But officials said there was "a good head of steam" behind it. They thought there was a good prospect of its being presented to Congress next session. The plan has already been discussed with some members of Congress.

Unlike the Marshall Plan in Europe, or specific World Bank and Export-Import Bank assistance, the proposed Middle East-South Asia program would not be primarily for industrial development, nor would it entail large outlays for new capital investment.

"More People Than Money"

Rather, according to some Economic Cooperation Aministration economists, who also back the proposal vigorously, the program would require "more people than money."

That is, its emphasis would be on technical aid—in teaching groups in the area better methods of farming, land reclamation, and human and animal health measures. Teachers and agricultural, engineering and health experts might be the main "export" to the underdeveloped areas.

What physical assistance was rendered would be mainly in the form of simple things—tools, steel plows, light agricultural equipment, seeds, fertilizer, medicines, etc.—rather than heavy machinery and industrial equipment.

The theory behind the plan is that the United States and western European rearmament programs—essential as they are—will not of themselves alone save a single acre of land from Communist aggression in Asia. For that aggression takes the form of political infiltration and capitalization on the abject poverty of the area.

To Raise Living Standards

It must be combated, therefore, by economic and political measures, particularly by raising living standards and supplying hope to the inhabitants for better conditions, it is contended. Otherwise, it is felt, Communist propaganda and promises will be embraced when no other avenue of improvement or hope is offered.

This was the argument of P. C. Spender, Minister of External Affairs of Australia, the author of a plan for just such aid to Asia, proposed and adopted at recent British Commonwealth conferences. It was also the thesis of a Senate speech Wednesday by Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.). He proposed an initial outlay of 500 million dollars.

Under the proposed program, no decisions have been made on what countries would receive aid. But logical candidates are India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Iran, Afghanistan and Israel.

A similar program, already getting under way, exists for Southeast Asia. It is principally financed by ECA funds of 60 million dollars. The Administration's hope is that this amount will be increased in the future.

Would Cost Less Than ECA

The feeling is, however, that although such aid might have to continue over a longer time span than the four-year Marshall Plan, the annual cost would be vastly less. In fact, it would be difficult to spend large amounts usefully in the Asian area in a hurry, unless some attempt was made to convert countries there overnight from an agricultural to an industrial economy.

Framers of the proposed programs have been impressed and influenced by the results of a short-lived but instructive ECA technical aid program in China. It operated for a few months before the Communist armies put an end to it.

Conducted jointly by Chinese and Americans, the operation—the Joint Commission for Rural Reconstruction—undertook specific projects in various provinces. Some were simply educational, on how to minimize the epidemics of rinderpest which destroyed the farmers' water buffalo, or how to prevent the filth-born diseases.

Others were concerned with teaching farmers methods of dike-building and improved agricultural techniques. The programs were felt to have had remarkable results. They are now being carried on by the ECA in Formosa.

No Retreats In Korea Now, Collins Says

By The Associated Press

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, pointed yesterday to the United Nations' corner of Korea and said: "It's as little as it's going to get. You can depend on that."

"From now on," he said, "we're going the other way."

The general made the remarks to reporters and photographers, in front of a Korean warfare map, before discussing the Korean situation with the Senate Armed Services Committee behind closed doors. Senators reported afterward he gave them an optimistic picture of the outlook at the moment.

[The United Press said that according to committee members who attended the two-hour briefing, Collins echoed the recent statement of Lieut. Gen. Walton Walker, U. S. Eighth Army commander in Korea, that "the worst is over."

[But Acting Chairman Virgil Chapman (D., Ky.) said Collins qualified his statement by pointing out that the entire picture could change abruptly if the Chinese Communists decide to intervene. United States officials are hopeful they will not.

[Chapman said the committee was "very much pleased" with the outlook depicted by the Army Chief.—Editor's note.]

Gottwald Wreath Laid On Grave of Masaryk

PRAGUE, Sept. 14 (AP).—Wreaths were laid on the grave of President Thomas G. Masaryk today, the thirteenth anniversary of his death, at Lany, traditional home of presidents of Czechoslovakia, some 25 miles west of Prague.

The official news agency said it was performed "in the name of" President Klement Gottwald, the government, the National Assembly (Parliament) and Prague's town council, the central national committee. Masaryk was first president of Czechoslovakia.

306th Cavalry Leaves D. C., Naval Air Squadron Called

An Army reserve unit, called to duty Wednesday, left Washington for its first duty station yesterday, and the Naval Air Reserve's Patrol Squadron has been ordered to report to the Naval Air Station today for active duty.

The air squadron is expected to leave in a few days for transitional training in Corpus Christi, Tex.

The Army unit is the 306th Armored Cavalry Group of the District, commanded by Lieut. Col. Ford E. Young, jr., of 4405 Leland st., Chevy Chase.

Major William C. Shreve, of 320 Walnut st., Falls Church, is executive officer.

Lieut. Frederick Speidel of 101 Danbury st. nw., is commanding officer of the headquarters company, in which his two brothers also serve. They are Sergt. William E. Speidel, 3800 14th st. nw., and Sergt. James G. Speidel, 200 Monroe st., Rockville, Md.

Lieut. Comdr. John S. Leidel, officer in charge of Navy recruiting in the Washington area, yesterday disclosed that recruiting is currently ahead of quota, size of which is restricted information.

Seven men were enlisted in the regular Navy yesterday, and one reservist was recalled to active duty.

The Marines enlisted three men and accepted two of 13 applicants for enlistment.

The Coast Guard enlisted one man in the regular service.

Briton Given 4 Years In Atom-Secrets Theft

LONDON, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Ralph Wakeman, 35, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to four years in prison today for stealing a suitcase containing secret atomic energy documents from a train compartment.

Wakeman, appearing at the Old Bailey court, also admitted stealing a checkbook and a raincoat under the pretense he was Frank M. Greenless, assistant director of the Ministry of Supply's atomic research plant at Risley. Detectives testified that Wakeman was not connected with any spy ring and that the secret doucments were recovered intact.

World Bank, Fund Adjourn Fifth Session in Paris

PARIS, Sept. 14 (NYHT).—The World Bank and the International Monetary Fund adjourned their fifth annual joint meeting in Paris today after a week of discussions that resulted principally in decisions to maintain present policies.

In the case of the fund, the debates indicated increasing opposition to the fund's ban on premium gold sales above the official price of $35 an ounce, and it is possible that a change may be considered during the coming months.

Douglas Abbott, finance Minister of Canada, was elected to serve as chairman of next year's joint meeting.

Day Brings Sorrow, Joy To GI's Mother

Wednesday was a day of sorrow and joy in the Takoma Park home of Mrs. Hilda Oxford.

Mrs. Oxford began the day sadly recalling September 13, 1949, when her 15-year-old son, Billy, died. She brooded constantly over the fear of another grave in Arlington Cemtery.

A second son, September 17, had joined the service before he was old enough and without his mother's permission, just like his brother Billy had in 1948.

Spencer, despite Mrs. Oxford's efforts to have him discharged, was crossing the Pacific, en route to Korea. On September 24, he would be 18 and could be kept in the Army. The Army wouldn't discharge him overseas, and all seemed hopeless.

It had taken Mrs. Oxford a year to get Billy out of the Air Force. A few months after she got him, Billy died of cancer. "One was enough," Mrs. Oxford kept insisting.

Before Wednesday ran out, the gloom had lifted at 6511 Allegheny ave. and Mrs. Oxford was smiling her first smile in many days.

It took just one telephone call from the Army. Spencer's discharge papers were being dated before September 24. He would be rushed home as soon as his ship docked.

Reds Sow Maneuver Leaflets

PFAFFEMGRUND, Germany, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The Communists used skyrockets today to shower propaganda leaflets on maneuvering American troops.

Communist pamphlets, fired through the skies over the heads of United States security guards, said: "We work for peace or die from bombs."

The leaflets fell on troops maneuvering in "Exercise Rainbow," in which they are trying to repel a mythical invasion from the east, and on German residents of this village, 2 miles from American military headquarters at Heidelberg.

Anti-Allied Propaganda Outlawed in West Berlin

BERLIN, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—American authorities today issued an order outlawing the printing or distribution of anti-Allied propaganda in the western sector of Berlin.

The ban was issued in agreement with the British and French military governments and covers all printed matter that contributes toward the spreading of "militarist, fascist or anti-democratic ideas" or "contains derogatory statements concerning any of the occupying powers."

The order obviously was directed at the Communists, who have tried conitnuously to flood the Western sectors with "peace" propaganda.

Enemy Supply Lines Halted, Airman Says

TOKYO, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The commanding general of America's Far East Air Forces said today that unremitting air attack has virtually halted the flow of supplies and reinforcements to the Korean Communists.

Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer said that "aerial reconnaissance shows that large-scale traffic in enemy-held Korea is to all intents and purposes at a halt as of today."

The general's statement reflected the results of 10 days of "multiple" attacks on secondary railroads and highways in Communist Korea. Main supply lines had been disrupted in earlier attacks.

Since September 4, Stratemeyer said, Allied fighters and bombers have made "more than 170 attacks on bridges, 60 on secondary marshaling yards, 21 on tunnels and more than 50 cuts in railway lines."

These raids included some "return visits" to bridges and rail lines blasted earlier. When scout pilots report that damaged installations have been almost completely repaired, bombers are sent over to blow them up again.

One B-29 pilot here said he has been flying up and down railroads so long that "I'm beginning to feel like Casey Jones."

The attack on Communist communications lines continued today, although typhoon weather in the strait between Japan and Korea limited air activity.

The Fifth Air Force flew 154 sorties up to mid-afternoon. Most were close-support missions by jet and conventional fighter planes, but the Air Fore announced that B-29s bombed bridges and rail junctions at several points.

"The Superforts struck the storage warehouse next to the rail center at Kumchon with excellent results," a communique said. "Another flight bombed important railroad lines leading north from Pyongyang, the North Korean capital city. Other B-29s bombed bridges and rail junctions important to North Korean traffic moving southward."

Fighter pilots returning from close-support missions reported they had destroyed or damaged one tank, 25 other vehicles, three supply dumps, 11 gun positions and "numerous" enemy troops.

Two fighter planes were lost during the day's operations. A jet-propelled F-80 crashed, and a helicopter sent in to attempt a rescue said the plane was destroyed. An F-51 Mustang, hit by enemy fire during a low-level strafing run, crashed and burned in enemy territory near Kumchon.

Sen. Russell Says Americans Should Ponder Preventive War

Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), said yesterday the United States should get over the idea that it would be wrong to fight a preventive war.

He said he isn't calling for one against Russia now but it is at least "something the American people ought to be thinking about."

"I don't want to see the Department of State and the military working under the idea that we can't shoot until we're shot at," he explained. That might have been all right before the atomic age "but we can't keep on thinking that way," he said.

"If we wait for an enemy to hit us first, we might not even get off the ground."

Russell outlined his views in expanding on a compliment he handed Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews for his recent "preventive war" speech. Matthews told a Boston audience the United States should be willing to pay any price to compel cooperation for peace, "even the price of instituting a war."

The speech drew a rebuke from the State Department and President Truman disavowed such talk as "the weapons of dictators."

The transcript of a recent Senate Appropriations Committee hearing revealed that Russell disagreed with the President and State Department and complimented Matthews warmly. He called it "a perfectly grand thing," and said it was "long overdue."

"It was high time for somebody in high position to make a statement of that kind and wake up the American people and get them to thinking in broader terms," he told Matthews.

"I do not think we can afford to play this game out to the end according to the other fellow's rules. If we do, we are going to get licked. We have to get a few rules of our own in there."

British Hunt Sabotage on 13th Warship

LONDON, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The British Admiralty said today that sand was discovered in the main engine of the light aircraft carrier Vengeance in what may have been a sabotage attempt.

The incident marked the thirteenth major instance of suspected sabotage against British warships since the Korean fighting started.

An Admiralty spokesman said the sand was found September 4 in the 13,190-ton vessel's lubricating system as it sailed in the English Channel for Home Fleet maneuvers just ending. He added, however, that no damage was done and the carrier participated in the exercises.

"It could have been sabotage," the spokesman commented.

Vessels involved in the previous cases included two other aircraft carriers, at least five destroyers, two submarines and several ammunition and troop ships. Two weeks after the Korean war began, a time fuse set off an explosion of eight ammunition barges in the Portsmouth naval yard, injuring 19 persons. The ammunition was intended for Korea.

Rare H-Bomb Element Found in Plain Water; Method Can Help Expose Secret Manufacture

DR. W. F. LIBBY

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
DR. A. V. GROSSE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The rare element Tritium, necessary for the production of a hydrogen bomb, has been found for the first time to be present in sea and fresh water, Temple University announced today.

The element, which is hydrogen 3, is in water at a ratio of one of its atoms to 1,000,000,000,000,000,000 atoms of ordinary hydrogen—the hydrogen that teams up with oxygen to give us ordinary water.

Thus with only one atom of hydrogen 3 in such a tremendous number of ordinary atoms it hardly seems conceivable that extraction of hydrogen 3 would be practical.

[The Associated Press reported from Philadelphia that there are two immediate practical uses for the water tritium. One is to discover the secret manufacture of H-bombs.

With the new tritium detection method, it may not even be necessary to wait until an H-bomb is exploded to gather the evidence. For at present manufacture of tritium is a presumption that it is intended for H-bombs. If in manufacturing, a little tritium is spilled into water, it will spread widely.

Even when diluted to a few atoms per drop, this tritium can be detected by the new methods announced here today. For example, it was reported that a gram of tritium spilled into the world's greatest river, the Amazon, could be detected all the way downstream, and far out into the ocean. A gram is a twenty-seventh of an ounce.]

The announcement today came from Dr. A. V. Grosse, of the Temple Research Institute, who has been doing the work with Dr. Willard F. Libby, of the Institute of Nuclear Studies, of the University of Chicago.

It was learned that the scientists used the so-called heavy water—water brought from Norway—for their initial tests. Heavy water contains molecules that have hydrogen 2, rather than ordinary hydrogen. At the start of the atomic bomb research both in the United States and in Germany it was believed that heavy water would be needed to serve as a moderator in the construction of atomic piles, needed to determine the critical size of a successful atom bomb. However, graphite was found to be as effective.

Interests in heavy hydrogen became intense again, however, as the possibility of making a hydrogen bomb was more seriously discussed. In a hydrogen bomb the action is fusion, rather than fission. In other words, the fusion or changing of hydrogen into helium by enormous amounts of heat. Such heat is not to be found on earth. So some scientists have theorized that the heat from an atomic explosion would be necessary to cause the fusion of hydrogen into helium.

Israel 'Ready' If War Is Wanted, Arabs Told

TEL AVIV, Israel, Sept. 14 (AP). Israel warned Jordan and other Arab states tonight she is ready for war if they want it.

Tension has been increased between Israel and Jordan by the latter's complaint to Britain, France, the United States and the United Nations that Israeli troops had "invaded" Jordan territory last month.

The Israeli government declared the charges are "a tissue of lies."

An Israeli spokesman said Jewish farmers had moved into a square-mile area that had been assigned to Israel under terms of the Arab-Jewish armistice.

Foreign Minister Mohamed Pasha Shureiky of Jordan, in notes to the Big Three, said his country is ready to use "force to drive the Jews back to their old area" if a peaceful settlement is not reached.

Maj. Gen. Yigal Yadin, Israeli army chief of staff, told a news conference, "we are going to defend each millimeter of our country from whatever attack comes."

Yadin said if Jordan or any other Arab country "thinks by threat of force, or using force, they can change the frontiers of the armistice agreements, they are fooling themselves and their people."

The Jordan complaint to the United Nations Security Council, as well as the Big Three, charged that Israeli troops had crossed the Jordan frontier near the junction of the Yarmuk and Jordan Rivers on August 27.

Yadin joined Dr. Walter Eytan of the Israeli Foreign Ministry in saying that Jewish farmers had plowed and occupied a small strip of land near Naharayim, along the Jordan border that was assigned to Israel under the Rhodes armistice agreement.

Adenauer Hits Red Germans' 'Hate' Campaign

BONN, Germany, Sept. 14 (AP). Chancellor Konrad Adenauer accused the East German Communists today of intensifying their campaign to make the West German Republic "ripe for violent overthrow."

He told Parliament the government is determined to stamp out the Red underground in the west. A source close to Adenauer declared the government was ready to set up a well-armed police force — possibly 100,000 men — to put punch into the anti-Red drive the minute the Western powers give the go-ahead signal.

Declarations by the Soviet zone Reds in Berlin appeared to confirm Adenauer's charges.

There the East German Communists, steaming up for their October 15 elections, urged all Germans to generate a "glowing hatred" for the Western Allies and the West German Republic.

The Reds called on West Germans to increase efforts to sabotage Western defense preparations, provoke more strikes and stage "mighty demonstrations against these enemies of our people."

In support of Adenauer's accusations, all the parties in the West German Parliament with the exception of the Communists called on the United Nations to condemn the Soviet methods of getting arbitrary power in the east by rigged elections.

Sources close to Adenauer said West German plans call for a 60,000-man force by the end of next year and hopes are that eventually this will be increased to 100,000. It would be trained and commanded by former Germany army officers.

Yugoslavs Get New Credits From Western Germany

FRANKFURT, Sept. 14 (AP).—Western Germany has just agreed to increase trade credits to Communist Yugoslavia to 35 million dollars, authoritative sources disclosed today.

The new agreement was forwarded to Washington, London and Paris this week for consideration. The United States is understood to approve the credit but all three Allied powers must concur.

Yugoslavia also has asked Austria for a 10-million-dollar credit for purchases of industrial goods, the sources reported.

Korean War Hikes Exports From Germany

BONN, Germany, Sept. 14 (U.P.). The fighting in Korea swung the doors wide open to German exports in a world heavily engaged in rearming, a government report shows.

The "Made in Germany" label is going around the world again with exports of machines and consumer goods twice as high as last year, and still rising.

The Federal Economic Ministry reported that in July $172,200,000 worth of goods were shipped out of Western Germany, more than twice the $80,900,000 figure achieved nine months earlier, in October, 1949.

The Economic Ministry report said this was "probably because of the international rearmament demands."

The backbone of the export boom is the increasing demand for chemicals, machinery and iron and steel products—the exports that made Germany famous before the war.

Among the biggest hopes in the German export trade are the assembly lines of automobile manufacturing plants where new streamlined cars are being turned out for shipping abroad.

Car exports almost doubled from $3,100,000 a month last year to $8,800,000 in July 1950.

Clark Visit to Vienna Touches Off Red Battle

VIENNA, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Gen. Mark W. Clark, chief of American field forces, arrived by plane from Berlin today and touched off a Comunist protest demonstration that developed into a battle with police.

While Clark was holding a news conference at the U. S. Army Hotel Bristol, 150 Communists outside the hotel began shouting "Clark go home." Police, swinging nightsticks, rushed into the mob. Six persons were hospitalized with head injuries and three others were arrested.

German troops if he thought the North Atlantic nations could marshal big enough defense forces without them.

It remains to be seen what the 12 treaty signers will think of the idea. Some of their Foreign Ministers, notably the Dutch and Italian, are believed willing to use German troops as a disagreeable necessity. Others, notably the Norwegian, still have to be convinced along with their British and French wartime allies.

This was a day of many decisions at the Big Three meeting, although the Ministers were coy about announcing publicly that they had agreed on specific subjects.

A noncommittal communique, issued after the second of two three-hour meetings, said the problems before them in the past three days had reflected "the serious situation which confronts the world today."

"The Ministers were fully agreed," the communique said, "that the most urgent of these problems was that of strengthening the defenses of the free world both in Europe and in Asia and were equally agreed that immediate effective steps must be taken to this end."

Rather than make a formal announcement now of their decision, the Ministers preferred to list the subjects on which they had had "a preliminary exchange of views."

The communique said they would proceed in next few days to "exchange views" with the Ministers of other interested nations. But informed sources reported that the Ministers had agreed today on:

(1) Announcing their intention as soon as possible to end the technical state of war with Germany;

(2 Letting the West German republic conduct its own foreign relations through its own ambassadors abroad, although this will require some change in the status of the three allied high commissioners; and

(3) Increasing the police forces of the West German states, probably with some financial help from the central government and with some of the additional state units enabled to move quickly across state boundaries if the central government needs them.

(4) Pending the creation of a genuine combined army of the West, all three occupying forces will strengthen their garrisons in Western Germany. This, in fact, is being done already.

At their afternoon session, the Ministers finally shook loose from German problems and turned to the Far East, after agreeing to come back to undecided German questions next Monday. They raced through Far Eastern subjects as if in a hurry finish, and they stated their ideas on China, Formosa, Koorea and Indo-China without making a serious attempt to reconcile them.

Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain repeated his familiar plea, as everyone expected he would, to have the Chinese Communists admitted to the United Nations. He argued that the Peiping government would be much less likely to intervene in Korea or to attack Formosa if it were a full-fledged U. N. member.

Acheson took exactly the opposite line, arguing that it might keep the Chinese Communists on their good behavior during the Korean war if they were kept waiting for admission. He said the United States wanted the U. N. General Assembly, which opens its annual session Tuesday, to vote on the Chinese membership question as soon as possible, and before the subject comes up in the Security Council.

Foreign Minister Schuman of France argued that admission of Communist China should not be settled until after the Korean war, and until the Peiping government had given clear proof of peaceful intentions toward Indo-China.

As for Indo-China, Schuman said the French were making strenuous efforts to build up a national army under former Emperor Bao Dai, just as the United States had been urging them to do. But he said the French would need additional money from the United States to do the job on the necessary scale.

Acheson could not promise financial help, but said he would be glad to discuss it later if the French gave him a specific program.

The Ministers did reach one agreement on Indo-China: to have immediate military consultation in the event of a threat of invasion there. Presumably this consultation would take place between Gen. Douglas MacArthur and the French army commander on the spot.

Surprisingly, there was little discussion on Formosa, on which the British have had many misgivings in recent months. American officials had the impression afterwards that on Formosan and Chinese issues the British seemed readier than before to work toward an agreed position with the United States.

In their communique, the Ministers said they "welcomed the great manifestation of solidarity of 53 nations in support of the United Nations in meeting the aggression in Korea." Among the subjects they discussed, according to the statement, was "the continuation of the U. N. interest in Korea after the termination of hostilities."

The American, British and French delegations to U. N. are already consulting on seeking the appointment of an Assembly commission to recommend "peace aims" for the future of Korea. The Americans would like such a commission partly or wholly made up of Asian nations.

On Friday, when the North Atlantic Council assembles, Acheson will have another chance to plead for a combined Army of the West, under a single command an international staff. This was the great program he brought to New York with him, with the blessing of President Truman and Gen. George C. Marshall.

Uniform Law Drawn to End Quick Nuptials

A law which would result in more people getting married at home instead of running off to a nearby State to get it done faster was approved by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

The conference gave its final okay to a model law which would require five days of waiting for a marriage license from the filing date. It hopes to persuade the Legislatures of all the States to enact it.

The law also would require a premarital blood test for syphilis.

The conference also put its approval on two other proposed model laws.

One was the so-called "Runaway Pappy Act."

This law would force a father who deserts his family and goes to another State to support his family. The State in which he took asylum would see that this was done.

The other was the "Uniform Pre-Natal Blood Test Act." This would require a physician giving pre-natal care to a pregnant woman to request proof that during her pregnancy she had undergone a blood test for syphillis.

A "Uniform Act Prohibiting Marriage by Mentally Defective or Diseased Persons" got through its first reading.

This would forbid the issuance of a marriage license to a mentally diseased person whose children would probably inherit his disease.

In this same field of seeking uniform laws for all the States, an Interprofessional Commission of Marriage and Divorce Laws was incorporated yesterday as a nonprofit educational organization under sponsirship of the American Bar Association.

The action came on the eve of the association convention, which gets under way here Monday.

The 14-member commission, with headquarters in New York, will prepare a model uniform act or series of acts on marriage and divorce for submission to State Legislatures.

Coast Guard Draft Bill Wins Approval of House

The House unanimously passed a bill yesterday allowing the Coast Guard to draft men and draw on its organized reserve to meet its expanded Korean war role.

The measure now goes back to the Senate, which previously passed it, for adjustment of minor differences.

The bill allows the Coast Guard to draw on draftees to swell its ranks. It gives President Truman power to order up Guard reserves and retired personnel. It also would freeze present enlistments for one year.

Defense Plants Get Top Manpower Priority; Enough Labor Assured for Present Program

A national manpower program began shaping up yesterday as war plants were given top priority in hiring at the 1800 Federal-State employment offices.

The Labor Depratment, in a special labor market survey and in an address by its director of employment security, reported:

1. Expansion of the labor force can take care of President Truman's doubled goals—a 30-billion-dollar annual rate of defense spending and three million men under arms.

2. But, if a call for full mobilization were to bring 12,500,000 men again under arms, strictly civilian industry would have to give up one-fourth of its labor supply. It would lose 6,600,000 workers.

The director of employment security, Robert C. Goodwin, in a speech at Wayne University, Detroit, said that manpower "may again become a major problem."

He estimated the country's total labor force—at home and in uniform—can be expanded to meet the needs of the next nine months and could be boosted by 5,600,000 in a war emergency. But he said manpower nevertheless will set the ultimate ceiling on war production.

The 5,600,000 figure does not include an estimated 2 million or 3 million who might be drawn from the ranks of the unemployed, because they are already counted in the labor force. The Labor Department said the 5,600,000 represents women, youths, retired workers and others who can be lured into jobs.

Goodwin outlined today's manpower program with these key points

1. Expanding the labor force by publicizing defense job opportunities, working out recruitment drives, analyzing future labor needs, and steering new plants into areas where unused labor supplies exist.

2. Giving defense plants a priority claim on job-seekers. This means the local offices will not refer a qualified applicant first to a civilian factory, no matter how serious its need, if he is needed in a plant working on war orders.

3. "Advising" the military and Selective Service on deferment policies which would cause the least possible "industrial disruption" during draft calls and the summoning of reservists.

U. S. Discounted Warnings Of Korea Invasion, U. N. Told

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 14 (NYHT). — The United Nations Korean Commission asserted today that American Army officers in South Korea minimized warnings by South Koreans that the North Korean Communists were planning the invasion that began the Korean conflict on June 25.

In its annual report to the U. N. General Assembly, opening on Tuesday, the commission said that in May, little more than a month before the North Koreans invaded, American officers told commission members they did "not agree on the imminence of any danger" and said the South Korean army could handle any attack.

The only American officer named in the commission report was Brig. Gen. William L. Roberts, former chief of a mission of 500 American officers and men assigned at the request of the South Korean government to train the South Korean military forces.

The commission report said that early in 1950, and progressively as the months passed, the South Koreans and General Roberts were aware that tension was increasing along the thirty-eighth parallel, and that North Korean forces were building up to a strength in manpower and equipment that gave them a two- or three-to-one advantage over the South Koreans.

But, the report observed, "General Roberts' confidence in the ability of the South Korean army to handle the forces of North Korea in case of attack was generally accepted."

Then, shortly after May 12, following a detailed revelation by South Korean intelligence of the growing strength of the North Koreans, commission members conferred with two unidentified officers of General Roberts' staff to get their estimate of the situation.

These officers, the report said, recognized "the growing disparity between the forces of the North and those of the South. They did not, however, agree on the imminence of any danger and again expressed confidence in the ability of the army of the Republic (South Korea) to handle the forces of the Northern regime in case of attack."

Sihn Sung Mo, South Korean defense minister, held a news conference on May 10. At that conference, Sihn said "that North Korean troops were moving in force towards the thirty-eighth parallel and that there was imminent danger of invasion from the north."

Colonel Chang, South Korean intelligence chief, reported that in less than six months the North Koreans had expanded their army from 150,000 to 182,400, from 80 planes to 197, and from 100 tanks to 173, including some very heavy ones. In addition, he said, North Korean guerillas and the People's National Defense Corps were busy stabbing at South Korean forces across the thirty-eighth parallel, apparently feeling them out.

The commission summed up Colonel Kim's views this way: "It had to be admitted that at the moment North Korea was two or three times superior in respect of military equipment and disposed of more planes, tanks, guns and machine guns. Against such overwhelming odds, courage alone could not go far."

Sec. Johnson Will Address Bar Group

Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson will sing his swan song before the American Bar Association Monday.

Johnson, who will serve his last day in the Secretary's post Tuesday, will address the bar and the Nation over a national network at 8:30 p. m. in Constitution Hall.

The Pentagon confirmed yesterday that the speech, scheduled before Johnson's resignation, has not been canceled. It is his only scheduled speech, the Pentagon also said, before his departure from the Cabinet.

Nearly 3000 lawyers and their wives from all over the Nation have made reservations for the annual convention, Bar officials said yesterday.

In addition, 1000 Canadian lawyers and their wives have made reservations for the meeting of the Canadian Bar Association here.

It will mark the first joint meeting of the two associations. The American group will have headquarters at the Statler, the Canadians at the Mayflower.

Scores of out-of-town lawyers were arriving in Washington yesterday for preliminary meetings to the American convention, which runs from Monday through Friday.

The council of the section on taxation of the American association met yesterday to pave the way for the section's first general session Saturday.

An impressive battery of speakers has been lined up for the meetings.

Speakers will include Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, Supreme Court Associate Justices Robert Jackson and Tom Clark; Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing; Beardsley Ruml, economist and former chairman of the board of R. H. Macy & Co., and Dr. John Myan Chang, Ambassador of Korea.

Also Stuart S. Garson, Canadian Minister of Justice; Sir Norman Birkett, judge of the King's Bench Division of Great Britain's High Court of Justice; Andre Toulouse, batonnier of the Paris, France, bar; Paul Martin, Canadian minister of National Health and Welfare; Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) and Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

In connection with the convention of Bar Presidents convening here Saturday, the local District Court will hold a naturalization ceremony in the Municipal Court at 9:30 Saturday morning.

The conference of bar secretaries will open its annual sessions on Sunday.

Veterans' Use Of Naval Hospitals Cut

Use of Naval hospitals for treatment of veterans of past wars will be drastically curtailed to make room for Korean casualties, the Veterans Administration announced yesterday.

The action follows an earlier announcement last month that Army hospitals would empty their beds of VA patients as the veterans became improved enough for discharge.

Effective immediately, VA officials said, veteran patients will be admitted to naval hospitals only in emergencies. VA presently has arrangements for the care of 2000 patients in naval hospital beds, and the new order reduces the number to 470.

Yesterday's order reduces to 50 the number of VA beds to be maintained at the Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital. VA had contracted for 261 of the hospital's 1300 beds, with some 200 in use when yesterday's order was made. The patients are expected to remain there until discharged.

U. S. Polio Incidence Still On Upswing

Infantile paralysis continued on its national upswing last week, the 16th consecutive week polio cases have shown increases.

In the District, however, the week's total of ten new cases was five less than the total recorded during the previous week.

Polio cases reported nationally for the week ended last Saturday numbered 1745, or 119 more than recorded during the previous week, according to Public Health Service statisticians.

The increase, it was noted, followed a general 10-year pattern in which the disease incidence reached its yearly peak about the second week in September.

Last year, a record one in number of polio cases recorded, was an exception to the 10-year pattern. The 1949 season hit harder, spread faster, and reached its peak earlier—the week ended August 19—with 3416 cases recorded.

The 1745 cases reported in the Nation last week compares to 2698 cases recorded during the corresponding week of last year. And the week's toll brought to 14,099 the total number of polio cases recorded in the disease's current year (begun in mid-March), as compared to 25,525 for the same seasonal period of 1949.

Cumulative total for the calendar year up to Saturday was 15,233, compared to 26,440 at the same time last year.

State-by-State Table On Polio Incidence

Here is the State-by-State record of polio cases reported this season and last, as compiled by the National Office of Vital Statistics, United States Public Health Service.

It shows the number of new cases reported during last week, those recorded during the corresponding week of last year, the 1950 polio "disease" year totals to last Saturday, and the 1949 totals for the same period.

Allies Land Behind Red Lines

from the Red capital of Pyongyang down to Seoul, where the Communist radio hinted it thought an invasion was brewing.

The Superforts also strewed their bombs for 200 miles from Pyongyang southeastward to Kumchon, a rear supply base for the Red troops along the 125-mile war front in South Korea.

British and American cruisers and destroyers Wednesday bombarded Inchon, the west coast port for Seoul. The sea assault may preface a stepped-up program of naval attacks.

Main Thrust by Foe Broken

At the critical sector of the war front—Taegu, the northwest pivot of the line—the U. S. First Cavalry commander said Friday he believed his men "have broken the back of the main enemy thrust."

But Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay quickly added he might have to change his mind. A First Cavalry spokesman said the Americans still control Hill 570, the highest peak commanding the northern approaches to Taegu. But he said the troops lost another hill in the same area.

The massive strike in the Inchon area by Rear Adm. John M. Hoskins' Task Force 77 began Tuesday with carrier planes ripping into Red air bases.

Tuesday and Wednesday they flew more than 400 sorties as they raked Red defenses for 210 miles —from Kunsan, 100 miles south of Seoul, to Pyongyang, 110 miles north.

Simultaneously on Tuesday, B-29s blew up the Communists' Kan arsenal, 15 miles northeast of Pyongyang. They returned Wednesday and bombed rail lines around Seoul while the warships bombarded the Inchon area.

Summary of Activities

Friday's early-morning activities around the war front in South Korea included:

1. The United States First Cavalry attempted to clean out Reds still remaining on one slope of Hill 570, eight miles north of Taegu.

2. The United States Second Division was trying to retake a hill lost yesterday to the Reds about halfway between Yongsan and the Naktong River. Yongsan is 28 miles south and slightly west of Taegu.

3. A regiment of the United States Twenty-fifth Division, defending the south end of the line from positions 35 miles west of Pusan, repulsed a pre-dawn attack. About daylight, the Communists began heavily shelling that sector.

[A later Associated Press dispatch from the Masan front in southern Korea said the North Koreans today drove two United States Twenty-fifth Division companies from their positions on the central sector of the southern front. A full enemy battalion struck in a banzai assault in each attack.

[The two attacks were in the area west of Haman, 10 miles northwest of Masan, where the Reds drove back an American platoon Thursday.

[The attacks were an attempt to consolidate the North Korean positions atop oft-exchanged battle mountain, bald peak commanding the surrounding countryside. The mountain has been in Red hands since September 6.—Editor's Note.]

The United States Navy announced that American and British warships and carrier planes of Task Force 77 blasted military targets along 210 miles of the west coast Wednesday in the war's heaviest attack of its kind.

The joint smash concentrated at Inchon, the port of Seoul, Red-conquered South Korean capital which is 22 miles inland.

On Thursday a powerful American battleship showed the flag to the foreboding Reds off the east coast while one of its escorting destroyers shelled the Communist-captured port of Pohang.

A North Korean military communique broadcast Thursday night alleged that shore defenses had sunk four American landing craft and three destroyers off Inchon and had damaged three other landing craft.

First indistinct versions of this broadcast heard in Tokyo made it appear that the Reds were claiming to have repulsed an amphibious landing. They did not make so flat a claim, but implied that a landing was the plan in their report on landing craft sunk.

In Washington, the U. S. Navy said it had no word that any landing craft participated, but said Red shore guns did damage three American destroyers superficially. A Navy spokesman also said the North Koreans obviously had improved their coastal defenses on the approaches to Seoul. The Reds overran that capital city—one of the keys to Korea—on June 28, three days after invading the south.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, United States Army Chief of Staff, told reporters in Washington that the United Nations beachhead in Korea was "as little as it's going to get. You can depend on that. From now on, we're going the other way."

This emphasized and echoed pledges in the field by Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker that a United Nations ground offensive was coming.

Walker said Wednesday his troops would take the offensive "in a very short period of time" and that the "enemy will fold as soon as we start forward and break the crust in front of s."

The Red radio—in addition to its report of battling Allied naval units off Inchon—kept up its usual reporting of "fierce fighting with stubbornly resisting" Allied troops.

Admit Counterattack

The Reds admitted the South Koreans, whom they always term "Syngman Rhee remnants," were counterattacking in the area south of Pohang, Angang and Yongchon. Red Army units, said the North Korean war communique Thursday night, were "dealing successive blows to the counterattack.

(AP) Wirephoto Map

FIRST OFFENSIVE—United Nations invasion forces today landed at Inchon, the port city of Seoul on Korea's west coast, Pohang (at extreme right of dotted line) and at Yongdok (north of Pohang). It was also reported that U. N. forces landed at Kunsan, 100 miles south of Seoul. Yesterday British and United States warships and carrier planes (ship symbols and bomb blasts) softened up the area with a heavy pounding ing enemy and are continuing their advance smashing enemy lines in all places."

From the allied beachhead lines came more specific reports.

On other parts of the southwest front elements of the Twenty-fifth erased a stubborn pocket of North Koreans who had fought for 48 hours against persistent United States attacks. The Americans failed to capture one platoon position on the central sector. The Americans counterattacked in vain after 500 Reds took the post.

On the other extreme of the beachhead line, Korean Republican forces shortened the salient in the Yongchon-Kyongju area to 3½ miles.

It was there that the Reds had torn a gaping hole in the northern wall 10 days earlier and for a while threatened disaster to the allied defenses.

W-4 Bus Line Extended; C-2 On New Route

The District Public Utilities Commission yesterday ordered the Capital Transit Co. to extend its W-4 bus line to run from Bolling Field northeast along Alabama ave. to Pennsylvania ave., se.

It also authorized CTC to discontinue its C-2 line between the Hillcrest area and Barney Circle. And it directed the transit company to extend the present W-2 line to cover the same general area by running between Shipley Terrace and Barney Circle. The route would be renamed C-2.

The order, which must be approved by District Court before it takes effect, may be the end of a year-long controversy between the PUC, CTC and the Washington, Marlboro and Annapolis Motor Lines Co., Inc.

In May, 1949, the commission ordered Capital Transit to extend its C-2 and W-4 lines to Pennsylvania ave. at Fairfax Village. WM&A protested that this would take business from its established lines on Pennsylvania ave. CTC wanted to extend W-4, but not C-2. On the basis of WM&A's contention that it had not been notified of the original hearing, District Court remanded the matter for further hearing.

In its order yesterday the PUC agreed that extension of the C-2 line would "reduce substantially" WM&A's business at Fairfax Village. It stated, however, that there is a need for the peripheral crosstown service to be offered by the extension of the W-4 line.

Remon Named For D. C. Land Agency Post

John A. Remon, vice president of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., was nominated by President Truman yesterday to be a member of the District Redevelopment Land Agency.

Remon

The nomination was referred to the Senate District Committee where it is certain to receive immediate approval and go to the Senate for confirmation. Remon's term will run until March 3, 1955.

With the telephone system since 1909, Remon came to the Washington office in 1925.

He has been active in civic affairs for many years and was one of the original founders of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club. He is a past president of the Criminal Justice Association here and former president and honorary president of the President's Cup Regatta Association.

The land agency, inoperative since its creation in 1946 for lack of congressional appropriations, is charged with managing the District's slum clearance program. Under the National Housing Act of 1949, the agency may soon receive money to start work.

Fast Driver Given Year, Fined $125

A 20-year-old Washington youth who led police a chase in nearby Prince Georges County and the District early Wednesday was sentenced to 12 months in jail and fined $125 on seven traffic charges yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court.

Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie told the youth, Richard F. Dickens of 4403 Quarles st. ne., he was imposing the sentences in the Maryland House of Correction to "break up such actions as yours on the public highways."

Dickens was sentenced to six months for exceeding 70 miles an hour, and three months each for reckless driving and unauthorized use of an automobile. He was fined $50 on a second reckless driving and unauthorized use of an automobile. He was fined $50 on a second reckless-driving charge and $25 each for exceeding 25 miles an hour, displaying improper plates and having no plates.

Green Blocks School Plan In Arlington

In the face of official legal advice to the contrary, Arlington Treasurer John Locke Green yesterday blocked a School Board attempt to pay for a $288,000 warehouse.

It was the second time in two weeks that Green had refused to honor the School Board's check.

In a letter to Assistant School Superintendent E. J. Braun yesterday, Green said he did not think the School Board could use school bond funds for the purchase, "notwithstanding" the opinion of Commonwealth's Attorney Denman Rucker that such a move would be legal.

When Arlington voters approved the 1947 school bond issue, Green wrote, "I don't believe . . . they intended to give the school board all of the leeway which they have assumed, and certainly not to use the money to buy a warehouse."

The warehouse, located at 1426 N. Quincy st., would be used to house vocational shops, administrative offices, and for storage.

Green had stopped an earlier school board attempt to pay for the warehouse out of school operating funds.

In his letter, the treasurer said it would be better now "to have the court take the responsibility for this purchase, should the school board pursue this course further."

Mt. Rainier Woman Bookie Fined

A conviction in the first gambling arrest made by Mount Rainier authorities following a change in administration last year was obtained yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court after 11 months and 10 court continuances.

Mrs. Marguerite Trautman, 37, of 3201 Perry st., Mount Rainier, was convicted of bookmaking and fined $500 by Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie.

The arrest was made October 31, 1949, after announcement of a "cleanup" campaign by Mayor Herbert W. Reichelt and Police Chief John W. Wise.

Chief Wise testified yesterday that a Washington woman made a horse race bet with Mrs. Trautman with marked money which was recovered in a subsequent raid. Mrs. Trautman pleaded guilty.

Court Asked to Sell Perry's Home

Two real estate brokers asked District Court yesterday to order the sale of the house of former District middleweight boxing champ Aaron Perry, 24, to satisfy the unpaid balance of a second trust.

Peter and William Calorimis charged that Perry, already in jail facing two charges of robbery, owes them $4939.99 on his house at 1635 Gales st. ne.

In the suit the brokers also noted that two other liens have been filed against Perry, one for the unpaid balance of a first trust, $1722.94, and another for $20,161.63, representing unpaid Federal income tax.

The Calorimis brothers asked the court to conduct the sale, first, to pay off the first trust, then the second trust, and finally the tax liens.

Corning on Council

Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of District schools, yesterday was appointed to a three-year term on the advisory council of the American Association of School Administrators. He was appointed by W. T. White, superintendent of schools, Dallas, Tex., and president of the association.

Democrats Lash Bow In Chapman 'Smear'

ing when we listen to men like you," Murray said. "I think it's an outrage that men like you are allowed to be at large."

Senator Herbert H. Lehman (D., N. Y.), his voice shaking with emotion, denounced Bow's attack on Chapman as "one of the rottenest things I have ever heard.

"I think it's completely fantastic," Lehman said, "that a seeker of political office like you should have the temerity to come here and make charges against Secretary Oscar Chapman, who has served his country with great devotion—charges based on absolutely nothing except innuendo and a desire to smear."

Senator Ernest W. McFarland (D., Ariz.) excused himself from the session with an explanation that he had an appointment with Chapman. He looked Bow in the eye remarked caustically: "I guess there will be no accusations because of it."

Dinner Meeting Cited

Bow had recalled that Chapman attended a 1944 testimonial dinner in New York City for Ferdinand Smith, whom he described as a "known Communist." He added that it indicated "close ties" be tween Chapman and Communists.

Lehman noted that the dinner sponsors included the late Basil Harris, then president of United States Lines; Stewart Iglehart, president of Grace Lines, and Philip Murray, president of the CIO.

"The close ties to which you refer are that Mr. Chapman went to this dinner," Lehman said. "If that denotes close ties, they also existed between known Communists and Mr. Harris, Mr. Iglehart and Mr. Murray, all men of great stature."

Murray asked Bow if it was true that the La Follette civil liberties investigating committee investigated him in the 1930s for "Fascism."

Bow said he was investigated—not for Fascism, but for organizing an "independent" labor union. He denied that it was a "company" union.

Committee Chairman Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), accused Bow of dragging in the name of Stephen Raushenbush, a Commerce Department employe, merely to get into the record some mention of Alger Hiss, convicted of perjury for denying Communist connections.

Bow said Raushenbush was the man "who employed and was responsible for Alger Hiss in the key position as counsel of the Senate Munitions Committee back in the 30s." He admitted that Raushenbush had no connection with Chapman.

Rattler Demonstrates How to Stop Speech

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 14 (AP).—Railroad executive Frank Lott paused in his address to Toastmaster Club members on the steps of the Spring Hill College library last night.

"I beg your pardon, gentlemen," said he, "but something seems to be crawling up my leg."

He was right. A small rattlesnake was beginning to move slowly up his pants leg. Club members helped him dispose of the reptile.

Loyalty Probes Slow Research, Report Says

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The Government's securtiy and loyalty programs are "unintentionally retarding" scientific progress by "fear of smear" it was reported last night.

The conclusion, that of a two-year study by Cornell University investigators, is scheduled to be published today in a 90,000-word report, "Security, Loyalty and Science."

In the report, the study director, Prof. Walter Gellhorn, charges that present security measures have hindered scientific teamwork, obstructed training of young scientists, and discouraged capable scientists from entering Government work.

The published report is the first of eight scheduled to be issued in Cornell studies of the impact on civil liberties of current Government practices intended to insure security and control subversive conduct. The project, under the direction of Prof. Robert E. Cushman, has the financial support of the Rockefeller Foundation.

The initial volume by Prof. Gellhorn, of the university's law school, notes that the present measures, while aimed at desirable objectives, have discouraged, "by fear of smear" in clearance procedures, some experienced scientists from entering secret research.

"Nervous hoarding" of new knowledge is no guarantee that it will remain secret, declared Gellhorn. He noted that "science throughout its history has been strongly marked by coincidence which emphasizes how unlikely it is that ideas can be made to flow in narrow, national channels."

Secrecy, declared Gellhorn, should be attached "unhesitatingly" to scientific and technological matters whose sole significance is military; it ought not be readily attached to others merely because "in some aspects" they have military significance," he concludes.

"Americans must constantly remind themselves that the brains of the universe are not providentially concentrated in this country," Gellhorn.

The author said that rigorous security measures to keep American scientific knowledge in one country would cost the United States far more than the defection of such persons as Dr. Klaus Fuchs and others spying against the Government.

"Because some (scientists) are unwilling to subject themselves or their families to inquisitions into their supposed opinions rather than their observable conduct, American scientific programs are often denied the services of high-spirited and badly needed men," he concluded.

Blondes CanRelax Now; Bats Prefer Brunettes

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Blondes can relax. Bats seem to prefer brunettes. Dr. Ralph S. Palmer, New York State zoologist, said in a radio address last night that when a bat gets into a person's hair, it's only looking for a place to hide.

Bill to Ban Wire Taps in D. C. Filed in Senate

closure of such acts" or prevent them from occurring.

Each application for a wire tapping warrant, under the measure, would have to be supported by an oath "setting forth fully the facts and circumstances" upon which the application is asked.

Officers also would have to inform the judge exactly what type of wire tap equipment would be used and the name of the persons whose conversations would be intercepted.

Wire tapping per se is legal in the District so long as the information thereby obtained is not divulged to others.

Neely said last night he hopes he can clear the bill through his Senate District Committee before Congress adjourns.

He and Darby also are preparing a Nation-wide wire tapping measure but do not expect to have it ready before the next session of Congress.

The Justice Department has been "alerted" on the provisions of the local measure but has not yet submitted a report on it.

Meanwhile, Senate investigators were running down new leads in an effort to piece together the volumes of conflicting testimony it has heard on reports that Shimon tapped the wires of Howard Hughes and his associates in connection with the 1947 investigation of the planemaker's wartime contracts.

The special grand jury investigating wire tapping turned its attention yesterday to the probe made two years ago by House subcommittee of questionable trade practices in the automobile markets.

Leading the witnesses before the grand jury were Henry A. (The Dutchman) Grunewald, reputed link between Capitol Hill and Shimon, and Grunewald's son-in-law, Jake Hartzell, who turned out to have been an investigator for the subcommittee.

Other witnesses included John T. M. Reddan, counsel for the subcommittee head by Representative W. Kingsland Macy (R., N. Y.) and assistant counsel E. R. Fergurson, jr.

The fifth witness was Edward Martin, of Princeton, N. J., and Washington, whom Grunewald described as his real estate lawyer.

Shimon has testified that he did some work for the Macy committee.

Hartzell told reporters he had been "ordered" not to say anything about why he had been called and what his relation was with Grunwald. He refused to say who gave him his orders.

Reddan and Ferguson declined to comment. All three said they had not been subpenaed.

Grunewald refused to talk to reporters after being closeted with the grand jury for 80 minutes. Martin spent 40 minutes before the grand jury, and at one point was dismissed to bring back "a little piece of paper."

The special grand jury will not meet today, Government officials said, but the probe will continue.

Md. Vote Eligibles Increased 60,000

BALTIMORE, Sept. 14 (AP).—Approximately 867,000 Marylanders are eligible to vote in Monday's election—or about 60,000 more than were entitled to cast ballots in the 1946 Democratic and Republican State primaries.

In the two counties near Washington:

Official figures show Montgomery has 37,424 Democrats, 16,480 Republicans and 2950 others this year, an increase of 5110 Democrats, 5010 Republicans and 496 others—or 10,606 voters—over 1946 primary totals.

An official 1949 total of 49,420 was reported in Prince Georges, while the breakdown of 33,000 Democrats, 15,000 Republicans and 1420 others is approximate. There are 4002 more registered voters in the county this year than in 1946, when 29,986 Democrats, 14,449 Republicans and 983 others were eligible.

In the State, there were more than 886,000 names on the registration books when the lists were closed for the primary, but about 19,000 have registered as independents or members of minor parties and therefore do not qualify for a ballot Monday.

Using exact figures where available and approximations supplied by elections officials in Baltimore City and some of the counties where exact counts have not been complied, the 1950 primary election registration figures show:

An overall total of 886,518, compared with the 1946 figure of 807,020.

Election supervisors are predicting a turnout Monday of between 30 and 35 percent of the eligible voters.

Tydings Defends Stand on Red Probe

BALTIMORE, Sept. 14 (AP).—Senator Tydings (D., Md.) today defended his stand on the recent loyalty investigations of State Department personnel.

His opponents—both Democrats and Republicans—for the Senate seat have been strongly critical of his part in the hearings.

Tydings labbed this criticism part of a "popaganda barrage" of "almost unbelievable" extent to which he has been subjected in this campaign.

He cited a letter from FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover saying the FBI files which were reviewed by the Tydings committee were intact, despite assertions by Senator McCarthy (R., Wisc.) that the files had been "raped" and damaging information deleted.

Monaghan Attacks Foreign Aid Plan

BALTIMORE, Sept. 14 (AP).—Hugh J. Monaghan, 2d, campaigning for the Democratic nomination of the United States Senate, today renewed his attack on the country's foreign aid plan with criticism of the loose policy of Marshall Plan nations toward Russia and her satellites.

Monaghan asserted in a statement that England exported more than $6,800,000 worth of electrical machinery to the Soviet Union during the first four months of this year—a 50 percent increase over such export to Russia for the corresponding period of 1949.

The candidate, trying for the seat now held by Senator Tydings, said his source was a "leading senator" who had received his information from the Commerce Department. He did not identify the senator.

'Progressives' Again Hit at Loyalty Oath

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 14 (AP).—Progressive Party candidates today made a new attempt to kill the loyalty oath in Maryland's anti-Communist law.

Four Progressives filed a suit in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court asking that the Secretary of State accept their certificates of nomination without oaths.

Three were among the five party members who filed a similar suit in Baltimore on August 30. Two of them subsequently signed the oath, and the Secretary of State's office said today their certificates have been accepted.

Brossard Nomination

President Truman was well advised to reappoint Edgar B. Brossard to the Tariff Commission. The nomination had been held up for many weeks and rumors had spread that it would not be made. Dr. Brossard was an economist for the commission before he was advanced to a commissionership 25 years ago. Since then he has gained a vast knowledge of the country's economic problems and an invaluable experience in fact-finding and laying the economic groundwork for governmental policies. In addition to his work at the commission, he served on the executive committee of the interdepartmental group responsible for the scientific and cultural cooperative program—the forerunner of Point 4. He was also a delegate to the Geneva and Havana conferences at which the charter for the International Trade Organization was worked out. The high quality of his work is attested by the indorsements given him by many agricultural, business and labor organizations and by members of the Senate and House of both political parties from the 11 Western States.

While the Tariff Commission is a bipartisan body, its work calls for economists and expert fact-finders. That Dr. Brossard, a Republican member, has worked primarily as an economist interested in the national welfare is indicated by the widespread bipartisan support accorded him. This is no time to lose such experienced men from the public service. It is to be hoped that the Senate will confirm the nomination before adjourning.

Taxes And More

By next June defense spending will be proceeding at an annual rate of at least 30 billion dollars, and the President has warned the public that in the following year much more will probably be spent for defense. However, the pending interim tax bill is expected to yield about 4.5 billion dollars of additional revenue—a sum that will more than offset the inflationary effect of increased military outlays in the next few months while the program is getting under way. Moreover, Senator George envisages a "second installment" of taxes at the next session of Congress to produce an additional seven billion dollars of revenue, chiefly by means of an excess profits tax, along with an expansion of excise taxes and the closing of more tax loopholes. Assuming that the pending tax bill is passed in time for the Treasury to begin collecting new taxes on October 1, the Government will be able to make a real start toward fighting inflation without handicapping delays. And the proposed follow-up tax increases would go a long way toward putting the country on a pay-as-you-go basis that would remove the major cause of inflation. That is deficit financing, which increases the supply of money in consumer hands.

Governor Szymczak of the Federal Reserve Board said recently: "The job that direct controls can do, which is to cushion the pressure of military demands on supplies of goods and services and distribute available civilian goods at equitable administered prices, can only be accomplished if some of the civilian demand is drained off by higher taxation and if new private credit creation is prevented." The Federal Reserve Board has already taken steps to tighten restrictions on installment credit, and the defense production act authorizes the Administration to regulate real estate construction credit in the case of private financing, although this authority is unfortunately limited to new construction and major additions and improvements in existing structures. While these credit control measures are restricted in scope, they will slow down the rate of credit expansion, and in conjunction with the allocation of scarce materials used by manufacturers of durable goods and the construction industry will reduce inflationary pressures in these particular fields. Commercial banks are also responding to appeals to restrict nonessential credits that inflate over-all purchasing power. These supplementary forms of control, together with prospective increases in taxes, afford encouraging evidence of a public awareness of the need for an anti-inflationary tax and credit control program that will keep over-all prices reasonably stable, although it will not, of course, prevent the prices of some scarce commodities from rising in the absence of direct controls.

The most serious threat to the pay-as-you-go program comes from the mercurial temperament of the American people. At the moment, alarmed by the revelations of the weakness of the defense establishment, they are prepared to make sacrifices to build up the country's defenses. The great danger is that a change of the tide of battle in Korea may induce a feeling of complacency that will put Congress under pressure to reduce defense outlays prematurely and create public opposition to the heavy taxes made necessary by such outlays. To yield to such pressures would be disastrous, since failure to carry out the expanded military program would encourage Russia to more determined aggressive policies, while a failure to employ rigorous fiscal and monetary controls to halt the creation of new purchasing power would lay the foundation for continuous inflation. Wage and price controls, if invoked, might create the impression that inflation had been licked, but eventually the American people would discover, as they did after World War II, that the reckoning had only been postponed. That is why it is important to convince them that (1) the security needs of the Government call for much larger expenditures for a long time to come, regardless of the outcome of the Korean conflict, and (2) that a pay-as-you-go policy or an approximation thereto is the only means of paying for defense that will prevent inflation.

Hodge-Podge

The internal security legislation adopted by the Senate on Tuesday combines at least three radically different and essentially contradictory approaches to the Communist problem. It includes: (1) the President's recommendations to protect the country from the real and immediate threat of espionage and sabotage by Soviet agents; (2) the Kilgore-Douglas proposals to protect the country from the contingent, yet nevertheless serious, threat of Communist fifth column activities in case of war, invasion or insurrection; and (3) the Mundt-Nixon-McCarran provisions to protect the country from the remote and wholly imaginary threat of subversion by Communist propaganda. The hodge-podge bill into which all these measures were scrambled for reasons of political expediency deserves sober and realistic analysis.

The existing laws which forbid and penalize espionage and sabotage have loopholes which urgently need plugging. The President sought to plug them by asking Congress to extend the statute of limitations on espionage and to make punishable the disclosure of defense information as well as defense documents; to authorize the promulgation of regulations for safeguarding defense plants, facilities and installations; and to provide for the supervision of deportable aliens whose actual deportation is blocked by the countries from which they came. These are sensible precautions entailing no trespass on personal liberty. We believe, as we urged in a recent editorial, that Congress should have enacted these measures, concerning which there was no responsible dispute, in separate legislation. Unfortunately, they are now tied up with the highly controversial sections of the omnibus bill.

The Kilgore-Douglas proposals deal with a danger that does not now exist but that may arise in the near future. It was reported just the other day that the director of the FBI had told a congressional committee he would at once arrest some 12,000 suspected enemy agents if the United States should become involved in war with the Soviet Union. The number seems fantastically high, but there is no doubt that some suspect citizens as well as aliens would have to be rounded up and detained pending clearance in the event of war. Since there is now no legislation to authorize such executive action, it would be sensible to provide it in advance and to provide at the same time, as the Kilgore-Douglas measure does, a rational procedure for judgment and review of every case on an individual basis.

The Kilgore-Douglas proposals as actually incorporated into the omnibus bill would be put into effect only in case of war, invasion or insurrection. The original version would have made them applicable additionally in case of an "internal security emergency" jointly declared by Congress and the President. The Senate did well, we think, to eliminate this uncertain contingency in accordance with an amendment offered by Senator McCarran. Quite needlessly, in our opinion, it also adopted an amendment by Senator Ferguson stating that nothing in the detention provisions should abridge any right guaranteed by the Fifth and Sixth Amendments or suspend habeas corpus unless in conformity with the Constitution. This seems sheer surplusage.

Admittedly there are grave constitutional questions involved in legislation which authorizes detention on the ground of mere suspicion of an intent to commit espionage or sabotage. Such authorization is a drastic measure repugnant to American traditions. But it is meant to meet an unprecedented danger threatening the survival of the American society. The validity of the measure would have to be determined by the courts in the light of the danger. We think it preferable in any case that it should be undertaken in conformity with considered legislative authorization instead of on the basis of executive expediency. The Kilgore-Douglas proposals represent a conscientious, careful attempt to reconcile security and freedom.

Senator McCarran's contributions to the omnibus bill—including the Mundt-Nixon Communist registration requirements and the Senator's own provisions for an asbestos curtain shutting out all aliens with inflammatory ideas—have no direct relation to security at all. These are measures that would do no injury to spies and saboteurs but would do irreparable injury to rights of expression and association. These are the measures which prompted President Truman—correctly and courageously, in our opinion—to declare that he would interpose his veto. They are the measures which led an honor roll of seven Senators to vote against the bill. They are so dangerous and corruptive that they overweigh all the commendable protections that the bill provides and make a presidential veto imperative. The United States needs protection against Communist treachery, but this country has no occasion to fear Communist ideas.

Rising Robots

As if worrying about mortal invaders in the years ahead wasn't enough, there is now the threat of armies of robots to push us out of our jobs in the next era of peace. The mechanical and electronic "brains" we have been hearing so much about would take over factories in a big way in any full-scale war—and probably hold them thereafter. This is the prediction of Dr. Norbert Wiener, professor of mathematics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and author of several books on the new industrial revolution. Dr. Wiener sees factories becoming largely automatic in the next 10 to 20 years. If this change comes gradually, attendant social upsets will not be so great. But, in any major war, manpower needs would put the robots to work in operating industry in from three to five years. When and if comparative peace prevailed, returning troops would find in their jobs not women but robots, who wouldn't go home where they belonged. This, predicts Dr. Wiener, would cause the greatest unemployment problem this country has yet had.

However, without expecting the worst, Dr. Wiener advises our giving some thought to making room for the inevitable and all-encompassing robots. Among his suggestions are two appealing ones: the long English weekend and an adaptation of the French businessman's early retirement to tend a garden. Another was made by a Denver housewife at the recent conference of the National Council on Family Relations. She thought it was high time men were educated to use their coming leisure to function as more efficient husbands and fathers. She might have added these were among the few remaining jobs robots couldn't muscle in on.

Shenker Episode

Morris A. Shenker's refusal to serve as a member of the Democratic National Finance Committee saves official Washington from the embarrassment of an incredible blunder. Mr. Shenker is the lawyer for several clients under investigation by the Kefauver Committee. His clients are reported to include some of the best-known horse-race bettors in St. Louis as well as the Pioneer News Service, distributor of racing information. Of course, Mr. Shenker ought not to be held responsible for the activities of some of his clients. The public habit of assuming that a lawyer must necessarily be of the same stripe as his clients often results in injustice. Nevertheless, the impropriety of appointing to the finance committee of the party in power a man who represents clients under investigation by a congressional committee is patent.

A good deal of credit goes to Senator Kefauver, head of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, for speaking out against the Shenker appointment. His stand strengthens the hope that the Kefauver Committee will deal candidly and thoroughly with any connections it may find between gambling interests and politics. The public is keenly alive to the menace of lawless elements reaching out to control or stay the hand of governmental agencies, and only a fearless exposition of the facts would conform to the demand for action in this sphere.

Dr. Rustin's Service

Dr. John W. Rustin, for 14 years pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, is now saying his farewells as he prepares to take over the pastorate of Belmont Methodist Church in Nashville. His sermon on Sunday will terminate his service. His going will be a great loss to the community as well as to his congregation. The latter will miss his courageous and progressive preaching, which regularly filled his church to overflowing, so that there was scarcely standing room left. And this city will be deprived of a man who gave himself wholeheartedly to the city's civic and religious life. It was as "John" that he was known to many people—testimony to the personal imprint he made upon them, and the affection in which he was held.

Son of a Georgia circuit rider, Dr. Rustin has retained a fervor of spiritual conviction and a warmth of human sympathy that have been the most impressive witnesses of the faith he expounds. Today when pulpits are tending to become lecture platforms and the churches to lose themselves more and more in administration, Dr. Rustin has demonstrated that it is possible to be both preacher and pastor to a great congregation and to minister personally to many outside it.

STUDY OF PAINTING

In that quiet place all light
Mellows the green and gold of amber;
There through an open door the afternoon streams in,
Flooding the hallway,
Gilding the tall oak chest.
Outside is a world of life and summer,
A world of meadows and trees;
Held for us now in tones that are more than color,
In shades that are better than the gush of leaves.

Schoeppel's Charges

The finger is pointed so often and constantly at the mythical Communists in our State Department, and other Government agencies, that we entirely overlook the fact that often the worst enemies of our Government are in the Congress of this country. Naturally at this point, one expects Joe McCarthy to find a Communist under his desk, in his bed, or in his coffee cup, and the average sane person is no longer interested in his trumped-up charges.

Senator Andrew F. Schoeppel, Republican of Kansas, with his irrational charges on the floor of the Senate regarding Mr. Oscar Chapman, Secretary of the Interior, shows himself to be entirely ignorant of basic, elementary facts. Since the manner of swearing Mr. Chapman in to his high office seems to be the same procedure that is used in swearing Senators in, one can only come to the conclusion that he is following his party's usual line in denouncing all persons, particularly political opponents who happen to differ with him in opinion, as Communists—or at least Communist sympathizers. Of course, one must make the headlines; so lacking the ability to do it in some constructive manner, the only other way is to attempt to destroy the character of some unsuspecting public servant. Small wonder that so few brilliant or even intelligent men, are seeking high public offices.

Senator Schoeppel should be required to prove his libelous statement in court. I do not believe that because a man happens to win a seat in the Senate, he should immediately look around, don his cloak of Congressional immunity, and proceed to make irrational, unfounded, slanderous charges against his political opponents.

The name of Mr. Oscar Chapman is well known, but unless one happens to be a Kansan, Schoeppel's is probably unknown, or at least unfamiliar. In my opinion we are rapidly drifting into a state of government where we need laws to protect average citizens from irresponsible characters in our Congress.

Excess Profits Tax

The opponents of the immediate imposition of an excess profits tax argue that without careful consideration (which will take six months or until after elections) the tax is likely to result in inequities. It may result in inequities for certain industries or companies where the base period or normal profit is hard to define. In World War II, the Congress tried to eliminate inequities by the enactment of Section 722 of the Internal Revenue Code.

This great concern for equity in dealing with property rights can bring nothing but bitterness to the heart of the veteran and men who will soon be called to serve.

To the lawmakers on the Hill I say, "Equity demands no less than a 100 percent excess profits tax against corporations and individuals. If such a plan cannot be fully instituted now, apply it to the extent possible and fill in the loopholes later. Apply it now, before you appeal to the people for reelection. Let the 'human rights' of the prophets be as much your guide as the 'tax equities' of the tax lobbyists."

Echo in History

In rereading, after many years, Botsford's Ancient History, I discover that neither Stalin nor Lenin is the father of the Communist ideology. The early Romans' educational aim in family and in public life was "to repress the freedom of the individual in a nation of brave warriors and dutiful citizens." Botsford adds that ". . . though he [the Roman citizen of the third century, B. C.] was willing to sacrifice his life for the good of the state, he was equally ready to enrich himself at the expense of his neighbors. . . . Their hard, stern souls knew neither generosity nor mercy. . . . [They were] narrow, harsh, and unlovable. Greed was one of their strongest motives to conquest." This seems to parallel the current situation in the U. S. S. R., with its little group of coldly calculating 14, pulling strings from the Kremlin.

It is interesting to note further that the original use of "veto" is in strange contrast to its' damning power in the hands of the Soviet delegate. The "tribunes," who represented the "plebeians" or common people in the fifth century, B. C., were allowed to sit at the door of the senate-house and listen to the proceedings therein. "If the consul proposed a measure that displeased them, their 'veto,' shouted through the door, caused the measure to be dropped." How tragic that this simple word, once used in a struggle for equality of rights, is now perverted in an effort to thwart means to that end.

Puritanism Vs. Freedom

In her column of September 9, Malvina Lindsay correctly points out the unwholesome sex situation existing in the United States today—of how sex is constantly being flaunted in the movies, in magazines, in beauty contests, and elsewhere.

Miss Lindsay is, however, incorrect in her analysis of the cause of the situation. The situation is really the result of too little freedom rather than too much. The iron grip of Puritanism has to some extent been loosened in this country during the past few decades; but the opinion is still widely held in the United States that sex is something fundamentally wicked, and thus it acquired the glittering allure of forbidden fruit.

In countries in which sexual freedom is generally accepted, the people do not feel the need to indulge in the synthetic, "pin-up-girl" method of sexual release.

"Faith Of Our Fathers"

Recently you published a letter praising "Faith of Our Fathers" and urging everyone who possibly can to see it. May I add my enthusiastic endorsement? In many years of theater-going, my husband and I have witnessed few productions so profoundly stirring. It is superbly staged, the acting is impressive, the dancing lovely. And it is certainly a revelation of a too-little understood phase of our country's past—the bitter post-Revolutionary days when Washington stood almost alone to keep this great Nation united.

No real American could fail to be moved by it. What a pity that only those fortunate enough to be in Washington can see it. And what a greater pity that everyone so fortunate has not taken advantage of it! We have been twice, and weather permitting, are going a third time. MRS. L. M.

Mission to the Vatican

In his letter published September 8, Cardinal Spellman notes that The Washington Post is "one of the few papers" that have indorsed a mission to the Vatican. He eagerly seconds your editorial observation that we have relations with "other states whose heads have religious as well as secular functions." Though the observation is as accurate—and as obvious—as "two and two makes four," and though it has apparently been seized upon by the Cardinal as the essence of your endorsement, what has it to do with determining the appropriateness of a Vatican mission? Would any responsible observer deny that our official relations with the secular-religious "heads" are based exclusively upon their secular functions? Or that the rank of our representation is determined exclusively, under normal conditions, by the social significance inherent in the people and material resources over which those "heads" exercise legitimate secular authority?

Since the first proposition eliminates the Pope's religious authority as a basis of recognition, let us consider his secular qualifications. To grant him even a technical secular authority, we must accept the Lateran Treaties as being internationally valid—for it is from them alone that the Vatican derives its "sovereign" status. Even then, we must realize that—if it is a sovereign state—it is the only such state situated entirely within the boundaries of another. However, for the sake of discussion, let us give him the benefit of the grave doubt and assume his technical secular status — and then examine that status in the light of the second proposition. The Vatican State boasts an area of 108 acres (1/6 of a square mile) and a "population" of a bit over 500. Only the possession of an important portion of the world's supply of some vital resource (such as uranium), or of a monopoly of some indispensable scientific or industrial process —neither of which the Vatican claims—could have "social significance" to such secular characteristics. Remember that the relatively sprawling and populous Lichtenstein, with an area of 65 square miles and a population of 11,000 souls, does not rate one of our lowest-rank representatives—yet, the Pope was permitted to claim for Myron Taylor "the rank of Ambassador!"

Why don't the advocates of a "Mission to the Vatican" come clean? Why doesn't the Catholic Church confess that it wants to fatten—to the detriment of other religions — at the trough of political prestige? Why doesn't The Washington Post admit that no competent and disinterested writer would advance so flimsy an argument as that hailed by the over-anxious Cardinal? And why don't our professional politicians confess that their interest in the "Mission" stems from their fear of the Vatican's influence over its followers within America?

Johnson Vs. Dean Acheson

By Marquis Childs

Foreign Policy Fight

NEW YORK.—Almost everyone who has talked with Secretary of State Dean Acheson during the past week or 10 days has been aware of a new air of confidence and resolution. It clearly grew out of a belief that he would be able to carry out a line of policy free of the constant nagging of a dispute that could not be resolved.

Now the resignation of Louis Johnson as Secretary of Defense has finally and publicly ended the dispute which has had such a hampering and harmful influence. Coming in the midst of the Big Three Foreign Ministers' meeting and on the eve of the sessions of the North Atlantic Council and the U. N. General Assembly, it has caused a stir. As a member of one of the foreign delegations put it: "It is a little odd to arrive and hear the sound of the tumbril in the air and then in the next moment to see a head rolling down the street."

But perhaps under the circumstances the President and his Secretary of Defense could not control the timing of the climax. In any event, the air is cleared, Johnson took his bittter medicine like a man and there is a prospect of a truly effective diplomatic-military team to carry out American policy.

On that team would be Acheson, the diplomat, and General Marshall, the soldier-statesman. Working with them as coffaborator and co-ordinator would be Robert A. Lovett, who served as Undersecretary of State when Marshall was Secretary. These men know and understand each other. Their relationship would be one of mutual trust and respect, which certainly cannot be said for the condition that has just been ended with Johnson's resignation.

INEVITABLY, the dispute between Johnson and Acheson has been exaggerated both in kind and degree. It originated, in my opinion, in Johnson's boundless ambition which is part of a temperament that has a limitless, vaunting quality.

If a military-diplomatic team was essential to carry out foreign policy, then Johnson meant to be the dominant and determining partner. This inevitably produced clashes. It had a delaying, harassing, baleful effect on the formulation of American foreign policy.

It extended to large things and small. Thus when Prime Minister Nehru visted Washington a year ago, Johnson intervened in the arrangements. He had been sent by President Roosevelt to India in 1942 to try to reconcile the British and the Indian viewpoints as the threat of violent overthrow and a disastrous internal war seemed very real. That mission was spectacularly unsuccessful and Johnson was recalled after he had defied the Indian climate and had accordingly suffered in health.

Acheson, insofar as I have been able to discover, tried very hard to avoid enlarging in any public way the Acheson-Johnson feud. On the rare occasions when he saw newspapermen privately, he refused to be needled about Johnson or his differences with the Secretary of Defense.

In recent months Acheson has been exceptionally seclusive. Newspapermen have often complained that he was inaccessible. One reason may well have been that he wanted to avoid any appearance of contributing to the controversy.

HIS ASSOCIATES were under strict orders not to discuss any phase of the dispute on Capitol Hill. This was in striking contrast to the Johnson camp which busily carried the war into every theater.

In a luncheon discussion with several Democratic Senators one of Acheson's most loyal subordinates disobeyed the long-standing order. This was in response to concern expressed over such a split, with its constant reverberations, as the congressional campaign approached. In two letters calling for Johnson's resignation, the freshman, Representative Anthony F. Tauriello of New York, put into words what many other Democrats were thinking. The picture given by Acheson's associate showed so clearly the unhappy consequences of the division that the pressure grew to bring it to an end as quickly as possible.

Johnson spoke feelingly of the enemies he had made in 18 months as Secretary of Defense. Politically speaking, they were mostly among the Democrats. While, as Congressman Tauriello pointed out, his friends were for the most part among the Republicans. In part, at least, this has reflected the division over basic policy as represented by Acheson on the one hand and Johnson on the other.

It was an impossible situation in every way. Fortunately, it has been ended. Acheson's enemies will continue to cry for his scalp. But he should have a chance to carry out the policy in which he has always believed—the strengthening of western Europe as the heart of the western security system.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The Code Of Harry Truman

WHAT IS PAST is past, and there will be no dancing on the political grave of Louis A. Johnson in this space. But the process which led up to President Truman's dismissal of Johnson casts an interesting light on the future, and it is therefore worth describing. Truman's decision to replace Johnson with George C. Marshall was actually taken some ten days ago.

Until that time, Truman had no intention of dismissing Johnson. The President's loyalty to his subordinates is so fanatical that the fact that Johnson had given him disastrously bad advice carried no weight with him. Mere stupidity, however tragic its consequences, does not constitute an infringement of the Truman code. But about ten days ago, Truman finally became convinced that Johnson had indeed violated the Truman code in two distinct ways.

In the first place, the President received overwhelming evidence, from sources which he trusted, that the reports that Johnson was undercutting Secretary of State Dean Acheson in order to protect himself, were true. In the second place, Truman also received evidence that since Korea, Johnson had been privately preaching the inevitability of war, on Capitol Hill and elsewhere, and had been hinting broadly at preventive war. Indeed, the evidence clearly pointed to the conclusion that the preventive war speech of Navy Secretary Francis Matthews (the only one of the three secretaries who has been a Johnson man) was actually inspired by Johnson.

THE FIRST point angered Truman, whose code demands loyalty returned for loyalty given. But the second point equally infuriated him, for rightly or wrongly, Truman still sincerely believes that general war can be avoided, and sincerely abominates preventive war talk. When Truman was at length convinced that the Truman code had been violated by Johnson on both counts, he made up his mind at once. He telephoned Marshall, and asked him to come to the White House.

Marshall had played little part in the speculation about Johnson's possible successor. But in fact Truman's turning to Marshall, whom he venerates, was almost instinctive in this situation. Marshall came privately to the White House towards the middle of last week, and was then reluctantly persuaded by the President to take the defense post. Johnson's suggestion of Marshall as a successor, contained in his letter to Truman, was of course merely an agreed device for putting as good a face as possible on what Truman called "terribly regrettable circumstances."

So much for the past. As for the future, certain conclusions are obvious. One is that Dean G. Acheson will be Secretary of State for as long as he wishes to remain. Another is that the MacArthur-Johnson policy for the Far East, which involved making Formosa a permanent American base, is dead so far as this Administration is concerned. And another is that the assumption that war is inevitable, or that a preventive war is desirable, will play no part in the Truman Administration's policy-making.

FINALLY, there is another fact which the shadow cast by Louis Johnson has hitherto obscured. This is that on the military and foreign policy front a remarkably strong team has been abuilding. In the White House itself, Truman now has two extremely capable advisers, W. Averell Harriman and Sidney Souers, both of whom are trusted implicitly not only by Truman but by the State Department and throughout the Administration.

In the vital intelligence field, the very able Bedell Smith will soon take over as C.I.A. chief. In the Pentagon, Secretary of the Air Force Thomas Finletter and Secretary of the Army Frank Pace have already registered real successes, and in Under Secretary John McCone, Finletter has a particularly able deputy. Stuart Symington is well qualified to run the defense effort on the home front, particularly in his almost magical ability to deal with a recalcitrant Congress.

Finally, it is highly probable that Marshall will ask Robert A. Lovett to become his Undersecretry of Defense—Lovett may already have been appointed when these words appear in print. Marshall, Acheson and Lovett have the utmost confidence in each other, and have long been accustomed to working in harness. This will mean a State and Defense Department no longer eyeing each other with mutual beady-eyed suspicion, and working constantly at cross purposes, but working instead intimately together to promote American security.

In short, at least in the foreign and defense field, what may be in prospect is something that this country has not known for at least a year and a half — disinterested leadership. It may turn out to be a miracle, but in view of the nightmarish atmosphere of Washington in recent months, this prospect is rather like the sight of an oasis in a desert to a man dying of thirst. Thus at least there is good reason to be thankful to Louis Johnson for violating the code of Harry Truman.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson will remain at his post, despite Republican statements that he, too, should be dismissed.

He will decide whether to sign or veto the pending Communist-control bill after it comes from Congress and has been analyzed.

Mr. Truman's announcement about Japan was contained in a prepared statement, which follows:

"It has long been the view of the United States Government that the people of Japan were entitled to a peace treaty which would bring them back into the family of nations. As is well known, the United States Government first made an effort in 1947 to call a conference of nations holding membership in the Far Eastern Commission to discuss a peace treaty with Japan. However, procedural difficulties at that time and since have prevented any progress.

"The United States Government now believes that an effort should again be made in this direction, and I have therefore authorized the Department of State to initiate informal discussions as to future procedure, in the first instance with those governments represented on the Far Eastern Commission, the ones most actively concerned in the Pacific war. It is not expected that any formal action will be taken until an opportunity has been had to assess the results of these informal discussions.

"The policy in regard to a Japanese Peace Treaty is in accord with the general effort of the United States to bring to an end all the war situations. We have long pressed the U.S.S.R. for an Austrian treaty and we are exploring the possibility of ending the state of war with Germany."

The Far Eastern Commission is made up of 13 countries that took part in the Pacific war against Japan. Russia has boycotted the sessions since last January as part of her campaign of protest against representation on the commission of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist China.

In 1947, when the first effort was made to negotiate a Japanese peace treaty, the United States proposed that all nations represented in the Far Eastern Commission should have a part in the peace conference. Russia objected, and insisted that the treaty be drafted by the major powers. These would include Russia, the United States, Britain and China—meaning, in Moscow's view, Communist China.

Plans for drafting a treaty were dropped at that time, but the United States has continued to work on its own idea of what a Japanese peace treaty should be.

At yesterday's news conference, a reporter asked Mr. Truman what would happen if Russia continued to block consideration of a peace treaty. Would the United States, he asked, go ahead with other nations in drawing up one?

Mr. Truman said we would cross that bridge when we came to it.

Asked whether the rearming of Japan would be discussed in drafting the peace treaty, he said that this whole matter would be discussed by the conferees.

The confusion about Germany arose when Carl W. McCardle, correspondent of the Philadelphia Bulletin, asked Mr. Truman if the Government was "exploring the possibility of a German peace treaty." The President had said nothing in his prepared statement about a German peace treaty. The impression was left in some minds at the end, however, that he was exploring the idea of having the foreign ministers of the Big Four consider a German peace treaty at a later meeting.

Press Secretary Ross later issued the following statement:

"In the statement issued by the President at the press conference today, he said that 'We are exploring the possibility of ending the state of war with Germany.'

"This statement had no reference to an ultimate peace treaty with Germany, which is not under consideration at this time, but to the legal state of war which still exists in that country.

"This is one of the subjects now being discussed by Mr. Schuman, Mr. Bevin and Mr. Acheson in New York, and envisages only actions which might be taken by those powers in occupation of Western Germany."

The very first question asked yesterday, after Mr. Truman had read his announcement about Japan, had to do with Secretary of Defense Johnson. A reporter recalled that the President had said only recently that Johnson would not resign and was not an "embarrassment" to him. Would he tell the news conference what caused him to accept Johnson's resignation?

Mr. Truman said the letters exchanged by him and Johnson spoke for themselves. He had no further comment; the incident was closed.

"Mr. President," a reporter said, "in his Chicago speech Chairman Gabrielson (of the Republican National Committee) said, and I am quoting: 'President Truman should have dismissed Secretary Acheson along with Secretary of Defense Johnson.' Have you any comment on that?"

Mr. Truman, looking directly at the reporter, said that Acheson was still Secretary of State and would remain Secretary of State.

In response to another question, Mr. Truman said he expected that the Secretaries of Army, Navy and Air Force would submit their resignations. That was customary, he said, but it didn't mean that the resignations would be accepted.

He said that Gen. George C. Marshall, the prospective Secretary of Defense, would be consulted about this, of course.

The President recalled that last week he told reporters that if the Mundt-Nixon anti-Communist bill, as originally proposed, had come to him, it would not be signed.

But of course, he continued, he couldn't pass on legislation until it did come to him. He said that the Mundt-Nixon bill had to be rewritten in conference because the Senate and House were in disagreement on it. When the bill reached the White House, he said, it would be analyzed, and then he would say promptly what he was going to do with it.

The joint Senate-House Conference Committee considering anti-Communist controls met for three hours yesterday but recessed without coming to an agreement. Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), sponsor of the Senate bill, predicted the differences would be ironed out today.

Asked about the Maine elections, Mr. Truman said he was very much pleased. The Democrats, he said, made tremendous gains in Maine; they cast a larger vote than they ever had, larger than in 1948. And the Republicans, he said, cast a smaller vote than in 1948. Therefore, he said, it looked very, very encouraging to him.

"Mr. President, encouraging for what?" asked Mae Craig, correspondent for Maine newspapers.

Mr. Truman, laughing, said he wanted a Democratic Congress this fall, and he thought the Maine election meant a Democratic Congress this fall.

Asked whether he thought repeal of the Taft-Hartley law would be an issue in the 1950 campaign, the President said he thought it was an issue in Ohio right now. Obviously, he was referring to the battle between Senator Taft, who is seeking reelection on the Republican ticket, and Joseph T. Ferguson, his Democratic opponent.

Mr. Truman said that Senator Frank Graham (D., N. C.), who recently was defeated in a primary election, had been suggested to him for the presidency of the American National Red Cross. He pointed out, however, that General Marshall has not yet resigned from that post.

with $4,535,400,000 recommended by the House. The 25-million-dollar Senate increase is for purchase of real estate and construction.

Should the Senate version be enacted, military appropriations this fiscal year would reach more than 31 billion dollars, with further outlays of 8 to 10 billions expected before the year is out.

The Senate move to cut off aid to countries shipping strategic materials to Communist countries was adopted after three hours of debate on two amendments, one by Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.), and one by Senator Lodge (R., Mass.). While Senators appeared practically unanimous in the desire to act on reports that funds supplied by the United States were being used to manufacture munitions for export to Russia, there was violent disagreement on the method.

Wherry's amendment, which was finally adopted with some changes, sought to place a flat prohibition on aid to such countries. The Lodge amendment provided merely that the Secretary of Defense would be consulted by the Economic Cooperation Administrator on the question of exports by ECA nations. In case the Secretary and the Administrator could not see eye to eye, the President would make the final decision.

Proponents of the Wherry amendment contended this simply restated the law as it now existed and carried no teeth to enforce compliance. Supporters of the Lodge approach declared the Wherry amendment tended to stagnate trade between Eastern and Western Europe, to prevent import from the East of strategic materials and to impose dictatorial restrictions on the commerce of the Nation's allies.

Peace was restored and Lodge withdrew his amendment after Wherry accepted changes which limited his own amendment to war materials and it was pointed out that the Secretary of Defense, in the end, would decide what was strategic and what was not.

The Senate bill not only includes funds for military items requested by President Truman since the outbreak of war in Korea, as does the House version, but some additional funds asked by the President after the House bill was passed. Among items of equipment provided for in both bills are 5333 new aircraft of all types.

House Favors Profits Levy

mittee, said he could see no substantial difference in the House and Senate provisions on the issue.

Millikin told a reporter that the intention under the Senate provision is to start work at once so an excess profits bill can be ready for action early in the next session.

Earlier in the day, an effort by Eberharter to rivet a six-billion-dollar excess profits levy directly into the pending revenue measure was ruled out of order. It would have been in the form of a directive to House conferees to insert the levy in the bill.

Speaker Rayburn held, however, that parliamentary rules bar the conference committee from writing new subject matter into the measure.

Congress has shown increasing concern for several weeks over the issue of skimming off war-swollen profits. Speakers have mentioned reaction at home against the delay. Some leaders, including Senator George, counseled deliberation in preparing such a levy on business to insure against possible damage to the economy. They noted the tax could be made retroactive to any date.

But prior to the House vote, Representative Boggs (D., La.) observed: "the people of the United States, all the people, expect universal sacrifice," and he added:

"Those of us who go home and say we raised individual and corporation taxes, but didn't have time to act on excess profits—then you have got yourself an issue on the platform."

Representative Mansfield (D., Mont.) interjected: "If we don't attend to this matter, the people are going to attend to us."

Chairman Doughton (D.-N. C.) of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee said study of an excess profits levy might begin right after completion of action on the $4,508,000,000 tax bill.

Much of that measure already has received unofficial approval of the House-Senate conferees who, to save time, have been meeting without waiting for their official appointment.

The conference committee has approved provisions for increasing income taxes on 50 million individuals by $2,700,000,000, and increasing corporate normal taxes by $1,500,000,000 a year. The higher corporation tax would cover half the profits of 1950.

The individual income tax would raise the withholding rate from 15 percent to 18 percent after exemptions (about $11 a week each.)

The conferees now must settle differences over other changes, principally involving the plugging of loopholes in the tax laws.

Taft Opposes Marshall Choice

appointment of a military man as defense chief.

The 1947 proviso for civilian control of the armed forces was written as a safeguard against a military dictatorship.

Sun-tanned and apparently in excellent health after a fishing vacation in Michigan, Marshall yesterday called for the biographies of about 60 military and civilian officials in the Defense Department.

Informants emphasized this did not mean that Marshall was planning a major shakeup. They said he simply wanted to familiarize himself with their background and characters.

It has been five years since the five-star general left the Pentagon in the brief-lived hope that he was going to retire and settle down at Leesburg, Va.

Taft Sees Acheson Strengthened

Without elaboration, Senator Taft gave newsmen the following statement outlining his views on Marshall:

"President Truman sent Marshall to China to induce (Nationalist) Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek to accept Communists in his government.

"The Far Eastern section of the State Department, under the Truman administration, has always been friendly to the Chinese Communists, at least in its leanings.

"Marshall's appointment would strengthen Secretary of State Acheson's hand in relation to the Chinese Communists, and for that reason I am dubious about the appointment."

Representative Hoffman similarly recalled Marshall's 1945-46 mission to China—a mission on which the general by his own account, sought to save China from chaos by bringing leaders from both the Comunist and Nationalist camps together into the government.

Hoffman inserted a statement in the Congressional Record pinning the blame for the Korean war on what he described as Marshall's policies.

"It is known that he (Marshall) favored the Communists in China, that as a result of the policies advocated by him the Communists took over Manchuria and China. The attack on South Korea may well be considered one result of that policy," Hoffman said.

Loyalty Not Questioned

The Michigan lawmaker said he did not question Marshall's loyalty, in any respect, but he declared:

"While our men are fighting the Communists in Korea, it would seem to be folly to appoint as Secretary of National Defense a man who is responsible for the present control of China by the Communists, who has never, so far as I know, given any indication that he has changed his views."

But Senator Morse vigorously championed Marshall for his "leadership and knowledge of world affairs," and he told newsmen:

"It is my opinion that Marshall and Eisenhower are needed in developing an American defense program if we are to get our country in a position quickly enough to meet any threat of a Russian attack."

Asked if he had any particular job in mind for Eisenhower, Morse replied:

"I have, but I'm not saying."

Oil Men Hear Warning From Coal Leader

By S. Oliver Goodman

Profit by our experience and avoid industry-wide bargaining, a coal industry leader yesterday warned oil men.

Moody

"The price may be high, but no price is too high," Joseph E. Moody of Washington told the forty-eighth annual meeting of the National Petroleum Association in Atlantic City. Moody is president of the Southern Coal Producers Association, whose headquarters are in the Munsey Building.

Moody, in an address on "Coal Contracts and Confusion," described step by step the course of the coal industry over the last decade. He said it has been forced to give up its position and freedom in the country's competitive economy, and that frequently small concessions paved the way for fateful trends. He explained:

"The willingness of one company to use expediency in its relationship with its employes and the union can eventually lead it to a place where it can no longer control its destiny in a competitive system."

Moody also pointed out 18 concessions granted by the Government during the periods when it controlled the mines from 1943-47.

To emphasize the difficulty of stopping or reversing a trend in labor relations, Moody told the fable of the skylark who traded his feathers one at a time for worms. When it was too late, the skylark realized it had lost its ability to fly.

Business Outlook

Marshall's Prestige Will Help Truman Fill Key Defense Jobs

By J. A. Livingston

PRESIDENT Truman's appointment of General Marshall as Secretary of Defense is a double asset. It closes the breach between the Department of Defense and the Department of State and it lifts the tone of the entire Administration and so aids the President in his current manhunt.

The President now is working to fill key jobs authorized by the Defense Production Act. The chance of serving side by side with the former Chief of Staff and Secretary of State will overcome the reluctance of some men to get embroiled in the Battle of Washington. The mere fact that Marshall has responded to the President's call stamps the present armament program as an emergency.

Livingston

Even so, manning the top spots won't be easy. Any prospective job-taker must ponder: How long will I be there? Too long? Or not long enough?

Some men want to come to Washington now to get in the set-up early. Then they'll be strategically placed for bigger jobs as the war establishment increases. That type of long-pull planner doesn't want to get to Washington just in time to go home. A quick victory in Korea could engender a wave of easy confidence: We've shown Joe Stalin, now we can relax! When Lieut. Gen. Walton Walker says we're soon going to "take the offensive," it's good for the morale of his troops on the South Korean battlefront, but it's not so hot for the recruiting of civilian aides on the home front.

HOWEVER, the men the President wants are usually not those who fear the emergency won't last long enough but the men who fear the defense effort will go on and on. They have personal affairs they want to give their attention. They're cynical when the President or a White House aide cajoles: "It's only for a short spell, three to six months, just to get things organized." In June, 1940, the late William S. (Big Bill) Knudsen took a 90-day leave of absence from General Motors Corp. to serve on President Roosevelt's National Defense Advisory Commission. He wound up in Washington for the duration, becoming director general of the Office of Production Management (predecessor of WPB) and later a lieutenant general in the Army.

The jobs now being offered are a sufficient deterrent to good men. The President hopes to check the wage-price spiral by fiscal and monetary means—by raising taxes and curbing credit expansion so as to siphon off excess purchasing power from individuals and businesses. He doesn't want to use his power to put ceilings on prices and wages.

THAT MEANS that the head of the Economic Stabilization Agency, the Director of Price Administration and the members of the Wage Stabilization Board will have to use what OPA Administrator Leon Henderson called the "jawbone technique." By loud talk, Henderson, for a while, stayed price advances. President Truman's executive order requiring all businesses to keep records of their prices between May 24 and June 24 is a subtle sort of jawbone. It instills fear of future price comparisons.

The economic stabilizers will have to "reason" labor unions out of demanding wage increases, corporations out of price increases. Their only warrant is their own moral judgment. To succeed, they'll have to invest their offices with their own personal prestige rather than deriving prestige and power from their offices. That puts an extra-high premium on quality.

And it is entirely possible that the early birds will be expended quickly. They may make too many enemies and mistakes finding out what is and isn't feasible. Those are the risks. But they're risks that have to be taken when men are fighting and dying. And the appointment of General Marshall suggests that more and better men will be ready to assume them.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Sept. 14 (AP).—Mills in the Northwest bought a little wheat today, giving that grain a boost of around a cent on the Board of Trade. The rest of the market, not sharing in the mill demand, moved listlessly along to a mixed close.

Aside from the mill buying, demand in wheat was nothing to get excited about. However, the selling on improved Korean war news, noticeable in yesterday's market, did not reappear in any volume today.

Wheat closed ¾ to 1¼ higher; corn, ⅝ lower to ⅛ higher; oats, ⅛ lower to ¼ higher; rye, ¾ to 1 cent higher; soybeans, 1 cent lower to ¼ higher, and lard, 5 to 30 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Bergson Resigns Justice Post As Anti-Trust Law Prosecutor

The White House announced yesterday the resignation of Herbert A. Bergson as assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust law prosecutions, effective September 30. Bergson gave no reason.

In accepting the resignation, President Truman said:

"The work of the anti-trust division in the Department of Justice has always been of vital interest to the Nation. I have long felt that vigorous enforcement of the anti-trust laws was essential to preservation of an expanding free economic system.

"Your able administration of these laws has on many occasions come to my personal attention, and I want you to know that I am very mindful of the fine contribution that you have made to our Government during your service in the Department of Justice."

Bergson will engage in private law practice here, the Justice Department announced.

A native of Boston, the 41-year-old attorney has been with the department 14 years. He became head of the antitrust division in June, 1948.

Commissioners Meet Tuesday on Budget

District Commissioners will begin a series of meetings with their department heads Tuesday to consider department budget requests for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

District budget officials said each department head will appear before the Commissioners to justify money requests that will be made public in a two-week series of releases starting September 18.

Chevy Chase Junior College May Reopen

Chevy Chase Junior College, which closed down after graduation last June, may reopen in September, 1951, if alumnae provide financial and moral support, Miss Frances R. Brown, college president, said yesterday.

The womens' junior college failed to reopen this fall. Officials blamed high operating costs and low enrollment.

In letters to all alumnae, Miss Brown asked their support for a survey to see what additional college facilities are needed to keep an enrollment high enough for financial success.

Speech Distortion Can Develop

Faulty Hearing in Child May Not Be Obvious

(This is the fifth in a series of six articles describing recent medical progress in the treatment of deafness and blindness. The series was read and approved by Dr. Marvin Fisher Jones, surgical director of the department of otolaryngology, Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, and Fred Heffinger, superintendent of that hospital.)

By Kay Barrington

CHAPTER FIVE

An elderly person can learn to accept deafness calmly. To a 10-year-old child, it brings terror, uncertainty and desperation.

Mary Jane was one of three million children in this country with a hearing impairment. Like all children, from the time she was able to "play back" sounds, she began to talk.

Unfortunately, Mary Jane spoke as she heard. Since she could not hear normally, her parents' speech was distorted to her. As a result, her reproduction of sounds was faulty.

Because she could neither speak well nor hear well, her parents and teachers decided that Mary Jane was a "backward" child. Since the ear is so sensitive, a loss of hearing can exist without it being obvious. So Mary Jane was not aware of her subnormal hearing. Her parents and teachers also failed to notice it.

Branded as a "queer child," she gradually withdrew from her playmates. She became painfully shy and reluctant to assert herself. Her difficulties in school made her increasingly afraid of making embarassing mistakes; finally it was easier to be inattentive.

As a last resort, her mother took Mary Jane to a doctor. The tell-tale symptoms were there to see, but only a scientific hearing test such as the audiometer could accurately detect and measure her hearing loss.

An examination revealed that Mary Jane was afflicted by a hearing impairment called clinical otosclerosis. This medical term is used to describe a bony growth which forms in the middle ear. Such a growth blocks sound from reaching the auditory nerve.

Had Mary Jane lived in one of the 20 states which have laws specifically requiring hearing tests for school children, her faulty hearing might have been discovered sooner. Yet in some of these states, the requirement is only partially observed because of scanty personnel, equipment or funds.

Tests Are Limited

Since the law does not prescribe the type of tests to be used, many children are tested with watches, tuning forks and low whispers. Unfortunately, such improvised techniques show up only the obvious cases.

Mary Jane was one of the few who can be helped by the only ear operation known to medical science—the Lempert Fenestration operation. This operation is the most important surgical advance in treating deafness yet discovered. It involves cutting a "window" in the middle ear's bony growth so that sound can reach the inner ear.

Mary Jane's operation was successful. Within a few months after her recovery, she was able to take her place on an equal footing with other children her age, both in school and at play.

Such a handicap can prove to be too much for an adult, also. Bill was a veteran of the Alaskan campaign. Due to the rigorous living conditions in Alaska, it was impossible for him to get proper restorative treatment for his ear injury. By the time he returned to civilian life, deafness was well advanced.

With a wife and child to support, he started to look for a job. The effort involved in being interviewed by prospective employers took a heavy toll, emotionally. Bill was afraid, and rightly so, that potential employers might mistake his deafness for stupidity. They did. He began to dread job interviews, became sullen.

Even more, he dreaded having more doctors "tamper" with his ears. In desperation, he finally went to the Conservation of Hearing Clinic at the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

He, too, was suffering from clinical otosclerosis. Now, thanks to the Lempert Fenestration operation, he can hear. Bill is now a successful businessman. His wife and children don't have to be supported by the government or by a welfare agency.

The Hearing Foundation, Inc., urges parents to watch for seven signs of hearing loss in their children. If they exist, the child should be taken immediately to an ear specialist. They are:

Inattentiveness.

Unusual listening postures, such as head tilting.

Excessive fatigue without apparent cause.

School difficulties—poor grades.

Medical treatment, given immediately, can clear up or arrest most hearing difficulties. If deafness is allowed a head start, little can be done.

Even when the loss is too severe for medical treatment, parents can start children early in speech and language patterns, the problem of education is easier. This training will be easier and more successful if the child wears a hearing aid.

Juvenile Delinquency Show on Air Tonight

By Sonia Stein

THE BOY has a clear, young voice. He sounds like anybody's son. What he says is this: "I've always had the feeling that I wasn't wanted, that my people didn't care for me—always had fights with kids when I was young and I've grown up not being able to associate with people to any extent. And I just kept on going like that, and it's been just one mess."

Wershba

The boy's name isn't made known. He's one of the young men in reform school whose voice is heard on the report on juvenile delinquency which WTOP will broadcast tonight at 10:30. The second in a series of public service broadcasts which Joe Wershba of the WTOP-CBS newsroom has prepared, this program is provocative in just the way his first show was. The first one, on sex crimes in Washington, was reprinted in the Journal of Social Hygiene. Like tonight's show, it was a symposium in which experts tried to explain the cause and possible cure of the problem, with all of them acknowledging all along the way that the causes are many and the cures are for the most part unknown.

In that way both shows are provocative. This second show is also dramatic in a way the first one could not be. It uses the voices of youngsters trapped in this unpleasantness, a method of reporting contemplated for the sex offenders show and dropped as unsuitable in that instance.

ON THE PROGRAM which will be broadcast tonight there are several peaks of dramatic effect achieved by using the voices. None of the interviews is scripted, none of the interviewees is pushed into saying anything he doesn't feel just to give the show pathos or drama. It hasn't been necessary.

With patience, Wershba has collected 7½ hours of words on his tape recorder and sifted from these talks such incisive reports on the probable cause of juvenile delinquency as might make a master writing craftsman proud. But they come, ad lib, from the hearts of the boys who know.

One boy comments: "Parents don't show their kids as much affection as they should. A kid goes home. He gets hopped upon about this and that. They ride him about not keeping his clothes straightened out and everything. If the kid is going to be perfect he wouldn't be a kid any more. Most of them think their son has got to be just so. Kids ain't gonna be that way. If they can't get any comfort or affection at home, it seems like they ain't gonna get it any place else. Why try?"

Another boy didn't have a home. He lived in an orphanage. One night he ran away with some other boys and when they were brought back they were whipped. Hard? "After the first five, we couldn't feel nothing. So it didn't matter."

THERE'S STRAIGHTFORWARD comment from the experts, too, uncluttered with professional jargon. One of them acknowledges that parents are doing as good a job as they know how. "I firmly believe the job of raising children is much more difficult than it was 40 or 50 years ago. We have many technological improvements." We have moved out of the home. We have got to face the problem. It's happened."

Another one, a chaplain at a reform school, points out that "we're gradually beginning to understand that the evil involved—the sin involved—is not the act, but the attitudes which produced the act. We're beginning to learn how to deal with the attitude, rather than the act."

Gallinger Asks $5000 for New Therapy Unit

Gallinger Hospital has acquired the staff and has the space to make it the physical therapy and rehabilitation center of the area, it was learned yesterday.

All the hospital lacks is equipment—about $5000 worth—to get the program started, said Dr. Joseph F. Fazekas, hospital chief of staff.

The money or its equivalent in needed equipment would keep the program going from now till next July 1, the earliest date the hospital can expect District budget help, Dr. Fazekas said.

"Just let us know who has a few dollars, or diathermy machines, or ultraviolet lamps, or baths, or shoulder wheels, or pulley-weights, stationary bicycles, work benches and tools," he declared. "We're not too proud to beg; this is too good for Washington to lose."

Noted Physiatrist Named

He disclosed that the United States Public Health Service has already guaranteed the salaries of a noted physiatrist, Dr. Josephine J. Buchanan, who set up the now nationally known Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center at Fisherville, Va., and of three new physical therapists.

The longe-range program is aimed at putting bedridden patients on their feet and teaching them a trade. Some 240 patients whose continued care costs the hospital about $12 a day each could be benefited by the program, Dr. Fazekas said.

Dr. Fazekas disclosed that Public Health Service's share in the program is a $16,000 grant, and that the hospital is asking $35,800 to finance the new project in its 1951-52 budget.

Creation of the new department at Gallinger Hospital, the Department of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, was accomplished without budget-juggling because of the Public Health Service grant, it was explained. The new department becomes a major division, along with those of medicine and surgery.

Big Savings Contemplated

Up until now, it was explained, Gallinger's physical therapy and rehabilitation program consisted of the work of one therapist, with little equipment.

Dr. Fazekas referred to a recent survey made at Gallinger Hospital by Dr. Donald Covalt, of New York's Bellevue Hospital. The Dr. Covalt's report stated that setting up the new department could result in tremendous savings to the District.

The District, the report pointed out, is spending $48,180 a year alone on 11 patients at Gallinger who are paralyzed from the waist down.

The Gallinger Hospital rehabilitation plan for its own patients will be geared in with present services of the District Rehabilitation Service, a Federal agency, according to David Amato, the agency head. Amato said yesterday he was assigning one of his top vocational guidance counselors to work at the hospital.

To Be U. S. "Pilot Project"

Amato said some of the plans for the liaison were worked out Monday in a conference of Dr. Buchanan, Dr. George Sharpe, medical consultant for DRS, Dr. Joseph H. Gerber of USPHS, and himself.

Under the coordination program, Amato said, the agency's counselor will interview Gallinger patients before their discharge and arrange for any needed home continuation of physical therapy, guidance and vocational training.

Dr. Fazekas said the Public Health Service aid was granted so that the Gallinger program could become a "pilot project" for the Nation.

Appointment of Dr. Buchanan was made unannounced last week and she already has lined up most of her staff, it was said. The new director comes here from the Fisherville institution.

Patient candidates will include sufferers from heart disease, tuberculosis, arthritis, polio and other crippling diseases.

"Some of these patients," Dr. Buchanan said, "have been in Gallinger one or more years. They can be put back on their feet, and could earn a living. They would no longer be wards of the city, and their cost to the city would be less."

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz

• U. S. Debates Moving Jobs Out of Town or Requisitioning Offices

Something must happen—and soon—to make more office space here available for expanding Government operations.

With the plan either dead or postponed to disperse key Federal agencies in areas surrounding this city, these two proposals are being debated by top Federal officials:

1. To move upward of 10,000 jobs here in several agencies to other cities the country-over, and,

2. To have the Government requisition several office buildings here now owned and tenanted by private concerns.

Both plans, in fact, may become necessary to provide office space here if the President sets up several new defense agencies as is being rumored.

About 25,000 jobs in a score of different agencies were moved out of this Capital City during World War II to make room here for the booming war agencies. About half of the employes in the transferred agencies stayed here and shifted to war work.

Federal employment in the executive branch here is now about 215,000. It hit a high of 287,000 during World War II. The estimate of how many new employes will be hired here changes daily. You can hear any figure from 15,000 to 50,000, depending on who's doing the guessing. And any figure now is really a guess since the number of new employes the Government will hire here or in any other city will depend on international developments.

PROMOTIONS: The Senate yesterday backed up its Appropriations Committee in dropping the House rider that requires promotions, transfers and reinstatements in classified jobs to be made on a temporary basis.

The Senate approved a substitute rider aimed at channeling laid-off employes to defense jobs, but at no increase in either salary or grade.

In answer to scads of questions, the House rider is now effective, and it has been since September 2 because of an unusual legislative situation. However, the Senate rider is retroactive to September 1, and it would allow all promotions, transfers, and reinstatements made since that time to be handled in a regular manner if it eventually becomes law.

NOTES: Edward H. Levi, counsel for the Celler committee investigating monopolies and formerly first assistant in Justice's anti-trust division, has been appointed dean of the University of Chicago Law School . . .At Public Buildings, Eugene W. Goodin has been promoted to chief of the mechanical and electrical engineering section to succeed P. J. Furlong who retired. Lewis R. Medison was appointed assistant chief of the section . . . At Federal Housing, the procedure and examination section and the field examination unit have been abolished. The activities of the two units have been transferred to the assistant commissioner for field operations.

At the Naval Ordnance Laboratory, cash awards for worthy suggestions have been made to: Dr. Benjamin L. Snavely, Mrs. Alma B. Waters, John Brown, Ellis H. Scott, David Olsen, Clarence A. Rowzee, Thomas Waters, Arthur W. Obenchain, Donald R. Clark, Albert T. Finnell, Carol Gehrman and William C. Freeman . . . At Federal Communications, Thomas M. Stevens, a radio engineer, is retiring the end of this month . . . The Civil Service Commission has sent Federal agencies a new memo urging them to hire displaced career employes . . . The Senate yesterday passed over the bill to boost the salaries of postmasters and postal supervisor, and it also killed the House-approved bill to direct the Postmaster General to call off his economy campaign.

EDITORIAL: Hundreds of patriotic and well-intentioned persons are coming here to offer their services to the Government for the duration of the crisis. And too many of them are being given the brush-off by the Civil Service Commission and the Defense agencies.

The Defense Department has even gone so far as to refuse to accept applications from able people whose talents it screams for a few days later. Civil Service gives the heave-ho to many persons who seek information on jobs.

DPs' Dream Comes True—Complete With Apartment

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

A dream of America became a three-dimensional reality yesterday for a 27-year-old displaced person and his family.

Reality began with the sight of the New York skyline from their ship, it roared with the sound of the train that brought them to Washington, it grew quiet and peaceful in a furnished apartment provided for them in Alexandria by Americans extending a friendly hand to strangers.

The drabness of bomb-pocked DP barracks was an ocean and a lifetime away in Germany for Roman Bodnar, his wife, Anna, 21, and their daughter, Olha, 3, when excitement succumbed to fatigue and they went to sleep in America for the first time last night.

They slept in an apartment at 115 S. Patrick st., Alexandria. It was provided by the Council of Church Women of Alexandria, the Bodnars' sponsor through Church World Service, which is one of the major resettlement agencies cooperating with International Relief Organization in finding homes for refugees.

Welcoming Committee

The blond, weather-reddened family was met at Union Station by Mrs. Albert Smoot, vice chairman of the Alexandria Council of Church Women; Mrs. S. A. Greenleaf; Mrs. M. B. Simpson, and from the IRO Washington office, Mrs. Ruth Safran Tropin.

His blue eyes sparkling, Roman Bodnar stood outside the station and looked about him: The streets are so broad! The White House and the Capitol are not one but two buildings! I thought they were one building because they are white. The city, it is as beautiful as Kiev used to be.

Roman Bodnar came from the Polish Ukraine, as did his wife. Both were snatched by Hitler for slave labor, but they did not meet and marry until 1946. Olha was born a DP.

In a way, he was retracing his father's steps. His father had come to the United States in 1913, returned in 1920 to get his wife, and was never able to get back here. Roman thinks they are alive, but he has not heard from them in years.

Her Parents in N. Y.

Mrs. Bodnar is more fortunate. Her parents, among the 918 DPs to arrive on the IRO ship yesterday, went to a farm near Albany.

"Who lives here?" asked Olha, looking at a room in the Alexandria apartment. Told it was hers, she hurried eagerly to the doll in the toy baby carriage. She wheeled the carriage, maternally kissed the doll, and her mother helped her to tuck it into a little cradle for the night.

"Look, Anna," said Roman. "An electric stove" And a bilingual conversation began as Mrs. Greenleaf and Mrs. Tropin began to explain the gadgets on the stove. Roman Bodnar, the tailor, and his wife had started to learn about America.

In the ice box there was food. On a table flowers. In Washington, there was a tailor-shop job awaiting Bodnar.

The apartment had been freshly painted by boys from one of the Alexandria churches. Rugs were coming.

"It restores your faith," said Mrs. Smoot, "the way people have been willing to help."

Andrews Base Called at Limit Of Capacity

Andrews Air Force Base is virtually "filled" and cannot be further counted on to relieve air congestion here.

This testimony was given yesterday before the Airport Use Committee by a Bolling Base officer who also disclosed that flying hours out of Bolling have been reduced from 11,395 to 8000 in the past year.

The reduction has been accomplished, Lieut. Col. Nils Anderson, deputy chief of staff for operations of the headquarters command at Bolling, testified, through the transfer from Bolling to Andrews in nearby Maryland of three categories of flying:

1. All reserve flying, which was moved from Bolling to Andrews in August.

2. Fifty percent of "individual training"—100 hours flying a year by area pilots to maintain proficiency.

3. Flying by foreign nationals—numbering about 50 foreign pilots such as air attaches in Washington.

The addition of these activities, said Colonel Anderson, has taxed Andrews' runway, parking, ramp and housing facilities just about to the limit.

The committee, set up by the Civil Aeronautics Administration to examine airport use in several American cities, also heard Navy testimony that removal of reserve training from the Anacostia naval air station would be "very expensive."

Lieut. Comdr. Kenneth R. Miller, operations officer for naval air reserves at Anacostia, testified that naval reserves fly little during the week but mostly on weekends.

Howard Drake, chairman of the Board of Trade's aviation committee, reaffirmed the board's recommendation of July, 1948, that Bolling and Anacostia bases be closed.

Rich Blocks Old Stone House Bill

Representative Rich (R., Pa.) last night blocked final passage of the bill authorizing the Government to purchase the Old Stone House at 3051 M st. nw.

Objection to the heretofore noncontroversial measure came when Representative Peterson (D., Fla.) asked the House to accept the Senate version which does not place a limit on the purchase price.

Rich said: "No one knows how much it will cost. It may be a million dollars."

Peterson assured his colleague the Government probably could buy the Georgetown landmark for not more than $100,000.

Unless Rich withdraws his objection, the bill will go to conference to resolve the differences between the House and Senate versions, Peterson said.

Policeman Wins Retrial Of Theft Case

Suspended Police Private Warren G. Farren, convicted last June of stealing two air-conditioning units from a housing project, won a new trial in District Court yesterday.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff ordered the new trial after hearing evidence that the Government's chief witness, a watchman at the project, had a serious criminal record dating back to 1928.

The witness is Sherman T. Calloway, who lives at the project, the Berkshire, 4201 Massachusetts ave. nw. His record was unknown to defense attorney, T. Emmett MacKenzie, at the time of the trial, and was not brought to the attention of the jury.

Judge Holtzoff said yesterday that Calloway may have been telling the truth when he testified that Farrar and his partner, Pvt. Henry J. Martin, were seen around the project "innumerable times" and Farran said "I kind of figured on getting me one of these (air conditioning units)."

But, Judge Holtzoff said, the jury had a right to know Calloway's background, in order to weigh his testimony.

The judge said he had been informed that Calloway was convicted in 1928 of breaking into a railroad car in Kentucky, of possessing burglary tools and of mail and train robbery in Georgia. He had received sentences totaling 22 years, Judge Holtzoff said.

The jury took only 30 minutes to convict Farran on June 29. Charges against Martin were dismissed for lack of evidence.

Judge Holtzoff congratulated U. S. Attorney John C. Conliff for furnishing MacKenzie with a copy of Calloway's record.

Prisoner Found Hanged in Cell At Precinct 13

Ross Morrill Lees, 37, was found hanged in his cell at the Thirteenth Precinct at 2 p. m. yesterday.

He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital where he was pronounced dead by Dr. C. A. Quarles. The body was removed to the morgue.

Police said Lees, who lived at the Congressional Country Club where he was employed as a dishwasher, was arrested on an intoxication charge at 9:10 a. m. yesterday at 15th and V sts. nw.

When Lees was checked at 1:40 p. m. all appeared normal but when Pvt. Philip W. Broome looked in the cell at 2 p. m. he saw Lees suspended by his neck from a steel bar seven feet from the floor.

'Politics' Charged at Milk Parley

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 14 (AP).—A former member of the House of Delegates charged here today that "as long as the State Milk Commission and suppliers of milk can be made a political football and used for new purposes in the Newport News area" a "crusade" against the agency will continue.

Furman Whitescarver, former delegate from Roanoke County, made his statement near the close of a two-day State-wide hearing on milk prices and costs of milk production in the 33 markets under commission control.

Whitescarver arose to state that he wanted "the record clear" concerning a statement made yesterday be Lee Ford, an attorney who represents consumers in the Newport News area. Whitescarver appeared before the commission as counsel for several Roanoke city dairies.

Yesterday Ford sought to prevent the hearing from being held, contending that the commission should hold its meeting in each market area where the people affected by its decisions would have a better opportunity to be present.

"Mr. Ford, an attorney for a labor union at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., said this was not a hearing but 'a denial of a hearing'," Whitescarver declared. "He used the language of a 'kangaroo court'."

Whitescarver stated "I purposely attended all of this hearing because that charge was made in advance and I stayed here to see whether that charge would be true or false and Mr. Ford didn't. He made his charge in advance and then didn't stay to find out whether it was true or false."

The Roanoke attorney contended that yesterday's unsuccessful maneuver was "part of a crusade" against the milk commission which had been carried before former Governor Tuck, a legislative committee, the State supreme court and Governor Battle.

Whitescarver's remarks enlivened a hearing which generally followed yesterday's pattern when testimony was heard from milk people in western Virginia markets.

Today producers from Eastern markets told the commission that rising milk production costs made some price relief desirable. Their contention that it was costing them more to produce milk was born out by a report which resulted from a study made at the request of the commission by R. G. Connally, extension dairyman at Virginia Tech.

$290,000 Total

Senate Votes Civil Defense Fund for D. C.

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Senate approved a $290,000 civil defense fund for Washington yesterday.

The money, representing the full amount asked for by the District Commissioners, was part of the 17-billion-dollar supplemental appropriation bill. The measure now goes to a joint Senate-House conference.

Since the House voted only a token $30,000 for civil defense here, the final figure remains to be worked out.

The big appropriation measure contained numerous other funds for the District and for other area projects. The Senate granted $2,461,454 of the $2,846,952 originally asked by the District heads, an increase of $565,938 over what the House allowed.

Chairman McKellar of the Appropriations Committee tried on the Senate floor to add the $139,800,000 asked by President Truman to begin a Government dispersal program but he lost on a point of order. The committee had refused the money but Kellar pleaded that the Senate include it so something could be worked out in conference with the House.

Calls Dispersal "Fantastic"

Senator Cordon (R., Oreg.) called the dispersal plan "fantastic" and said it was "born of hysteria." He said it should be fully considered by a legislative committee before any money is voted and he made the point, sustained by a ruling of the chair, that McKellar's proposal amounted to legislating in an appropriation measure.

These other District funds were contained in the big bill in contrast to the House action:

District: Increase of $18,000 for Health Department case workers; increase of $71,000 for Gallinger's outpatient program; increase of $68,500 for repairs at Upshur St. Tuberculosis Hospital; increase of $38,100 for the Rent Control administrator; increase of $70,000 for the child day-care centers; increase of $40,000 to pay for the Park Police five-day week.

Airport Land Purchase

The bill also contains $2,150,000 to buy the land and cover the engineering work for the new Washington area civil airport, expected to be located in Fairfax County, Va.

A three million dollar item in the Senate bill will permit resumption of work on the Baltimore-Washington parkway. This item arrived too late for inclusion by the House.

While the Senate refused to go along with the overall dispersal program at this time, it did grant three million dollars of the $3,300,000 asked by General Services Administration to rent additional office space in the District to house new Government employes, mostly military and Selective Service.

Williams for Maritime

President Truman yesterday nominated Robert W. Williams of Maryland to be a member of the Federal Maritime Board for the term ending June 30, 1954.

Plan Urged To Increase M Street Traffic Load

NCPPC Proposal Would Improve Eastern Approach To Georgetown

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

A plan which would improve the eastern approach to old Georgetown and increase the traffic capacity of M st. has been advanced by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The plan requires the cooperation both of Congress, which must agree to a land-swap, and the American Oil Co.

Planning Director John Nolen, jr., said yesterday he thought the latter, and probably the former, would be forthcoming.

The NCPPC wants to transform the present site of the old Georgetown Boys Club into a park area, with parkland covering the apex, and a proposed extension of a gasoline station covering the base of the triangle.

They advanced the plan after Amoco tried to buy the club building and use that area for an extension of its filling station there. Both NCPPC and Georgetown citizens groups have opposed the purchase.

The case is now before the District Board of Zoning Appeals and the objections will be withdrawn, Nolen believes, if Amoco agrees to take land now owned by the National Park Service, located in the rear of the Amoco station, and use it for the station extension.

Nolen said the channelization of M st. eastward would be substantially increased if the park area is created at the apex of the triangle. He said the capacity of the storage lane for cars waiting for a left-hand turn, would be increased by 50 percent.

The Planning Commission yesterday heard John Ihlder, head of the National Capital Housing Authority, explain his agency's plans for development of 4000 low-cost housing units within Greater Washington within the next two years.

Ihlder said the low cost housing is planned for the Northwest, Southeast and Southwest sections of the city.

Businessmen's Chest Fund Quota Raised

Washington business firms will have to raise $200 more per firm this year to meet the unit's quota in the Community Chest campaign.

That is what John S. Hayes, unit chairman, told workers at the first Community Chest Federation campaign luncheon yesterday of Business Unit I employes.

Hayes, who is manager of The Washington Post's station WTOP, said only 82,000 of a potential 160,000 persons gave to the Business Unit drive last year. He said 128,000 donors would be needed in the 1951 campaign.

To get the larger number of donations, Hayes said the unit wants to try for a day's pay from each giver, and for 90 percent participation by firms.

Hayes said there must be larger corporate gifts, bigger gifts from firm executives, and wider employe participation to meet the unit's $1,590,500 goal.

The plea for larger gifts and more givers also was stressed as workers in the campaign's Government unit met for their first luncheon yesterday.

The campaigners were addressed by Unit Chairman Oscar Chapman, Secretary of Interior, who announced appointment of Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, as vice chairman.

General Hershey remarked, "I understand one of the reasons I was appointed vice chairman is that some people think I exercise influence over people under 26."

Enrollments In City Schools Jump 5214

Enrollments climbed to 91,927, an increase of 5214 above the opening-day figure recorded Monday. A further spurt in enrollments is expected next week.

For the first time students in the Negro divisions outnumbered those in the white. Yesterday's enrollments showed 46,159 Negro students and 45,768 white.

A year ago there were 92,043 students in the District public schools, 47,797 white and 44,246 Negro.

The school figures, however, are not considered a true reflection of the population ratio of white and Negro children in the city. Thousands of students in private and parochial schools are not taken into consideration.

	1950	1949
Teachers College
White	419	534
Negro	556	520
High Schools
White	7349	8302
Negro	4820	4566
Vocational High
White	849	922
Negro	888	904
Junior High
White	9308	9469
Negro	9972	9405
Elementary
White	27,800	28,386
Negro	29,535	28,432

The Capitol page school yesterday had an enrollment of 43 students, compared to 51 a year ago. The Veterans Center for Negro students had an enrollment of 388, compared to 419 last year.

Arlington County yesterday recorded 16,526 students, approximately 2000 more than a year ago. The Negro enrollment was 1017.

Did He Jump or Not? Is Police Problem

Police were still uncertain yesterday whether they had been hoaxed or whether a man actually had jumped into the Potomac River Sunday night from the southbound span of the Highway Bridge near the Virginia side.

Frederick W. Weir of 2517 Fairlawn ave. se., stopped on the bridge Sunday night and was told by an unidentified man that a man had just jumped into the river. He requested Weir to call police. Police have dragged the river but a body has not been recovered.

Sun to Shine As Straw Hat Season Ends

Straws may be all right today on the heads of livery nags and on soda fountain counters, but on the well-dressed man . . . nooooo.

Want to drive your hatter mad?

He knows—and you should, too—that the straw hat season ended officially yesterday. Felt hats and derbies (for diplomats) are de rigueur now, old boy.

Since man came out of the woods and threw away his "coonskin cap, May 15 has been regarded as the first day of the straw hat season. But if you wear them after September 14, your best friends are perfectly right in snubbing you dead on the street.

A clothier advises that the same strict rules do not govern the getting into and getting out of summer-weight suits, a fact he is a little sad about.

But he made it clear that he considers any man who would appear today in a light-tone summer suit would be capable of putting mustard or catsup on his crepes suzette.

Actually, straw hats have been little in evidence in Washington in recent days. Too much rain.

The tropic-sized rains, by the way, appear to have abated. The flood tides have subsided and the weatherman hopefully promises "some sunshine" this afternoon.

If you need another reminder that summer is about ready for mothballs, clocks go back an hour, to end daylight saving time, at 2 a. m. Sunday, September 24.

K. C. Fourth Degree Picks Keller as Head

Daniel W. Keller has been elected faithful navigator of Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, it was announced yesterday.

Other officers elected are James J. Nolan, captain; John J. Eustace, admiral; Jack Trainer, pilot; Robert G. Heckman, scribe; Charles M. Connor, comptroller; William J. Fleming, purser; Thomas J. Burke and James P. Moriarty, sentinels.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral, will be friar; Bernard A. Litchfield, marshal; Gerald K. Hughes, chairman of the executive committee, and Alfred Llufrio, organist.

Installation will take place Monday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Committee Is Named To Study Bar Problem

A special committee of lawyers from the administrative law section of the District Bar Association was named yesterday to study ways of reducing the length of records in proceedings before Government administrative tribunals.

The committee named by Nathaniel Ely, chairman of the section, includes F. Gloyd Awalt, Louis G. Caldwell, Richard S. Doyle, Carl McFarland and Preston B. Kavanaugh.

Man Arrested, $981 Seized As Southeast Room Is Raided

Vice squad detectives confiscated $981 when they arrested Anthony Sesso, 41, on gaming charges yesterday in a second floor room at 1100 8th st. se.

Sesso was charged with setting up a gaming table, permitting gaming, operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

Taken before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, Sesso was released in $2000 bond and his case was continued until October 4. Police listed Sesso's address as 1719 S st. se.

Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad, said his men had no search warrant but had reason to believe a felony was being committed on the premises at the 8th st. address.

When the door was opened to admit other persons, Blick said, his men folowed them in. "It was wide open," said Blick.

County Housing Data Fight Ends With Cry of 'Politics'

Col. E. Brooke Lee turned over the controversial records of the Montgomery County Housing Authority yesterday while another former member of the authority accused the county council of playing politics with veterans' housing.

Lee, former head of the now defunct authority, who had been feuding with the council over possession of the records, passed them on to County Manager Irving G. McNayr.

Public Housing Administration directives, Lee said, permitted him to transfer the records. Before yesterday, Lee contended he didn't know whether the county council was legally entitled to them.

In accepting the records, McNayr agreed to let former members of the authority have access to them in connection "with any legal proceedings . . . arising out of . . . their administration of said housing authority during their official terms of office."

Lee previously threatened suit if a report on his administration, which he said contained falsehoods and misstatements, was published. Lee said yesterday he understood the report, prepared by the Citizens Advisory Committee on Housing, had been toned down and rewritten. The council-appointed advisory committee replaced the authority, which was abolished by the council July 1.

Meanwhile, Joseph D. Busher, former member of the authority, released a letter to the county council in which he accused it of "attempting to use veterans and their housing needs as a political football."

"Now, less than a week before election," Busher wrote, "you see fit to heap criticism upon the former chairman (Lee) and thereby impute reflection upon all the former members, who acted more or less in a de facto capacity, because of your failures to appoint new members to the authority" as the incumbents' terms expired.

Bash Cruso Dies; Presidential Steward

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 14 (AP).—Bash Cruso, 79, who served as attending valet and assistant steward to three Presidents, died here last night of a heart attack.

Mr. Cruso, a native of Washington, D. C., conducted a stove business here.

Appeals Court Allows Loan Debt Refund

A borrower can recover payments he has made to a money lender if the loan was "usurious," the Municipal Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

The court held that postman Robert M. Craig, 3800 Hayes st. ne., can recover $96 from the Consumers Credit service, Inc., 3317 Rhode Island ave., Mount Rainier, Md.

Although Craig was admittedly "constantly in arrears" in repaying the $200 he borrowed, the court found in his favor because the loan violated the Maryland small loan law.

The court found Craig received only $170 for the $200 note he signed. The act forbids collection of interest in advance.

The credit concern argued that Craig signed a note for $200 and a loan voucher for $197.50 — the $200 less a $2.50 life insurance premium. Written evidence cannot be contradicted by oral evidence, the company argued.

The Court of Appeals ruled that oral evidence is admissible when a claim of usury is involved.

Course to Brief Health Staff On A-Bomb

About 25 District Health Department employes will attend a 12-hour course to be given by the District Medical Society later this month on the effects of an atomic attack.

Acting Assistant Health Officer Arthur E. Ciff said medical officers, nurses, food inspectors and perhaps other professional personnel would attend. Purpose of the course, he said, is to inform medical and public health workers about what may be done if the city is hit by an atomic bomb.

Yanks Regain Lead as 3 Homers Blast Tigers, 7-5

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

DETROIT, Sept. 14.—The Yankees weren't saying anything, not even to each other, as they shed their street clothes in the dressing room before today's game and methodically started putting on their baseball togs. They weren't grim, just quiet, and you couldn't tell they were going into the big series that might decide the pennant.

An inquisitive reporter, seeking perhaps to establish the subsurface ticking of the Yankees, looked at the athletes to see if he could define their mood. What he saw looked for all the world like a reflection of the Yankee front office approach to the baseball business—with the ball players it is a cold operation, too.

Povich

The younger Yankees—and there is a passel of them this season—are taking their cues from the old pros, Joe DiMaggio, Tommy Henrich and little Phil Rizzuto, who has grown into that select fraternity.

"It's wonderful how the Yankeeism of those big guys has rubbed off on the new Yankee players," a New York correspondent explained. "They've even made a Yankee out of Casey Stengel, the old clown, who has been playing it straight since he joined this club."

ON THE YANKEE BENCH, there's less whoop-de-doo than with any other club. When they win ball games, or are in the process, there's no demonstration. Yankees react as if they should win 'em all. The younger Yanks fall into the groove because they know it's the thing to do if you wear that Yankee uniform.

The Yankees don't expect to lose the pennant, or even any ball game from here to the finish. When they blew one in Cleveland the other night, they resented it. One Yankee reflected Yankee thinking after the game when he ripped off his glove in the dressing room and threw it against the wall. "Imagine those tramps beating us," he moaned, as if it were against the rules to beat the Yankees.

The Indians, after having their noses rubbed in the dirt five straight times and being knocked out of the pennant race, held open house in celebration of that victory. They didn't quit, it is said, until 4 a. m. Joe DiMaggio was talking about that today. "What were they celebrating, fourth place money in the World Series?" he asked sarcastically.

YOGI BERRA came to the Yankees as a clownish outfielder who could hit but couldn't field, and labeled as a "character," hard to fit into the Yankee mold of businessman ball player. His conversation is probably the greatest example of Yankee grooming. Berra is now one of the Yankee pros, done with his clowning, a bear-down guy, and the best catcher in the league.

Second Baseman Gerry Coleman, the kid who came up from Newark, proved to be the surprise Yankee. He moved into their lineup as if he had to make a life study of Frankie Crosetti, and took over as if born to be a Yankee. All of Coleman's movements are those of old Yankee Crosetti. If he is no lusty hitter, he is at least a pest at the plate, and in the infield he makes all the plays. For most of 20 years there has been a guy like Coleman in the good Yankee infields.

And this season they've come up with a new, good Yankee—Hank Bauer, the big outfielder who may be the successor to Di Maggio and Henrich as a big gun. He's caught the Yankee spirit in a big way. Large as he is, he runs like a thief, and hits in the best Yankee tradition. The hard core of Yankee hustle is expanded by the likes of Bauer, who isn't hurting 'em, either, by hitting .335.

AS I WAS SAYING, that Yankee-ism has rubbed off on Stengel, too. He's hepped on the subject of bear-down ball players, and right now he's working on another young outfielder he thinks is cut out to be a Yankee. It's young Jackie Jensen, the All-American halfback from California, and Stengel is sticking him in the lineup at intervals despite his foul .159 batting average.

"He's got it," Stengel confides. "They ask me why I play Jensen, and I tell them he's going to make this club a great ball player, and he will."

The Yankee owners are quite smitten with Manager Stengel, incidentally, and like the way he not only keeps his teams up there, but they give him more authority over the Yankees farm system than any other manager ever had. They say he knows young ball players.

"That's the fun of this business, watching young ball players," Stengel was saying. "You can call it my hobby, I guess. Mrs. Stengel and I have been married a long time. We have no children. I sort of watch out for all our kids. They're my family."

Browns Win 8th in Row, 2d Out of 20 From Bosox

St. Louis, Sept. 14 (AP).—The blazing and amazing St. Louis Browns won their eighth in a row tonight by outclassing the powerful Boston Red Sox, 6-3.

Dick Starr allowed Boston only seven hits, including Tel Williams' eighth-inning pinch double that drove in a run.

It was the Brownie-come-latelies second victory in 20 starts against Boston. Before tonight's contest the Red Sox had won six in a row and 24 out of 27.

St. Louis took an early 2-0 lead with two out in the first inning. Les Moss broke the ice with a single and came in on Dick Kokos' triple against the screen in right field. Hank Arft doubled, scoring Kokos.

Boston knotted it up in the third. Singles by Johnny Pesky and Billy Goodman, a wild pitch by Starr and Walt Dropo's double accounted for the two runs.

In the sixth the Browns untied the count with a three-run splurge. Two of the markers came on Shortstop Vern Stephens' throwing error.

Williams came off the bench in the eighth to lend a hand. Two were down and Al Zarilla was on second with a double. Batting for Matt Batts, Williams doubled against the right field wall, sending in the third Red Sox score.

Nats, Tribe Rained Out, Play Tonight

CLEVELAND, Sept. 14.—The debut of 23-year-old rookie lefthander Al Aber, a Cleveland boy, was postponed until tomorrow when the opener of the three-game Washington-Cleveland series tonight was called off because of rain.

Aber, who has been in the Indians' farm system for five years, is scheduled to oppose Julio Moreno, Cuban rookie righthander who posted a 10-4 decision over the Athletics in his major league debut last week.

Moreno will be trying to stop a five-game Washington losing streak. The Nats have also lost their last seven in a row to the fourth-place Indians.

N. Y. Erases 4-0 Deficit As Raschi Wins No. 20

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

DETROIT, Sept. 14.—The battling Yankees bounced off the ropes and into the league lead on this gray afternoon for 20,853 Detroit fans who watched Hal Newhouser blow a 4-0 bulge and the ball game to the time-tested strategy of Yankee home runs.

By a score of 7 to 5, the Yankees hurdled the Tigers in the first contest of this three-game series that is loaded with pennant significance, and made a winning pitcher out of their embarrassed starter, Vic Raschi.

Before he was properly warmed up, Raschi made a mess of the opening inning, walked two runs across the plate, was banged for three hits, and spotted Newhouser four runs. Jubilant Detroit fans settled back in their seats smugly at the promise of a soft-touch victory over the hated Yanks.

Yanks Lash Back

And then, in the second inning, the Yankees lashed back. Joe DiMaggio set the style, with his 27th homer of the year into the left field seats. A bit later Johnny Mize dumped a two-run homer into the seats in right. The Yanks cut the Tigers' lead to 4-3, and then went on to win the ball game.

Before it was over, Cliff Mapes fired another four-base salvo at the Tigers in the sixth to lift the Yankees' margin to 7-4 at that point and mess it up more or less completely for the Tigers.

In the new readings of the American League standings, the Yankees are topping the Tigers by a half-game margin, with the figures showing:

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
New York	88	50	.638	..
Detroit	87	50	.635	1/2

As if in acknowledgment of his mates' promptness in taking him off the spot, Raschi settled down smartly after that first inning and gave up only four hits for the rest of the game of achieve his twentieth win of the year with a seven-hitter.

Tigers Get 4 in 1st

Raschi was laboring in that first inning, and would not have lasted it out, had his futility not developed so suddenly the Yankees had nobody warmed up in their bullpen. He got rid of Kolloway on a grounder to start the game, but he couldn't get any of the next six batters out. Johnny Lipon and George Kell rapped him for quick singles, then in a strange seizure of wildness he walked Vic Wertz, Hoot Evers and Johnny Groth in a row to force two runs home. Gerry Priddy's single to left produced another, and Aaron Robinson's fly to right got the fourth run in.

The first jolt to Newhouser and his Briggs Stadium adherents was DiMaggio's homer. It launched the second inning, an enormous wallop into the wind that barely

Konstanty Gets 15th as Phils Top Cards, 3-2

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14 (AP).—Willie Jones poked a ninth-inning single, scoring Eddie Waitkus from third base to give the league leading Philadelphia Phillies a 3-2 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals tonight. The victory, credited to relief hurler Jim Konstanty, kept the Phils six games in front of the twice victorious Brooklyn Dodgers. It was Konstanty's fifteenth win against only five losses.

Konstanty, making his sixty-fifth appearance of the season, relieved Russ Meyer in the seventh.

W & M Pins Hopes On Vito Ragazzo

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

WILLIAMSBURG, VA., Sept. 14.—In 14 years as a head coach, Rube McCray has never had a losing team. That record should stand up for a least another year without too much strain.

While his William and Mary Indians must play their 11 games on 11 consecutive Saturdays, it's one of the tamer schedules among the Southern Conference powers.

Dickie Lewis

Only Michigan State figures to beat the Indians handily. They'll have an even chance against North Carolina, Wake Forest and Virginia. And they should whip VMI, Richmond, VPI, Boston U., Houston U., N. C. State, and Cincinnati.

McCray has a strong offensive force, but he's hard up for defensive linemen, and most of his defensive halfbacks are untried sophomores.

Quite naturally, he's building his attack around big Vito Ragazzo, the Nation's leading offensive end last year.

He gained 793 yards on receptions in 1949, for an all-time collegiate record. And he scored 15 touchdowns on passes for another All-time mark.

IN SPRING PRACTICE, Vito broke his shin bone, but he's fully healed now. He batted .500 in a Virginia semipro baseball league this summer, and has been outrunning McCray's fastest backs in September workouts.

The black haired 6-foot-3, 200-pound senior from Aflex, Ky., scored in 9 of W. & M.'s 10 games last year. Only Boston U. shut him out.

The lad who threw most of the passes to Vito last year, Buddy Lex, has graduated. But there are four backs still around, says McCray, who can pass as well, or better than Lex.

Chief among them is Tailback Dickie Lewis, 180-pound junior from Arlington, who played in the same Washington-Lee High backfield as North Carolina's Billy Hayes in 1946.

The other three passers are all named Ed—Miouszewski (pronounced Madda-shev-skee), Magdziak (pronounced May-jack), and Weber. They are all good runners, too, particularly Maglziak, and they're all former New Jersey high school all-stars.

Lewis is the most versatile of the backs. He throws a harder and straighter pass than Lex did. He's a good breakaway runner, and a good punter.

ONLY REASON he didn't take over the passing from Lex last year is that McCray, a two platoon devotee, wanted to use Sophomore Dickie Lewis exclusively for work as safety man.

Dickie is just one of four Washington area boys who figure prominently in McCray's plans.

Larry Fones, a wingback from Fairfax High, and Joe Cardaci nd Julius Poms, guards from St. John's and McKinley Tech, will be regulars on defense.

Lewis was fullback and captain of The Washington Post's 1946 All-Metropolitan Scholastic Team, and Fones was named All-Suburban in 1948.

Also in '48, The Post selected Poms as the most valuable schoolboy player in the area, and on recommendation of The Post, Cardaci made the High School All-American team.

Fones, Cardaci and Poms are all big fellows, weighing 190, 210 and 214 pounds.

Because his four regular backs can pass and run well, McCray will add some "Y" formation plays to his single wing repertoire.

The "Y," employed successfully by Southern Methodist, has the backs arrayed so they can all easily handle the ball.

To strengthen his blocking of the "Y," McCray has shuttled last year's quarterback, 200-pounder Joe Marks of Hampton, Va., into the left-guard position. He's quick on his feet, and he'll pull out of the line to lead the interference.

ALTHOUGH 10 out of 11 regulars on the offensive unit are experienced holdovers, it's McCray's youngest squad since the war. The average player is less than 20 years old. Only three of them are married and only eight served in the last war.

His veteran line consists of: Ragazzo and George Heflin, 185 pounds, Hampton, Va., at ends; Ted Gehlmann, 220, Johnstown, Pa., and Ronnier Gonier, South River, N. J., at tackles; Marks and John Kirk, 205, St. Albans, W. Va., at guards, and Bob Finn, 215, Woodbridge, N. J., at center.

Fullback Magdziak is a 200-pounder from Passaic, N. J.; Miouszewski, the only soph in the unit, weighs 180 and he hails from Cliffside Park, N. J.; Weber, 200, hails from Lawrence Harbor, N. J.

Three other players will break into the offensive backfield, Paul Yewic, Dick Kobacevich and John Connors.

Yewic, a 180-pounder, relieved Lex of some of the passing last year. Kobacevich and Connors are sophs, who can hit the line hard, Dick weighs 210 and John 205.

Kobacevich hails from Belmont, Connor's home town is Pittston, Pa., which has the distinction of having produced another pretty fair Southern football player, Charlie Trippi.

Tomorrow, Virginia Tech.

Big Pageant Opens 3-Day Card Tonight

By Happy Walker

Apprehension that prevailed in President's Cup Regatta circles the last several days over high flood waters on the Potomac was set aside late yesterday by Capt. Otha Sanders, veteran Harbor Police authority.

Sanders, who has covered the waterfront for 25 years, assured regatta officials that, barring further rainfall, the Potomac will return to normal levels in time for the opening race Saturday. No rain is predicted.

Jack Schafer, millionaire Detroit bakery executive and owner of the Such Crust I and II, Gold Cuppers, arrived yesterday morning heading the vanguard of several hundred speedboat notables expected to arrive prior to race time tomorrow.

Schafer and wife, Elizabeth, who were honor guests at the Cosmopolitan Club luncheon given at the Carlton yesterday, revealed that Movie Star Bob Hope, who was in New York for his T.V. show last night, is expected in Washington today.

Another early arrival from the Coast was Dr. Louis Novotny, Los Angeles surgeon, with his P.O.D. world record holder, Cherub II. Novotny set the world mark at Cambridge, Md., last year.

At the final race committee briefing late yesterday at regatta headquarters in the Willard Hotel, Chairman Chuck Gardiner announced that entries already on hand indicated the largest field of contestants in the history of the 20-year-old President's Cup classic.

So far, a half dozen thundering Gold Cup craft are sure to appear. They are Dossin Brothers' Miss Pepsi, holder of the recent 107.654 mph lap record set in Detroit Labor Day, Jack Schafer's Such Crust I and II, Horace Dodge's My Sweetie, declared winner of last year's President's Cup race on the one-heat basis; Danny Murphy's Fite Memorial winner, Dee Jay, Guy Lombardo and his celebrated Tempo VI and Miss Great Lakes, owned and driven by Albion Fallon.

The three-day aquatic sports spectacle opens tonight with a brilliant marine pageant starting at 8:30 o'clock off the Hains Point seawall. An illuminated marine parade with 55 gaily decorated floats and cruisers heads up the program. Police Superintendent Robert Barrett is grand marshal, with Commodore Jack Miller heading the pageant committee.

Weekend Suggestions:

BLUEFISH—Eastern Bay area should be best.

SPOT—They are thick near Sharp's Light. Weather makes little difference to this species. Bloodworms will do the trick.

Beagle Club Opens Season With Trials Listed for Sunday

By Ralph Murdock

Murdock

A number of other beagle clubs from Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania will compete for the trophies and ribbons which will be offered to the winners in the various classes. All owners of registered beagles are invited.

The scene of action will be on Iler's Farm at Seneca, Md., approximately 35 miles from Washington.

MORE THAN 3000 youngsters who were officially registered and several hundred who forgot to register took part in the third annual Kiddies Fishing Rodeo which the League of Maryland Sportsmen and Baltimore Association of Commerce recently sponsored in Baltimore.

The affair was a huge success and it was estimated that over 7000 persons visited the rodeo in Patterson Park. A number of visitors were parents who coached and cheered their youngsters in the competition for prizes.

Weekend Suggestions:

BLUEFISH—Eastern Bay area should be best.

SPOT—They are thick near Sharp's Light. Weather makes little difference to this species. Bloodworms will do the trick.

Bill Bennings

DEAR FOLKS:

Like the consolation daily double play-off, which no one does anything about, in Maryland that is, I have backed a proposal for years to ban the racing of 2-year-olds. Under the Bennings Plan horses would not start racing until their third year. Ages for all stakes would be moved back—the Pimlico Futurity and other juvenile races for 3-year-olds and the Kentucky Derby, Preakness, etc., for 4-year-olds. Although some horses survive the rigors of 2-year-old campaigning, many of our present cripples can trace their condition to too early starts. The breeders, however, are strong for juvenile races because they encourage yearling sales, giving the new owners a chance for quick return. More 2-year-old races, they contend, would give fewer opportunities to shop-worn and aged horses. However, the latter group always draw more betting than the juveniles and, for this reason, probably will continue to draw the favor of track operators. See you on the rail (Saturday) at Marlboro. BILL.

Fielding Mark Set

Hearn Stops Pirates, 6-1, N. Y. Loses 1st

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP).—Big Jim Hearn came up with a neat six-hitter today as he pitched the New York Giants to a 6-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the second game of a doubleheader. The Pirates took the opener, 7-1, behind the six-hit pitching of little Murry Dickson.

When Henry Thompson participated in his forty-second double play of the season, the 24-year-old Negro infielder of the New York Giants set a new National League record for third basemen. The old mark was 41 by Harold (Pie) Traynor, of the Pirates in 1925.

Bogart Wins, Also Reaches Round of 8

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

Bobby Brownell, seeking his sixth District amateur golf championship, walloped his first and second-round opponents yesterday at Congressional to lead the advance into today's quarterfinals.

Brownell, who has won the title four straight times, disposed of Karl Kellerman of Columbia, the only Washingtonian to play in the 1950 National Amateur, 7-6, in the first round.

After lunch, Brownell ousted Bill Shea, 3 and 2. It was one of the few times that Shea, Congressional champion, has been beaten on his home course.

Ralph Bogart, who like Brownell also plays out of Chevy Chase, advanced to today's round of eight with a 2-up victory over 20-year-old Dick Foster of Columbia after winning his first round match by default.

The Bogart-Foster match was all square at 16, but Ralph won the 17th with a par-four and had a birdie-three on the home hole to sew up the decision.

Bogart is favored to contest Brownell in the 36-hole championship tomorrow. Quarterfinals and semifinals will be played today.

Prince Georges sent three to the quarterfinals, Mike Jankowski joining Chandler and B. C. Hartig. Chevy Chase has two, Brownell and Bogart; Kenwood has Dr. Kenrick; Congressional has the seventh, Charlie Given, and Woodmont supplied the eighth, Bud Brylawski, club champion.

Heurich 1-0 Victor; D. C. Police Split

Washington's Heurich Brewers, defending champions, nosed out Allentown, Pa., 1-0, in the first round of the All-American Amateur Baseball Association tournament last night at Griffith Stadium.

The Brewers scored the game's only run in the fourth inning when First Baseman Bernie Good beat out an infield hit, one of only three Heurich safeties, went to second on a wild throw by Second Baseman Buddy Gower and scored on Jerry Zanelotti's single.

Allentown Pitcher Skippy Brong, in holding the Brewers to three hits, did not walk a man. Brother Love, Heurich hurler, gave up eight safeties, struck out eight and walked one.

The Washington Police lost their first game, 3-0, to Elkton, Md., but won their second-round contest, 6-2 from Wilkes-Barre, Pa. The defeat was the second for Wilkes-Barre ousting it from the double-elimination tourney.

Jim Burns pitched a no-hitter in leading Elkton to its triumph over the Police.

Mae Murray Ousts Kielty And Crocker

ATLANTA, Sept. 14 (AP).—Mae Murray, a fierce competitor who seldom smiles and concedes nobody a putt, whipped two of the finest players in women's golf in one day and fought her way into the semi-finals of the National Women's Amateur.

Her quarter final victory dropped Dot Kielty, the pre-tournament favorite, 1-up. The fourth round victory of the stocky Rutland, Vermonter, was Fay Crocker of Monteviedo, Uruguay. That match probably set a United States Golf Association record in lasting 27 holes.

By blasting two of the best golfers in the golden anniversary amateur, grim little Mae became the galleries' love.

Other quarter final results at East Lake course sent Grace DeMoss of Corvallis, Ore., forward with another one-up victory. She defeated Curtis Cupper Dot Kirby of Atlanta. Beverly Hanson of Pasadena, Calif., had the easiest job of the afternoon in winning 5-4 over Philomena Garvey of Baltray, Eire.

Helen Sigel of Philadelphia, eliminated the last of the Texans with a 3-2 victory over Betsey Rawls of Austin.

Miss Murray and Miss Sigel meet in one of tomorrow's 18-hole semifinals and Miss DeMoss plays Miss Hanson in the other over the 6521-yard 37-38—75 par East Lake course.

Wilson Plays Fairfax

Highs Football Opens Today With 6 Games

By Bill Gilbert

High school football hereabouts gets under way today with six games scheduled.

In games to be played in the area, Wilson meets Fairfax at Wilson and Dunbar plays at Parker-Gray in the afternoon. Night games have Gonzaga at Mount Vernon and McKinley Tech against Bladensburg at College Park.

On the road, Roosevelt journeys to Martinsburg, W. Va., and Washington-Lee High is at Cumberland for a game with Forest Hill.

In games tomorrow, Coolidge plays at Falls Church at 2 p. m. and Eastern plays at York, Pa., in a night game.

Wilson's Green Tigers have gained the services of six boys who played at the old Central High last year. Today's game should tell Wilson opponents just how dangerous the Tigers will be with their added manpower.

Gonzaga, which defeated Wilson for the city championship in 1949, is fielding a young, green team this year with only one returning letterman. Eagles' Coach Joe Kozik is looking for a rough season and, after tonight, he should have some idea of just how tough it will be.

Mount Vernon, on the other hand, has 16 returning lettermen. The Mounts have switched from the single wing to the "T" formation and are hoping to fool the inexperienced Eagles

Luke Appling Has Big Day in 2207th Game

CHICAGO, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox scored five times in the first inning to whip the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-2, today in the opener of a three-game series. Old Luke Appling played his 2207th American League game at shortstop.

Old Luke collected three of the Chicagoans' 10 hits, batted in two runs, scored another himself, and flawlessly handled two chances afield—one the start of a double play.

Tigers Blow 4-0 Lead as Yanks Win

missed the upper deck and fell in the lower leftfield seats. A walk to Bauer, and then Mize banged his homer to right and with nobody out the Tigers' lead had been cut to 4-3.

The last vestige of the Detroit lead vanished in the next inning, after Yogi Berra singled to left with none out and Newhouser pitched so carefully to DiMaggio he walked him. Hank Bauer tied the score with a single to right. The Yanks got no more out of the inning because Kolloway grabbed Mize's grounder and trapped DiMaggio trying to score from third.

But they were back at Newhouser for more in the fourth and came up with two more. Coleman burned a single off Kell's glove, Raschia sacrificed, Mapes dropped a single into left. Rizzuto got Coleman home with a single to right and Mapes slid home from third on Berra'a fly to Groth.

That was it, with the Yankees now leading 6 to 4. Mapes' sixth inning homer off Hal White, was merely the frosting on the cake. Little White who moved into the game at the start of the fifth inning, did a tremendous relief job of it for the Tigers, allowing only one more run to the finish.

But Raschi wasn't letting go of that lead the Yankees gave him in the fourth. In the last seven innings he regained his control, yielded only two hits to the Tigers, and shrugged off the run they got in the seventh on Kolloway's double and a pair of outs. In fact it was a tainted run because Bauer grossly misjudged Kolloway's drive into the wind.

Food Favorite Around the Clock

With Mice or Men, Cheese is Tops

By Lucia Brown

IF YOU'RE that elusive character, the average American, you nibble up about 7 pounds of cheese a year—most of it American cheddar.

You also have nostalgic memories of the kind of cheese you used to eat back home in your youth. Maybe you recall the "store" cheese your mother bought in fat yellow wedges. (Nobody's quite sure to this day why it was "store" cheese, unless it was so-called to set it apart from cheese made at home.)

If you were reared in the East—especially Pennsylvania—you probably remember Dutch cheesecakes made of Schmercase, and seasoned with anise or caraway seed.

If you're from the West, you probably think of Jack cheese. A mild cheddar loved by Mexicans, it was brought into Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas, by cowmen, and was known by them as Mex cheese, mule or Jack cheese.

The South recalls its pot cheese, clabber cheese and curds—all variations of cottage cheese. The Pacific Northwest, and other parts of the country, still talk about "drinkin" cheese, beer cheese and beer kase, and "stringy" cheese (unaged cheddar.)

Whatever kind of cheese you remember or eat today, you can be sure it's good for you and one of your best friends when the time comes for entertaining. For sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres, and salads, and all sorts of other good things, you'll find cheese the ideal quick ingredient. So here's a round-up of cheese recipes—all the way from "dips" to cheesecake—that may come in handy when next you're hostess.

ROQUEFORT DIP

1 1½-ounce portion Roquefort or Blue cheese
1 3-ounce package cream cheese
3 or more tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Blend the Roquefort or Blue cheese with the cream cheese. Add Worcestershire sauce and sufficient mayonnaise or salad dressing to make it of dipping consistency. Serve in bowl with crackers or potato chips to be dipped in mixture.

CLAM-CHEESE DIP

2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of freshly ground pepper
½ cup minced canned clams
1 tablespoon clam broth

Thoroughly rub a small mixing bowl with a garlic clove. Add cream cheese, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper, clams, and clam broth. Blend well.

Serve crackers, potato chips, or raw cauliflower buds to be dipped into this mixture for an unusual and tasty appetizer.

PIZZA, EASY MADE

6 English muffins
½ pound American cheddar cheese
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
1 (2-oz.) can anchovy fillets
Salt, pepper
Oregano
Cooking oil

Halve the muffins and place them on greased baking pan. Cut the cheese into thin strips and arrange in a lattice design on the muffins. Season with salt and pepper. Spread with drained tomatoes. Dot with anchovy fillets and sprinkle with oregano and cooking oil. Bake in hot oven, 450 degrees, 20 minutes, or until cheese is melted.

HOLLYWOOD CHEESECAKE

18 zwieback, rolled (or 1½ cups zwieback crumbs)
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons sugar
1 pound cream cheese
½ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 eggs
1 cup thick sour cream
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend the zwieback crumbs with the butter or margarine and 2 tablespoons of sugar. Press onto the bottom of a 9-inch spring pan. Bake in slow oven, 300 degrees, for 5 minutes. Cool.

Blend cream cheese, softened at room temperature, with ¼ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon vanilla, grated lemon rind and lemon juice. Add egg yolk one at a time, mixing well after each yolk is added. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour the mixture on top of the crumbs. Bake in slow over, 300 degrees, for 45 minutes.

Blend the sour cream with the tablespoon of sugar and 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Spread this mixture over the top of the cake. Return to the oven for an additional 10 minutes. Cool before removing from the pan. Do not invert.

SAVORY LIEDERKRANZ SPREAD

1 (4-oz.) package Liederkranz cheese
½ cup butter
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
3 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion

Soften Liederkranz cheese and butter at room temperature. Cream Liederkranz until smooth and fluffy. Gradually cream in butter. Stir in salt, mustard, pepper, paprika and Worcestershire sauce. Add green pepper and onion and mix well. Spread on thin slices of salty rye bread

THESE DAINTY ROLLED SANDWICHES are spread with a mixture of cream cheese, chopped parsley and milk. The fresh bread slices (minus crusts) are then rolled up like jelly roll and each end garnished with a sprig of parsley

CHEESECAKE, one of the world's best-known desserts, is becoming a national favorite. Above is "Hollywood Cheesecake," baked with a rich crumb base, flecked with cinnamon and bits of lemon peel for wonderful flavor

A CHEESE AND SARDINE SANDWICH TRAY will make a hit with the card-playing crowd. Use rye bread, spread with mayonnaise. Top one side with lettuce and cheese slices, the other with sardines

Market Memo

Cabbage Headlines Week's Menus

CABBAGE has been named the "Food Headliner of the Week" by the Department of Agriculture. Low priced and luxuriantly plentiful, it's coming down from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Early fall domestic and Danish types are the ones on the market now.

CAULIFLOWER is coming in early this year, creamy white from the Catskills and Long Island. The Long Island crop is a whole month ahead of time, which means there's more than normal on the market right now.

SWEET POTATOES will be in whopping supply this fall. The crop is expected to be the largest in four years, for the weather's been right for yams this summer. This means you can look to sweets during the coming month for an economical and high quality vegetable buy.

LATEST IMPORTS locally are cookies from France. They're a de luxe Parisian brand, long favored abroad. They have engaging names—"Tranche Doree," for instance, a golden slice of raisin-filled cake, lightly toasted. Then there's "Boudoir," a cocktail biscuit with frosted top, widely used in the great houses of France. Most of the cookies aren't as sweet as our American ones, for the French like them with champagne and other wines, but they are characterized by a delicacy and flavor which is distinctly continental.

Mary Haworth's Mail

All Set to Enter the College of Her Dreams, Girl Wonders If She Should Change Plans and Stay Home, To Be a Companion to Her Father, a Lonely Widower

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Two years ago my mother died, leaving my father, older brother and me. I am 18 now and have arranged to enter the college of my choice this fall. It offers the courses I've always wanted, has a wonderful campus and social life, good sororities—in fact, all that I'd hoped to find in a college.

However, I'd be home only for Thanksgiving, Christmas and a week in the spring; and I feel more and more every day how lonely my father is. His friends aren't so considerate as formerly, and he sort of has to make his own fun. He hasn't much to do evenings, and I've been staying home nights more often to keep him company. Instead of the usual one, he drinks two, sometimes three, nightcaps more recently.

BECAUSE OF ALL this I have applied to a nearby college that hasn't much academic standing. Nor does it have the courses I want. It has only local sororities and as a commuter I'd have no campus life there, so altogether it would be very much like going back to high school. When I think of these things I feel maybe I ought to stick to my original plan, if only for one year, so that I can have a taste of real college life. But is that selfish of me? Is it my duty to stay home?

My brother Bud is going to a college that alternates study with work experience, and he would be home every two months on that schedule. But even when he is living at home he is usually "out;" and in any case dad will be entirely alone for at least five months if I go away.

If I go, I fear that when I am 40 I shall be sorry that I wasn't more considerate of my father. But then if I stay home I might be sorry I didn't go to a good college—one that I could be proud of—while I had the opportunity to get fine training in subjects that interest me. I must make a final decision soon. Please help me. S. C.

DEAR S. C.: Your theory that the age of remorse starts around 40—or might for you, if you went off to college, leaving your father in a lonely house,—suggests that he is probably fortyish. I think you are associating his age with his moody air of retrospective melancholy. And if I have guessed his approximate age, then I must say he is a long way from being in his second childhood; and I venture to hope that you've been misreading the meaning of his latterday moping around the house.

In staying close home most evenings, and taking several snifters to relieve his boredom, maybe he is trying to make up to you for your mother's death. I can imagine that he is trying to take her place as the family balance wheel, after his day's work is done; trying to be the dutiful parent always there, to keep you securely anchored against whatever night time temptations or dangers revolve around a "motherless girl."

You devotedly feel that you are giving up good times for his sake, letting friendships wait while you keep him company. And very likely he is acting on similar feelings, carefully doing his bit, so he thinks—in uncomplaining spirit of loving sacrifice—to make your lonely "half a loaf" of home life seem as normal as possible, before you leave for college.

Naturally one's papa in middle age looks pretty old and rather done for, according to the view of 18. But to persons in his own age bracket he seems middling young and full of promise yet I daresay. All fortyish persons in average good health confidently feel that they've got a lot of life left in them yet, even though blows and bereavements have taken toll. And the same is true of hearty types up into the fifties, sixties and beyond.

FURTHERMORE I think you should know that older folk, in the forties and above, usually find more satisfaction in the company of their peers than in a steady diet of adolescent society, whether in the family or outside of it. I am speaking of normal sensible middle-agers, the psychologically adult element; not those childish characters who continue to mimic adolescent and court their company until senility gets them. You know, the kittenish older women and faunish elderly males who disport like comic valentines.

Now for advice, why don't you discuss your uncertainties with your dad? Then if he says go ahead to the college of your choice, I think you should go. If he feels you are busy and happy in model surroundings, so that he is at ease about your welfare, he will probably make constructive use of his footloose freedom to revive old friendships, and maybe add new ones, during your absence. M. H.

Remove Spots and Stains, Then Revarnish, to Give Floors New Look for Fall

HOW TO GET something new underfoot is the problem of M. J. M., who writes from Arlington:

DEAR ANNE:

In the next few weeks, I plan to revarnish and wax my hardwood floors. There is a cigarette burn about the size of my small finger on the floor. What method do you suggest for taking off old wax and black marks? And is there anything that can be done about the burn? M. J. M., Arlington, Va.

You can get the old wax off with turpentine. Under that, I take it, is an old varnish finish. If this is in good shape—firm, hard, and not too scarred—you should be able to varnish over it satisfactorily. Use sandpaper or steel wool to remove the burn stain and any other scarred or discolored places. Then fill these spots, as well as nail holes or worn places, with a thin coat of the varnish. (If necessary, you can use several coats to fill in slight indentations, letting each coat dry before putting on another.) When the repaired spots are dry, smooth them down and then go over the whole floor surface with fine sandpaper. Wipe off all dust from sanding with a cloth dipped in turpentine. Let dry and you're all ready to apply the new varnish coat.

DEAR ANNE:

I have a bottle of a better brand of fingernail polish which is too thick. I'd like to know how to go about thinning it.

Mrs. F. R., Silver Spring, Md.

DEAR ANNE:

We are interested in refinishing our grand piano, now a dark mahogany, in a natural finish. Have you, or your readers, any suggestion on the removal of the old finish? Would the electric tool for paint removal (recently advertised) be a satisfactory way to remove the finish? Mrs. F. W., Washington.

I salute your ambition, but wonder if you realize the enormity of the task you have in mind. If yours is an expensive piano, you may be happier if you have the refinishing done by a professional.

But to get back to your questions: You can use paint and varnish remover to get off a lot of the old finish, if you're careful about masking off keys and other vital parts of the instrument. If the "electric tool" you mention is a sander, this is quicker than hand-sanding. However, extreme care must be used in operating it if you wish to get a smooth surface that will bring out the beauty of the wood.

Women in the Food Industry

'Loving Care' a Cook's Best Ingredient

This is the fifth of a series of Friday features on "Women in the Food Industry."

By Mollie H. Smith

Director of Home Economics, The Best Foods, Inc.

I'M SURE you have heard about the special prescription which hospital doctors find more effective with many patients than the latest wonder drug. Noted on the chart merely as "T.L.C.", it means that "tender, loving care" is to be administered in generous doses.

Surely every woman who deserves the name of homemaker also seasons all the food she prepares for her family and friends with plenty of T.L.C. We all know that the best cooks are those who love to cook, who really enjoy preparing dishes that are not only packed with good nutrition but are a pleasure to behold and to consume.

Here in the Best Foods Consumer Kitchen we hope we know all we should about the chemistry of food but, as our Southern friends might say, we don't pay that angle "too much mind."

THAT'S ALL done for us by our Best Foods Laboratory Kitchen at our plant at Bayonne, N. J. Over there the staff of food chemists and home economists do all the things necessary to make sure that every pound of margarine, every jar of real mayonnaise and all its variations, every bottle of French dressing and every box of self-rising cake flour that reaches you in your home, and us in our Consumer Kitchen, is absolutely right as to formula and ingredients.

BUT WHEN the products reach our Consumer Kitchen, high above Fifth ave. at one of its busiest intersections, we approach the pleasant business of preparing good food much as a homemaker would.

To our staff of four, working with food is so much fun that, even after a full day of it, we are not tired of cooking. Mildred, who has a husband and a grown daughter, has the lightest hand with cakes and pies I've ever seen. Greta is a home girl whose family is glad she likes to do some of the weekend cooking. Margaret is a new bride whose husband thinks he's mighty lucky to have married a girl whose biscuits are perfect.

Those who work at Best Foods New York headquarters tell us the kitchen always makes them feel at home. Our many visitors seem to enjoy it, from the moment the fragrance of freshly brewed coffee reaches them through the always open door.

IMAGINE FOR a moment the easy chairs in the little dining and reception room that leads into the main kitchen. Beyond you glimpse the warm color scheme of yellow and gray, with our red geraniums on the window sills.

Perhaps you're weary from shopping. So just sink down in a comfortable chair and we'll bring you a cup of coffee. Several times a day we refill our shining percolator and between times it's kept hot over the pilot light. Like as not we'll have cookies coming out of the oven, or several pretty salads nearing completion.

AFTER YOU'VE nibbled some of whatever good things are under way, and have finished your coffee, you'll want to browse around the kitchen to see what tricks of convenience you can adapt for use in your home. Notice how we have all our heavy pots and pans stored at waist or shoulder height, to avoid stooping or reaching. Light er things we store above or below.

We think you'll like the oval work table we designed. It has casters, so we can push it around when more working space is needed. But there is a brake beneath it, very much like the one on a baby's perambulator, and when that is pushed down the table won't move at all. Handy when we're rolling out pastry, for example.

HERE'S a recipe that would be fine for an autumn picnic, carried right in the pan in which it was baked. Tuck it into the picnic basket and when ready for lunch or supper, turn it out and slice it for serving.

HAM AND POTATO SALAD LOAF

6 cups diced cooked potatoes
1½ teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 cup diced, cooked ham
½ cup diced celery
1 cup real mayonnaise
1 tablespoon plain gelatin
4 tablespoons cold water

Cover bottom and wide sides of a loaf pan with a strip of waxed paper which extends above sides. Arrange sliced ham to cover inside of pan. Mix potatoes with all ingredients up to real mayonnaise. Soak gelatin in cold water. Add to real mayonnaise and stir quickly into potato mixture. Turn into pan, press down lightly. Chill until firm. Turn out on to platter. Remove paper. Cut in thick slices with sharp knife. Yield: 6 servings.

HERE'S MOLLIE SMITH, making real mayonnaise biscuits in her Best Foods kitchen. With a fork she stirs ¼ cup mayonnise into a mixture of 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder and ¾ teaspoon salt. Next comes enough milk to make a soft dough and a minute of kneading on a floured board. After biscuits are cut out, she lets them stand 15 minutes on ungreased cookie sheet before baking in 425-degree oven

EASY FISH DINNER

Creamed Tuna and Mushrooms — Baked Potatoes
Buttered Swiss Chard — Bread and Butter
Dutch Plum Cake — Beverage

CREAMED TUNA AND MUSHROOMS

Ingredients: 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 3-ounce can sliced broiled mushrooms, milk, 2 tablespoons diced pimiento (1 whole canned pimiento), ¼ teaspoon salt, freshly-ground pepper, 1 7-ounce can tuna fish.

Method: Melt butter or margarine in 1-quart saucepan over low heat; add flour and blend together with wooden spoon. Remove from heat. Drain liquid from can of mushrooms and add enough milk to make 1¼ cups. Add a few tablespoons of the milk-mushroom liquid and stir until smooth; add remaining milk gradually each time, blending until smooth. Return to moderate heat and, stirring constantly, cook until thickened and bubbly; let bubble, stirring, for 2 more minutes. Reduce heat. Stir in sliced mushrooms, pimiento, salt and pepper. Now add tuna, stirring carefully so as not to break tuna fish into flakes; it should be in good-sized pieces. Heat thoroughly, stirring a few times. Serve over baked potatoes that have been sliced lengthwise (but not through skin) and mashed slightly in shells so they will hold some of tuna mixture. Makes 4 servings.

Embassy Bride-Elect Picks Wedding Date

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

SENORITA CIELO ARAMBURU, daughter of the Minister-Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy and Senora de Aramburu, has selected Saturday, October 14, as the date of her marriage to Lieut. (j. g.) Don Carr McVey, USN. A reception will follow at the Peruvian Embassy.

Parties for the young couple will open up with Miss Margaret Woodhouse's cocktail fete Saturday afternoon, to be given at the home of her mother, Representative Chase Going Woodhouse. Arthur Adams, roommate of the prospective bridegroom, who will be his best man, will entertain at a cocktail party on September 23, and on September 30 Senorita Cielo will be honor guest at a luncheon to be given at the Shoreham by a group of diplomatic daughters, who are her particular friends.

Mrs. Don MacFarland, sister of Lieutenant McVey, will be matron of honor and Miss Woodhouse, maid of honor. Cielo's sister, Gilda, will be a bridesmaid. So will Tita Berckemeyer, niece of the Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer. Little Marcella, 7-year-old sister of the bride-to-be, will also be an attendant.

PARTY PARADE:

MRS. NORMAN J. O. MAKIN, wife of the Australian Ambassador, entertained at a small tea yesterday for her house guest, Mrs. Percy C. Spender, wife of Australia's Foreign Minister. Although the Minister and his wife are making but a short visit of two days in Washington, they have won many friends.

Mrs. Spender has a slender little figure and Dresden-like coloring. She wears pastel shades well, and her soft-hued gowns invariably stand out in gatherings in the midst of many bright-colored costumes. At the reception the Ambassador and Mrs. Makin gave on Wednesday evening, Mrs. Spender won appraising glances in rose pink and orchids, and yesterday she won more praise in palest blue wool and matching hat.

Wives of officials and diplomats attending the tea included Mrs. Nelson T. Johnson, Mrs. Maxwell Hamilton, Mrs. John Farr Simmons, Mrs. Willard Thorp, Mrs. James E. Webb, Mrs. P. H. Gore-Booth, Mrs. Anthony Drexel Biddle, Mrs. Carlos P. Romulo, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. John R. Steelman, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. John Hickerson, Mrs. Joshua Evans, and many more.

Mr. and Mrs. Spender returned last evening to New York to attend U. N. meetings. As a farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Spender, the Ambassador and Mrs. Makin gave a small dinner last evening at the embassy.

FAREWELLS were said by the retiring First Secretary of the Indian Embassy and Mrs. T. N. Kaul at the party yesterday afternoon given by S. K. Shastri, Information Attache of the Indian Embassy. Mr. and Mrs. Kaul are leaving shortly for China for Mr. Kaul's new post at the embassy in Peiping. Among the 80 or more guests were members of the State Department, the press and a small group from the Diplomatic Corps.

JOHN FARR SIMMONS, Chief of Protocol, and Mrs. Simmons were honor guests at a reception last evening at the Pan American Club on R st. given by Pedro Concha, vice president of the club. Mr. Simmons is former United States Ambassador to Ecuador.

The Charge d' Affaires of Ecuador and Senora de Moscoso and the Commercial Counselor of the Ecuador Embassy and Senora de Garcia, were among the guests. Other members of the diplomatic corps, many of whom are sponsors of the club, also attended, as well as those interested in the languages of the American Republics, the Good Neighbor policy and the development of Inter-American relationships.

BEHIND THE FOOTLIGHTS

Guests attending The Little Theater's presentation of "The Jealous Wife" will step into a fall night in the year 1769. The play, written by George Colman, the Elder, will be seen in the ballroom of Gadsby's Tavern in Alexandria.

Attentive "link boys" will be on hand to help ladies to alight from carriages, an innkeeper will give a cordial greeting, and gracious hostesses will receive. Between the acts, pretty maids will serve refreshments in a candle-lighted dining room.

Invitations read "We humbly request that our guests be in their places at a quarter past eight o'clock in order to be present for the arrival of our Most Distinguished Guests of Honour, Colonel George Washington and Mistress Washington."

Mistress Charles F. Brannan, Mistress Francis P. Matthews, Misstress Frank Pace, Mistress Harold H. Burton, Mistress Oscar L. Chapman, Mistress Tom Clark and Mistress William E. Warne are among those on the welcoming committee.

Special nights will be Army-Navy-Air Force night, September 20, 22, and 26; Federal night, the 21st; Alexandria night, the 23rd; Colonial night, the 25th; British Empire night, the 27th; United Nations night, the 28th; District of Columbia night, the 29th; and Old Dominion night, the 30th. The first two nights, September 18 and 19, are Little Theater nights.

This is the fifth annual colonial theater revival to be presented by The Little Theater.

WEDDING BELLS:

The marriage of Mrs. Edith Binder Hale, daughter of Christopher Binder of Mount Airy, N. C., and the late Mrs. Binder, to Lieut. Col. Cecil W. Morgan, USA, will take place on Friday at the home of Mrs. Hale's sister, Mrs. Walter L. Robertson of Alexandria. Mrs. Hale is the widow of George K. Hale of Mount Airy.

TRAVEL DEPT.:

MISS LOUISE deC. PORCHNER of Charleston, S. C., has arrived to visit Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Porter at their home on Exfair rd. in Bethesda.

HUGH EVERETT, 3d, has returned from a year in Europe and is with his mother, Mrs. Katharine Kennedy Everett. He studied at Heidelberg University and will enter Catholic University this month to continue his course in chemical engineering.

DATE-BOOK DATA:

The arrival of Mrs. Verbena Hebbard of Beverly Hills, Calif., is always the signal for a round of parties. On Monday she will share honors with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Havenstrete, who are coming with her from California, at a cocktail party to be given by Jack Logan at the Sulgrave Club.

Monday afternoon is also the date for a reception and tea at the Pan American Union in honor of wives of visiting members of the bar associations convening in Washington.

Use Your Ingenuity in Planning a College Wardrobe

(Thirteenth day of Margaret's beauty program)

By Ann Lawrence

IF YOU are planning an off-to-school wardrobe, then really employ a sound, workable clothes plan as the key to a Phi Beta Kappa wardrobe. It's also the way to convince your fond family that you can understand and handle money. It's the way to have enough left over for that super-duper number you find you can't live without, come class prom time.

You're lucky today, for this season's fashions play right into the hands of a clever, budget-minded miss. Mix and match separates—in authentic clan plaids, in menswear gray flannel, in velveteen and corduroys—are found in everything from sportswear to formal evening get-up. And all it takes is a little ingenuity of your own to turn four or five basic skirts and tops into an around-the-clock wardrobe of infinite variety.

Here's a basic list of campus needs we worked out with Margaret, with approximate prices:

Coat, sheered raccoon, for four seasons' wear (illustrated)		$500
One tweed suit		60
Gray jersey skirt, cardigan and sleeveless sweater (illustrated)		27
Gray flannel skirt, velveteen blouse, sleeveless jacket		25
Two-piece plaid date dress		20
Taffeta-striped skirt, velveteen camisole top for evening		22
White nylon blouse		8
White cotton blouse		6
Three sweaters	each	5
One visor cap		8
Pixie felt hat		7
Crochet beret		4
White evening gloves		5
Black fabric gloves		2
Yellow string gloves		2
One pair brown spectator sports shoes		15
One pair alligator flats		18
One pair black dress pumps		15
Plaid over-the-shoulder carry all		6
Brown calf bag		11
Black velvet evening purse		3
Classic bathrobe		11
Nylon pajamas, two or more pairs	each	4.98
Nylon bras, at least one strapless	each	1.50
Nylon petticoats, at least two	each	5.95
Nylon slips, at least two	each	7.98
Nylon panties	each	2.50
Nylon pantie girdle	each	3.50
Total		$806.31

This is, of course, just a basic list. It isn't the minimum, dollar-wise, and is far from the maximum. But the coat and suit are investment purchases that will pass from freshmen to senior class. Add or subtract sweaters and skirts, as your own allowance permits.

TOMORROW: Campus Customs

ONE AND ONE AND ONE (unpressed pleated skirt, push-up sleeve cardigan and scoop-neck sleeveless sweater, all in gray jersey) add up to many more than three, as the college girl will find in this coordinated ensemble, designed by Toni Owen. Skirt teams with any sweater; cardigan can top a corduroy skirt or slacks; pared-down sweater makes an after-classroom outfit when worn with rich fabric, rich color skirt

ALL-OCCASION COAT for the college girl is this sheared racoon, designed by Podhouser & Hollinger. Soft and supple, with all the highlights of a more expensive beaver, the coat's equally at ease over a sports outfit, when worn belted, or an evening dress, when worn loose and free. Good for a coed's four-year plan wardrobe

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

XAVIER CUGAT, who will open the Statler's new room next Monday, is familiar to everyone—his music, his personality, his fame.

But how many would know that he once was a newspaper cartoonist—for the Los Angeles Times? Or that Enrico Caruso brought him to this country after discovering him in Barcelona, Spain? Or that one of his most cherished ambitions is to give concert performances of the folk music of each South American republic?

These South American republics, it seems, have distinct personalities. "Cugie," from Spain himself, has an emotional tie with the South America whose music he has helped make popular. He has studied its folk music intensely. Expert players of native-type instruments and styles are always with his orchestra.

Evalyn Tyner, favorite Washington pianist, is also coming back to home base on opening night. She'll be there to share the spotlight with Cugat. Miss Tyner has spent the summer in Atlantic City. Her trio, with Vocalist Ted Alexander on the base fiddle and Johnny Smith on drums, has been playing there in the Bath and Surf Club.

And to make Monday night a really special one, the newly redecorated Embassy Room will first be opened to public view then. The management has been guarding it as if it were a military secret. But one thing the Statler can't keep from boasting about is the individual table outlets for the public address system. A new decor, new lighting, more electrical innovations also are promised.

THE MERRYLAND Club is bringing back a native Washingtonian who has made quite a name for herself since she got her start here. Pearl Bailey opens there Monday for at least a week.

It was while she was staying with an older sister here that she applied to several small night clubs, and eventually appeared on their stages for pay. The big hump was over then—she was a professional—and Noble Sissle saw her and put her into a vaudeville unit.

Since then there have been movies, plays, Columbia recordings for Miss Bailey. Yet she doesn't even practice her songs. This is easy to understand after you see her.

Singing is merely an excuse. The real show is Miss Bailey's irrepressible personality. People and situations are fruitful subjects for her witty ad libbing. She has a slow, soft, slurring speaking voice.

She is now taking graduate studies at George Washington University while serving as an analytic statistician with the Agriculture Department. The bridegroom is a student at the Maryland University School of Engineering. He has attended Mississippi State College and George Washington University

Miss Spear, Mr. Horne Wed

Miss Dorothy Joan Spear of Walpole, Mass., became the bride of William McHenry Horne, jr., of Washington in a ceremony on September 2 in Bremen, Me., where the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Evans F. Spear, maintain their summer home. The bride's maternal grandmother is Mrs. Robert Wilson of Washington.

Among members of the large wedding party were James P. Worsley, the best man, and Eugene Webb, usher, both of Washington.

Following their honeymoon in Canada, the newlyweds will make their home in Arlington, Va. Mr. Horne, a graduate of DePauw University and Harvard Law School, is an attorney for the United States Tax Court in Washington. His clubs include Sigma Chi, Sigma Delta Chi, Lincoln's Inn and the Harvard Club of Washington. The bride graduated from Northampton School and Boston University.

Following a New Jersey honeymoon, the couple will live in Bethesda.

One on the Aisle—

M'lord Hope Needs Some New Writers

By Richard L. Coe

BOB HOPE'S gagmen let him down badly in "Fancy Pants," which turns out to be a surprise offspring of "Ruggles of Red Gap."

The new Palace arrival strives mightily to make you think Hope is very funny indeed, and the funny guy sure works hard for your money. Granted, it's supposed to be far-fetched, but this one's over the fence.

The gist of the yarn is that Hope's an American trying to learn acting in England at the turn of the century. To impress a rich, gauche American woman and her horsy daughter, a penniless British title hires the company to pose as his family and servants. Mama hires away Valet Bob to take him as a gentleman's gentleman for her uncouth husband back in New Mexico.

Bob hits New Mexico, where the natives think he's a lord; Teddy Roosevelt detours a train for a hands-across-the-sea visit, and pitch breaks loose when the truth's discovered.

Now all this might have been very funny if you could have accepted Hope as a bum English actor (which you were able to do when Charles Laughton played the role). But for so much an American as Hope (native-born Britisher that he is) to pass as slightly English even in New Mexico before it got statehood, is thick going.

Hope and the always welcome Lucille Ball have a couple of mildly amusing scenes and there's a nice staging for "Home Cookin'," but most of the humor is as forced as the situations.

The works are in Technicolor, and Lea Penman, Bruce Cabot and Jack Kirkwood are among the players. For a minute you think it's fun to watch Eric Blore again, but they've given him literally nothing to say, and John Alexander is a Teddy Roosevelt who would, I fear, only turn Princess Alice puce. Better skip this one, Mrs. Longworth.

"FANCY PANTS." Paramount release produced by Robert L. Welch. Screen play by Edmund Hartmann and Robert O'Brien from a story by Harry Leon Wilson. Photographed in Technicolor by Charles B. Lang, jr. Songs by Jay Livingston and Ray Evans. Directed by George Marshall. At the Palace.

SHEPPERD STRUDWICK, Celeste Holm's leading man in the Gayety-bound "Affairs of State," has accepted the invitation of the Atlantic Union Committee to read portions of Washington's Farewell Address at Sunday night's special Constitution Day performance of "Faith of Our Fathers" . . . The Washington chapter of AUC has arranged for Sunday to be "Atlantic Union Night" in the Sesqui Amphitheater and will present a special prologue to the Paul Green drama starting at 8 o'clock . . . On stage will be 48 girls, one from each State, with the original 13 States standing in the spotlight until the script takes up the Nation's expansion . . . And representing the District will be Mary Jane Hayes, last year's "Miss Washington," who'll be dressed as "Miss USA" . . . Strudwick's reading should be a notable event.

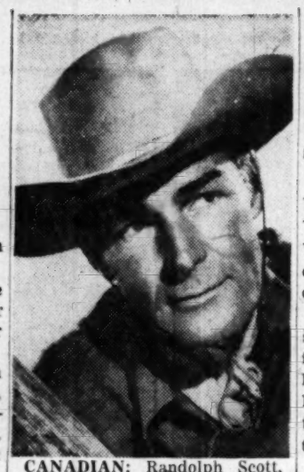
DAN DURYEA'S coming to town . . . The villainous Dan, Gale Storm and Producer Al Chester will be here to talk about "The Underworld Story," opening next Wednesday . . . The trio arrives Tuesday morning.

THE FALLS CHURCH Community Theater will hold its annual garden party Saturday afternoon at 6 at the home of Harry Meese, 190 East Broad st. . . . The players will act Milne's "The Man in the Bowler Hat," directed by Ed Solomon, and if the rainy weather keeps up, everyone will move over to the Teen Canteen.

MUSIC FANCIERS will be licking their chops in more ways than one over the Gotham party opening the new Steinway Room of Luchow's . . . James Brahms, of Olmsted's, local end of the Olmsted-Luchow axis, reports that at his partner's HQ, the Steinway piano family will be inviting a dozen of the greatest living pianists to dedicate the new private Steinway Room . . . Artur Rubinstein, Vladimir Horowitz and Benno Moiseiwitsch will be among the headliners to toast the new room.

AUNT KATE has become Uncle Willie, cries the Cross Roads Theater . . . It seems that Virginia Goodrich, who'd been assigned the part of crotchety Kate in the barn theater's "Personal Appearance," has been unable to go on, so John Kirk Stanley, the theater's set designer, has taken over the lines with the switch in relationship . . . Grace Pearson is playing the Gladys George role at the barn through the 23d . . . Seats at EX. 5640.

WHEN JANE WYMAN got all those cheers for her playing of the mute girl in "Johnny Belinda," those who saw the play at New York's Belasco all regretted that, despite the Wyman triumph, its originator couldn't have filmed the role . . . She was Helen Craig, now appearing with Brian Aherne in Olney's "Dear Brutus."



CANADIAN: Randolph Scott, who's represented all the Western States, shifts his heroics to British Columbia in the Metropolitan's "The Cariboo Trail"

Scott Downs Villain Along Cariboo Trail

By Orval Hopkins
Post Reporter

WHAT WITH the tremendous effort I am making to get the Tigers into the flag, I had a terrible time keeping my mind on "The Cariboo Trail," which opened yesterday at the Metropolitan. We're starting a "croo-shul" series with the New Yorkers and I don't know whether to pitch Randolph Trout or Dizzy Scott. Wait, now. It's Randolph Scott who's in "The Cariboo Trail" and Dizzy Trout who pitches for the Yanks—the Tigers, I mean.

These things get out of hand very easily, as you can see. Well, Scott wants to take some cattle up into British Colombia, a nit-wit idea to begin with. He is abetted by a pretty girl, Karin Booth, who runs a saloon, and by a nonsensical old coot, Gabby Hayes, who has left his upper plate home under the pillow and in consequence is almost completely unintelligible. Scott is opposed by a black villain, Victor Jory.

I'll have to confess that I left before it was over, but things were going along fine at the point of my departure and I have every confidence that Scott winds up not only with the villain in his hip pocket, but also with the lady on his lap and the cattle in the corral.

It's a Cinecolor, which doesn't help much.

At Keith's

Girls' Reform School Story Too Familiar

DESPITE its title, there is nothing sensational in Keith's "So Young, So Bad," which has succeeded the far worthier "Louisa" on 15th st.

It's the story of a girls' reform school and suffers mainly from familiarity. Boys' reform schools have provided the films with similar stories, and "Caged" did something of the same about the girls this year.

Paul Henreid, in a quietly sincere performance, is a psychiatrist who attempts to treat the girls of a State reform farm as human beings. He's opposed by the politically minded head of the institution and a sadist woman overseer we've all met before.

Director and coauthor Bernard Vorhaus accents a realistic approach, but this, too, has been done before and his script presents no incidents that are unfamiliar. The better supporting players include Anne Jackson, Enid Pulver and Catherine McLeod, the assistant superintendent.

HE WHO GETS TRIMMED

The Cincinnati Enquirer makes my mother very proud of me when it quotes from this column, so today I'd like to reverse the procedure and quote from the Enquirer.

The price of a man's haircut here in Washington is $1, and a shave is 75 cents. There's talk of raising those fees because of increased operating costs.

In Cincinnati, where a haircut is $1 and a shave is 50 cents, the barbers are asking for a two-bit increase on each item—raising the cost of the combination to $2. The Enquirer surveyed standard charges in several other cities, and came up with some interesting information.

In most places, the dollar haircut prevails. Some, like Baltimore, charge a little less (85 cents) and some, like Seattle, charge a little more ($1.25).

New York, usually considered a "high-priced town," offers haircuts at 90 cents and shaves at 35—a total of $1.25 for both. An Indianapolis barber will cut your hair for 75 cents, but he gets 50 cents for a shave.

Wherever you go, barbers dislike shaves. "It takes as long to shave a man as to cut his hair," they tell you, "and you don't make nearly as much on the job. And a shave customer doesn't tip as well."

In most shops, an employed barber gets a commission on the money he takes in—usually within 10 points of 50 percent. Tips vary with the neighborhood. Downtown, 20 percent of the check is considered an absolute minimum; out in the suburbs, you'll get a "thank you" even if you don't tip at all.

And if you patronize the shop in the Capitol which serves our Congressmen, you'll probably get the lowest prices in America—and be expected to give the most generous tips.

BILL'S HORSE-CAR PAST

When I was a boy, something less than a hundred years ago, it was pretty generally understood that a gentleman didn't remain seated on a public conveyance while a lady stood. And every female was a lady.

These days, men push their way into cars and buses without too much regard for their fellow passengers—and so do women. The ladies have had to learn to cope with the new ground rules, or be left on the loading platform.

They no longer get preferential treatment just because of their sex. But they do occasionally encounter a male who will give up his seat to the aged, the infirm, or to a woman who is carrying a child.

But unfortunately, not all men will "rise to the occasion," even under such circumstances.

And it's not my purpose to lecture them, and say that they should. Many of them argue that if women want "equal rights" with men in the economic field, they can darn well stand up like men do. Women counter that one has nothing to do with the other; a lady is still entitled to the traditional courtesies from a gentleman. I guess they'll have to fight it out for themselves.

But I might call your attention to the movie "Pretty Baby."

The plot of the show is based on the fact that a New York office girl has discovered a clever method of getting a seat on the subway. She carries a life-sized doll, wrapped in a baby blanket.

As the audience howled with laughter, I thought to myself: That might work in New York, but I'm afraid if she tried it in Washington she'd finish many a weary trip standing on her tootsies.

162,377 Use Birth Control Clinics in U.S.

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

A total of 162,377 wives and mothers were served by 333 birth control clinics in this country during 1949, the Planned Parenthood Federation of America reported yesterday.

Ninety percent of the women were cared for in 158 clinics maintained by affiliates of the federation, indicating a growing acceptance of planned parenthood as a basic health program, Dr. D. F. Milam, national director of the federation, declared.

There were a total of 522 contraceptive clinics in 39 States and the District of Columbia during the year, but only the 333 sent in statistical reports. Dr. Milam estimated at least 200,000 women were served in all the 522.

In 1948, with 354 clinics reporting, there were only 139,241 women cared for, while in 1947, with 349 clinics reporting, there were 136,564 women served, according to the report.

Biggest Increase

Extra-mural clinics (those located outside public health services and hospitals) showed the biggest increase with 150,693 patients last year as compared to 122,514 in 1948. Hospital clinics had only 2373 patients last year as compared to 6977 the previous year, while public health clinics reported a drop to 9311 patients last year from 9750 patients in 1948.

A breakdown of figures locally showed the District had 1216 old patients (those who return for reexamination, supplies, etc.) and 1623 new patients during 1949. Of the new patients, 22 were referred to the clinics by social agencies, 679 by health agencies, 62 by private physicians, 589 by other patients, 60 by publicity and 211 by other sources.

Maryland reported 2593 old patients and 1497 new patients during 1949. Of this number, 8 were referred to the clinics by social agencies, 682 by health agencies, 107 by private physicians, 521 by other patients, 107 by publicity and 34 by other sources.

Virginia, which includes birth control in its public health program, reported 3091 old and new patients during the year, with no breakdown of figures.

The Planned Parenthood Clinics referred 6265 patients to private physicians and 2829 patients to health agencies for medical care other than contraceptives. Another 452 patients were referred to social agencies for help.

Acheson Urged Caution in Europe

By Drew Pearson

Secretary of State Dean Acheson told a tightly secret meeting of House and Senate Foreign Relations Committeemen the other day that he didn't expect Russia to make any war moves in Europe in the near future, despite our announced policy of reinforcing Europe with arms and men.

Acheson

But Acheson warned that rearmament must be handled cautiously—and with the full cooperation of the United Nations—to prevent incidents that might lead to all-out war.

One of the toughest problems the U. N. faces, Acheson reported, is bringing western Germany into the program. The German people, he said, were overwhelmingly opposed to an armed police force of their own unless it is part of a "well-integrated" task force of all Atlantic Pact nations.

A separate police army, he admitted, would be no match for the Soviet military machine in east Germany and might actually invite Russian conquest of all Germany. This, Acheson warned, would be very difficult, if not impossible, to prevent.

At the same time, Acheson said that France probably would oppose making western Germany a full-fledged member of a mutual defense pact, since this would include rebuilding its steel and potential war industries to full capacity.

The final decision will be up to the United Nations General Assembly, Acheson explained, adding that another question to be decided by the U. N. was "Who owns Formosa?" The Secretary of State pointed out that while both the Chinese Nationalists and Communists claim Formosa for China, the important thing was to keep the island "neutral" in the conflict with Russia.

Since any decision should take into account the sentiment of the Formosan people themselves, Acheson reported, the U. N. may decide to hold a plebiscite in Formosa before determining its future status.

'I'm From Missouri'

When President Truman met privately with leaders of the AFL and CIO last week, it was suggested that each leader rise and introduce himself to their honor guest.

Most of the leaders gave their own names, names of their unions and the office which they held.

But when it came the turn of Charles McGowan, head of the Boilermakers Union, he rose and merely said: "Charles McGowan of Jackson, Mo."

Contrast in Senators

There's an interesting contrast between the two Senators from Wyoming, both able, conscientious men.

Senator Lester Hunt, former Governor of the State and recently elected to the Senate, has just introduced a resolution to abolish congressional immunity from libel suits when a member of Congress makes defamatory and untrue statements.

The founding fathers, Senator Hunt indicates, never meant Congress to be a sounding board for such smears as McCarthy of Wisconsin and Schoeppel of Kansas have put across. Both Senators have been challenged to repeat their libels off the floor of Congress and this columnist offered to pay McCarthy's legal expenses in case he was sued. Neither accepted the challenge.

On the other hand, Senator O'Mahoney, also of Wyoming and in the Senate for 17 years, has been presiding over a committee examining Senator Schoeppel's attempted Red smear of Secretary of the Interior Chapman. And O'Mahoney has become so steeped in the Senatorial idea that a fellow Senator should be permitted to talk indefinitely that he has let the Schoeppel hearings become a filibuster in which Schoeppel, with no facts and no proof, continues to talk for the purpose of saving face.

Under the American system a man is innocent until proven guilty, yet Senator O'Mahoney is so anxious to be fair to his colleague from Kansas that he seems to think a Cabinet officer is guilty until proven innocent.

Washington Notes

After seeing the Early American pageant, "Faith of Our Fathers," in which Martha Washington pleads with George to take a rest, Mrs. Oscar (Secretary of Interior) Chapman remarked: "The life of a Cabinet wife hasn't changed in all these years. I've been after Oscar to take Saturdays off, but he doesn't pay any attention" . . . Freshman Congressman Clement Zablocki of Wisconsin, a former church organist, is an adept landscape painter in his spare hours . . . Jean Montgomery of the Soviet Tass Agency, has been busy covering the wire-tap hearing. Guess the Russians relish evidence that they are not the only ones who practice police-state methods . . . For a time, the economic control bill was so loaded down with amendments assuring normal profits that it was dubbed "the profit-guarantee bill." After Senator Williams of Delaware, who sells feed to Delaware chicken farms, offered a profit-guarantee amendment for chicken raisers, Senator Douglas of Illinois wryly asked: "Who's going to look after the geese, ducks and turkeys?"
